MEXICO TO RECEIVE RECOGNITION SOON, COLBY ANNOUNCES

New Agent Presents a Letter Which Is Accepted as Basis of Negotiations.

HIGHLY PRAISED BY COLBY

"Mexican Question Will Soon Cease to be a Question," the Secretary Says.

PROMISE TO MEET CLAIMS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Early recognition of the De la Huerta Government in Mexico was forecast late this afternoon when Secretary of State Colby made a formal statement and gave out a letter from Roberto V. Pesqueira, confidential agent of the Government to Mexico, written to the Secretary of State under date of Oct. 26, 1920, asking for recognition of the present Government of Mexico and resumption of official relations between the United States and Mexico.

Secretary Colby in his statement says that Pesqueira's letter "offers a basis upon which the preliminaries to recognition can confidently proceed." Mr. Colby expressed the opinion that "the last cloud upon the ancient friendship of the two peoples is soon to disappear," adding that the new Government of Mexico has given indication of "stability, sincerity and a creditable sensitiveness to its duties and their just performance," and that "the Mexican question will soon cease to be a question at all," as it was about to be answered, not only as it concerns the United States, but the whole world as well.

There is no doubt in Washington tonight that formal recognition of Mexico will follow on the part of the United States, and that Secretary Colby's announcement of President Wilson's decision in the matter was intended to break the news to the country and pave the way for the next step in that direction. This step, it is understood, will be an exchange of protocols between Secretary Colby and Confidential Agent Pesqueira. In these protocols there will be a formal reduction to writing of the terms and conditions upon which recognition will be granted to Mexico. The intermediate negotiations, to which Secretary Colby alluded in his formal announcement today, will proceed on the part of the United States with a proper observance of the safeguards and assurances of formal intercourse and in a manner not calculated to destroy the good feeling now existing between the representatives of both Governments.

Announcement Hurried by "Leak."

Secretary Colby's announcement came as a complete surprise to political and diplomatic Washington, especially since every previous inquiry of officials of the State Department has recently brought declarations that there had been no change in the Mexican situation and that recognition was something that would have to follow the translation into action of the promises made by De la Huerta and Obregon. The announcement would have been withheld until tomorrow but for the circulation of a report on Wall Street tickers today that there would be an almost immediate announcement by the State Department involving recognition of the new Government in Mexico.

How the information on which this report was based was obtained is declared by officials to be a mystery to them. The news of the ticker report was flashed to Washington and such officials of the department as could be seen early in the day made statements which led afternoon newspaper correspondents astray into a denial of the report. Secretary Colby's announcement came later. The fact of the matter is that the Colby statement had been prepared, with a view to issuance tomorrow, and as the ticker report had anticipated it, the department decided to give out the Pesqueira letter and the Secretary's statement that a basis for recognition had been offered.

Text of Secretary's Statement.

Secretary Colby's formal statement follows:

"The discussions which have for some time been in progress with Mr. Pesqueira, representing the Mexican Government, give promise of a speedy and happy outcome. The letter which he has addressed to me, and which I am today giving out for publication, is a very significant and, I may add, a very gratifying and reassuring statement of the attitude and purposes of the new Government of Mexico. Mr. Pesqueira came to Washington bearing the fullest powers to speak and act on behalf of his Government and has exhibited throughout the course of the discussions a complete realization of Mexico's international obligations, just as his letter reflects clearly the firm resolve of his Government to discharge them.

"I think I am warranted in saying that the Mexican question will soon cease to be a question at all, inasmuch as it is about to be answered, not only as it concerns the United States, but indeed the whole world as well.

"The new Government of Mexico has given indication of stability, sincerity and a creditable sensitiveness to its duties and their just performance. While the full protection of valid

Permits Rise in Tariff To End Chinese Famine

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Conditioned upon like concessions by the other treaty powers, the American Government has written its consent to the temporary imposition of a duty of 10 per cent., in addition to the present customs duties, on all American goods entering China and passing through the maritime and inland customs. The old duties will be restored at the end of the year, as the increased tax is designed purely as an emergency measure to assist the Chinese Government in supporting the many thousands of famine sufferers.

In making the application the Chinese Government said the severe famine sweeping the Provinces of Chili, Shan-tung and Hunan was unprecedented in its extent and in the number of sufferers. It was added that, although the resources of all public and private agencies in China and abroad have been utilized to the utmost for the relief of the sufferers, the funds obtained are inadequate to meet the present needs of the stricken people.

CORK, Oct. 29.—A threat by Government officials to take charge of the body of the late Lord Mayor MacSwiney and bury it in the barracks yard here led to the family finally accepting delivery of the remains after they had lain for several hours on the Customs House dock here tonight.

The body had arrived at Queenstown today on the steamer Rathmore, from Holyhead, but Queenstown pilots refused to guide the steamer up the river to Cork, and trainmen refused to convey the body by railway as police and troops were to accompany it.

An admiralty tug was, therefore, pressed into service, arriving here with the body at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Here, again, local officials declined to accept the body until the MacSwiney family should arrive from Dublin.

Tonight a special train conveying the mourners from Dublin arrived at Cork and was met by a large crowd. During its progress the people at wayside stations stood bareheaded or at the salute, apparently under the impression that the dead Lord Mayor was on the train.

Shortly after 9 o'clock 100 Irish volunteers marched to the quay, shouldered the coffin and took it to the City Hall, where tomorrow it will lie in state.

At Queenstown an officer in command of the soldiers asked the Bishop of Cloyne, who was on the quay, to take charge of the body, but he declined, as also did the town clerk of Queenstown.

As the tug moved from the quay the whole crowd of 2,000 people present fell on their knees at a sign from the Bishop and recited prayers for the dead. Then, turning in the direction of the coffin, the Bishop recited in a loud voice: "Eternal rest give unto him, O Lord, and let perpetual light shine upon him. May he rest in peace."

The tug made her way up the river to Cork and arrived here at 4 o'clock this afternoon. An enormous crowd lined the quays and bridges, and when the tug swung into view around a bend in the river hundreds more passed from the side streets on to the river side. No sound escaped from the throng as the little vessel, with flag half-masted, appeared.

Grouped about, leaning on their rifles, were twenty auxiliary police. Finally, after drifting to and fro, the tug made fast at the quay by the Custom House. No effort was made to remove the body, however, and time slipped away until there arrived upon the scene eight lorry loads of fully armed soldiers and two armored cars. This development was quite unexpected. It is stated that the troops arrived anticipating that a hearse would be ready for the reception of the coffin, which, hidden by a tarpaulin and

JURY TO BE ASKED TO INDICT FOUR IN BUILDING GRAFT

SWANN NAMES UNTERMYER

Lockwood Committee Counsel Appointed Special Assistant Attorney.

FEDERAL INQUIRY TO START

Attorney General Palmer Appoints Joseph Kaufmann to Investigate Trust Charges.

Although the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, which is investigating the activities of building material men, insurance and trust companies, has merely scratched the surface of the situation brought to light by its hearings, so far, enough evidence has already been gathered to warrant its presentation to the regular November Grand Jury, which will be convened on Monday by Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel for the Lockwood Committee. Mr. Untermyer was yesterday designated by District Attorney Swann as a Special Assistant District Attorney to conduct the inquiry. At the same time word was received from Washington of the appointment by Attorney General Palmer of Joseph Kaufmann, a New York attorney, as Special Assistant United States Attorney to investigate charges of combinations and conspiracies among the building materials men to increase prices.

The announcement of Mr. Kaufmann's appointment, as given at the Department of Justice, reads:

"Attorney General Palmer today announced the appointment of Joseph Kaufmann, New York attorney, as Special Assistant to United States Attorney Caffey at New York, to conduct an investigation into charges of combinations in restraint of trade and violations of Federal statutes in connection with the building materials market in that city. Mr. Kaufmann has been instructed to co-operate with the New York State Legislative Committee which is conducting a similar investigation.

"Information gathered by the Department of Justice and its agents in New York thus far has not disclosed violation of Federal statutes, but the appointment of Mr. Kaufmann is made for the purpose of more detailed consideration of evidence developed by the legislative committee in an effort to ascertain the truth or falsity of the charges against the building materials dealers. Mr. Palmer is desirous that all evidence bearing on the alleged violations of Federal law be presented to the Grand Jury if such evidence gives reason to believe that criminal practices exist."

To Assist Untermyer.

In conducting the investigation before the regular Grand Jury on Monday, Mr. Untermyer will be assisted by his son-in-law, Stanley Richter, former Assistant District Attorney, and by Deputy State Attorney General Samuel A. Berger, who has given valuable assistance to the Lockwood Committee in gathering evidence for the investigation. Sufficient evidence will be presented to the Grand Jury to justify Mr. Untermyer in asking for four or five indictments, it was learned, but the major part of the evidence which has been gathered by the Joint Legislative Committee will be reserved for presentation to the extraordinary Grand Jury which is to be convened on Nov. 29.

Mr. Untermyer declined to give any intimation yesterday as to the nature of the cases on which the request for indictments will be based, but at both its sessions it has been the burden of the Joint Legislative Committee's counsel to extract testimony indicating bribery, restraint of competition and the destruction of evidence making for the defeat of the orderly process of justice.

Should sufficient evidence be found the United States Government likewise will begin prosecutions under the anti-trust and Lever acts. The appointment of Mr. Kaufmann was made, it was said, in view of his wide experience in the real estate situation in New York, as well as in building matters. The manufacture, transportation and distribution of building materials of all kinds

Michigan Sugar Gouger Sent To Cell for 2 Years and Fined

BAY CITY, Mich., Oct. 29.—Convicted in a Federal court here of profiteering in sugar and dealing in it without a license, Luther Ellison of Jonesboro, Ark., was sentenced today to two years at Fort Leavenworth and to pay a fine of $5,000. The charges were brought under the Lever act. Harry Cohen of Bay City, associated with Ellison, was convicted on similar charges here several weeks ago and fined $3,000.

It was brought out at the trial that Ellison had arranged with Cohen to purchase 100,000 pounds of sugar here at 21 cents a pound. Ellison, it was charged, resold to a local wholesaler at 25 cents. The wholesaler, the testimony indicated, discovered that some of the sugar had previously been sold by him to retailers here.

COCCHI CONVICTED, GETS 27 YEARS

BOLOGNA APPROVES VERDICT

Townspeople Throng the Court as Jury Proclaims "Extenuating Circumstances."

BOLOGNA, Italy, Oct. 29 (Associated Press).—Alfredo Cocchi, on trial here for the murder of Ruth Cruger in New York City in February, 1917, was today found guilty on four charges.

(The prosecution demanded Cocchi's conviction for murder in the first degree, attempted criminal assault, falsifying passports and false enrollment in the military service.)

Cocchi was sentenced to twenty-seven years' imprisonment.

In his closing argument to the Court, Signor Bentini, counsel for the defendant, in asking for a verdict of manslaughter instead of murder in the first degree, waxed eloquent when he urged that Cocchi at the time he killed Miss Cruger was tortured with domestic troubles to such an extent that he was only half responsible for his actions. He traced Cocchi's life with his wife, and asserted that it was the latter's jealousy which had driven his client to desperation.

It was when he had drunk the five glasses of California wine and Miss Cruger returned for her skates, Signor Bentini said, that he became momentarily insane and attacked the girl. Fearful of the police arresting him, Cocchi then, without premeditated intention, killed Miss Cruger, said the attorney.

In closing his argument Signor Franchini for the prosecution repeated that Cocchi was in possession of his full mental faculties, and argued that California wine was no stronger than Italian wine, and that was not strong enough to make a man commit so heinous a crime. The prosecutor told the members of the jury that they had upon themselves the responsibility to render justice, since the crime was committed by one of their own countrymen against the people of the United States.

Jury Out 90 Minutes.

The jury's verdict was reached after an hour and a half's deliberation, in which, according to the new Italian procedure, the judge participated. All four charges against the acused were discussed, the jury voting him guilty of all four. It was decided by the jurymen that the crime was committed under extenuating circumstances.

Signor Franchini asked that Cocchi be sentenced to thirty years. After deliberating for a short time the Judge sentenced him to twenty-seven years.

Cocchi wept all through the day's proceedings.

The sentence was made up by attaching penalties for the lesser charges to that for the major crime of murder in the first degree for which the penalty is twenty-four years when committed outside Italy.

Cocchi's townspeople received the verdict with general approbation. They had predicted he would be sentenced to from twenty-five to thirty years.

Interest in today's proceedings was intense, and the courtroom was packed throughout the day.

The Story of the Crime.

Ruth Cruger, an 18-year-old student in the senior class at Wadleigh High School, disappeared in February, 1917, after telling her family that she was going for her skates, which she had left at Cocchi's bicycle repair shop, near 127th Street and Manhattan Avenue.

Cocchi said that she had come for her skates and gone away with them. A countrywide search was made for her. Cocchi disappeared the week after the girl was missed. He had told friends that, although innocent, he feared being arrested and charged with the crime. The police and the District Attorney's office accepted this story, and ran down hundreds of rumors, leaving Cocchi apparently unsuspected.

The family engaged Mrs. Grace Humiston, a woman lawyer, who followed a number of misleading clews, but finally caused a search of the basement of Cocchi's shop. With the removal of benches and tables, it was discovered that he had cut through the flooring and dug a pit, in which he had hidden the body. His confession, made some weeks later, after his arrest in Italy, was that he had induced the girl to enter the rear room of his shop on the pretense of showing her some fault in the skates and had there clubbed her into insensibility. He concealed the body there until night, then lowered it through the trap door to the basement and spent two nights making the pit. Before the body was hidden in the pit the girl's family and the police visited the shop, but no search of the basement was made in time.

COX QUESTIONS HARDING ABOUT ALLEGED PLEDGES

Asks Him About Promises to Senatorial Cabal, Harvey and Bankers.

HINTS AT A DEAL WITH ROOT

LEAGUE POSITION SCORED

Special to The New York Times.

AKRON, Ohio, Oct. 29.—Taking as his text the assertion made here yesterday by Senator Harding that "I believe I am the freest man that ever was nominated by any party for the Presidency," Governor Cox in a speech here tonight asked his opponent some questions as to alleged promises made by the Republican candidate to the Senatorial group that dictated his nomination, to Viereck as pro-German leader, to George Reynolds, Chicago banker, in regard to changes in the Federal Reserve act; to C. B Warren, Vice Chairman of the Republican Committee, who has been asking funds from corporation directors; to speculators in Mexico, &c. He also asked if a Cabinet place had been promised to George Harvey, as "generaly stated."

The Governor addressed two meetings here. The first was in the Goodyear Gymnasium, which holds about 3,000. It was packed long before the hour of the address.

Then the Governor went to the Goodyear Theatre, where another 3,500 awaited him. The Governor was so wearied when he faced the second meeting that he leaned heavily on the backs of two chairs which were placed in front of him. He cut this address here to fifteen minutes. Crowds outside were waiting to hear him when he left, but the Governor was too tired and simply waved a greeting.

When he returned to his train he was more worn than at any time before in the campaign.

The Governor reviewed the record of Senator Harding, who, he said, "has invariably followed the lead of Penrose and Smoot and Lodge," and was selected as the candidate of the Republican Party by such leaders because he was "the most tractable reactionary of them all."

"If it were not a tragedy the statement of Harding would be a joke," continued Governor Cox. "Surely Senator Harding can expect no one to take him seriously in this respect when, in the face of his public record, everyone must know that throughout the years of his public life he has been as one in bondage to the big business and corporate interests of the country."

Governor Cox called attention to the fact that the men chiefly responsible for Harding's nomination had been in control of Congress since March, 1919, and charged that they had blocked the efforts of President Wilson and Democratic leaders to bring about readjustment at home and the rehabilitation of the world.

Here is Governor Cox's statement:

"'Senator Harding said in this city last night: 'I believe I am the freest man that was ever nominated by any party for the Presidency of the United States.'

"He further said: 'I come before you and tell you that I am unpledged, that I am unowned, that I am unbossed. I haven't made a promise save one which isn't in the Republican platform' and he states that the one was a pledge to organize a department of public welfare.

Asks About Promises.

"Let me ask Senator Harding some very plain questions to ascertain whether or not this statement is true:

"What promises have you made to Harry M. Daughtery, corporation lobbyist? And what promises was he asked to make in your behalf in order to secure your nomination at Chicago?

"When the meeting was held in George Harvey's room, Room 404 of the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, at 2:11 in the morning, with the atmosphere filled with smoke, and the nominating conspiracy was perfected by Senators Lodge, New, Smoot, Watson and others, with a representative of Boies Penrose present, and when you were called in at some time between 2 and 3 in the morning, what questions were asked you and what pledges were made before the oligarchy decided to give you the nomination? Did you talk about the weather of the next day? Did you promise George Harvey a place in the Cabinet, as is generally stated?

"Does your platform authorize you to make a pledge to George Viereck and to declare for a separate peace with Germany to secure, as he says, votes of the pro-German party in America?

"Did your platform give you the right to make promises to George Reynolds, the Chicago banker, who, on the basis of conference with you, assures his friends that you will permit amendments to the Federal Reserve act so that none but bankers may sit upon the Federal Reserve boards, and thus again restore the control of the money interests of America to a small group of bankers?

"What promise did you make, not authorized in your platform, to Charles B. Warren, Vice Chairman of the Republican National Committee, which warrants him in saying in his letter of Oct. 20, soliciting funds from Directors of corporations, that they should measure their contributions on the basis of

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—President Wilson today wrote a letter to Governor Cox, expressing admiration for the campaign made by the candidate for President. He said that Governor Cox had "spoken truly and fearlessly about the issues at stake," and added: "I believe that you will receive the emphatic indorsement of the voters of the country."

The letter read as follows:

My Dear Governor Cox:

As the campaign approaches its climax, I want to give myself the pleasure of writing to say with what admiration I have followed your course throughout the campaign. You have spoken truly and fearlessly about the great issues at stake and I believe that you will receive the emphatic indorsement of the voters of the country.

As one of those voters, and as one of your fellow-citizens, I want to express my entire confidence in you and my confident hope that under your leadership we may carry the policy of the national Government forward along the path of liberal legislation and humane reform, until the whole world again sees an illustration of the wholesome strength of democracy and the happy fruit of what the founders of the Republic purposed when they set this great Government up.

Allow me to sign myself,

Your gratified and loyal supporter,

WOODROW WILSON.

There has been some comment by critics that the President had avoided mention of Cox's name in the statements he had made concerning the League of Nations as a campaign issue. Some Republicans have attempted to show that the President and Governor Cox were at variance on the League.

ODDS ON HARDING BIGGEST SINCE 1876

$1,000,000 FUND DOUBTED

Cox Men Unable to Get 10-to-1 Wagers—Favorites Lost in 1884, 1888 and 1916.

The prevailing odds in the financial district yesterday were 7 to 1 in favor of Harding, in spite of the fund of $1,000,000 alleged to have been offered at 10 to 1. Doubt developed as to the existence of this fund.

The odds of 7 to 1, which were reached yesterday at the Stock Exchange, make Cox the greatest long shot in the betting on any Presidential campaign since newspapers began recording election betting in 1876. The odds were closer on Bryan in his three campaigns. Even in 1912, the year of the Progressive split, the odds were closer.

There has been a tradition that Wall Street odds are infallible prophecies of election results, but this was proved false at the last Presidential election and in the Presidential elections of 1884 and 1888.

The odds were 10 to 6 in favor of Blaine at the close of the betting in 1884, but Dr. Burchard and a few other things produced a big swing at the last minute which swept Cleveland into office. This was the most crushing blow ever delivered to the prestige of Wall Street betting as an advance barometer on election returns.

Hughes Was a Favorite.

Four years ago the betting began at 2½ to 1 and 2 to 1 in favor of Hughes. In the last two weeks of the campaign these narrowed rapidly. The heaviest betting on any Presidential election was done on the Hughes-Wilson election. On the day before election the betting was 10 to 9 in favor of Hughes and occasionally even money. After the closing of the market betting at even money was reported in the hotels.

The betting odds have followed an entirely different course this year. Early bets were reported at 2 to 1 and 2½ to 1 in favor of Harding. Instead of shrinking, as in 1916, these have steadily grown until bona fide betting at 7 to 1 was reported yesterday. The 10-to-1 odds were alleged to be propaganda rather than gambling.

James D. F. Schneider of Dawson & Co., at 2 Rector Street, said yesterday that his effort to bet $1,000 on Cox at 1 to 10 had convinced him that the statement that $1,000,000 had been raised to place at 10 to 1 on Harding was a bit of Republican propaganda.

"I had $1,000 to lay on Cox at odds of 1 to 7 or better," he said, "and I could not find any Harding money at that figure. I talked to Milton G. Schwerin, who was said to have $1,000,000 to place at 10 to 1, but he declined to cover my $1,000. That was at noon. He said that the $1,000,000 had all been wagered, but that he expected to have $200,000 or $300,000 more later and that he would telephone to me. He did not do so.

"There was one bet of $14,000 to $2,000 made on Harding on the floor of the Stock Exchange. This offer was wired in from a Western city and covered. The betting elsewhere was 6 to 1. The $1,000,000 was stage money, as far as I could discover, and I doubt if any bets were made at 10 to 1. There is often a good deal of faking in the report of election odds just before election, in-

IT'S COX, SAYS WHITE; HARDING, SAYS HAYS

Democratic Chairman Predicts Ohio and Indiana Will Be in His Party's Column.

OPPONENT SEES LANDSLIDE

Republicans Will Have at Least 368 Electoral Votes and Break the South, He Thinks.

Predictions of victory at next Tuesday's Presidential election were issued yesterday by both George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee. Mr. White did not go into specific figures, but predicted that Cox and Roosevelt would carry the South, all the border States, Ohio, Indiana and practically all the Western States carried by President Wilson in 1916, and was optimistic concerning New York, New Jersey and most of New England. Mr. Hays predicted 368 sure Republican electoral votes, out of a total of 531, and the largest majority of the popular vote ever given a national ticket.

This is Chairman White's forecast:

"The general political situation at the close of the last week of the campaign of 1920 is full of signs which point unmistakably to Democratic success.

Strength Grows in East.

"Governor Cox and Mr. Roosevelt will carry the border States of Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma, in addition to the Southern States. They will carry Ohio and Indiana. On the Atlantic seaboard in New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, due to an eleventh-hour shift, the situation is improving every minute, and we feel certain that we will carry New Jersey, Connecticut and New Hampshire.

"In the West, reports from Montana, Colorado, Arizona, Idaho, New Mexico, Washington, Nevada, South Dakota and Utah are that they are certainly Democratic, and we believe we will carry Nebraska, California and North Dakota. In Minnesota, Oregon and Wisconsin our prospects are hourly improving, and a great swing toward us is on in Kansas, Illinois and even in Iowa.

"The Republicans are demoralized from the Canadian border to the Gulf and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Their forces are in full retreat everywhere."

While Mr. Hays predicted 368 sure electoral votes for Harding and Coolidge in his preliminary forecast, he is expected to give out a detailed forecast today.

Predicts Break in South.

A. T. Hert, Republican National Committeeman from Kentucky and a member of the Executive Committee, who is considered an authority on political conditions in the Southern and border States, supplemented Mr. Hays's statement by predicting that the "Solid South" would be broken. Mr. Hert declared Kentucky and Missouri safely Republican and said there was bright prospect of success for Harding and Coolidge in Oklahoma and Maryland and a good prospect of Republican victory in Tennessee. He predicted large Republican gains in North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Virginia and Texas.

"Thirty-two States are surely Republican," Mr. Hays said, "seven additional most probably are Republican and only nine at the most safely Democratic. The minimum number of certain Republican electoral votes is 368. There is very much better than an even

HE RESIGNS BY REQUEST

Action Taken by Wooster Trustees Who 'Repudiate' the Letters.

MANY OF THEM SENT OUT

ADMITTED HIS AUTHORSHIP

Dr. Chancellor Said to Have Declared, However, He Felt He Had Done Nothing Improper.

Special to The New York Times.

WOOSTER, Ohio, Oct. 29.—The Board of Trustees of College of Wooster by unanimous vote tonight requested and secured the immediate resignation of Professor William Estabrook Chancellor, teacher of political science at the institution. The motion states that "it is the sense of the Board of Trustees that the exigencies due to the publication of a letter as to Senator Harding attributed to Professor Chancellor, make his retention as professor in the college impossible."

The board further declared:

"It having come to the knowledge of the board that circular letters are being scattered broadcast throughout the country with reference to Senator Harding, Republican nominee for the Presidency, which letters are attributed to Professor Chancellor, a part of which he admits to have been written by him.

"And, whereas, such circular letters issued on the eve of the election are for the manifest purpose of appealing to prejudice and to influence the electorate of the country at the coming election.

"Therefore, be it resolved that we, the Board of Trustees of the College of Wooster, repudiate and denounce such political methods as utterly unworthy of our college and country.

"And, be it further resolved, that the College of Wooster indignantly disclaims all connection with, knowledge of and authority for making and issuing any such circular letters."

Dr. Chancellor, testifying before the board, the statement says, "stated that, while conscious of the embarrassment occasioned to the college, he felt in his breast that he had done nothing wrong or improper."

The board's action was announced shortly after 10 o'clock tonight, after continuous session since 1:30 P. M.

J. R. McLaughlin, college treasurer, who made the announcement, added that the trustees made no effort to establish the truth or falsity of the charges contained in the circulars.

Extent of the Campaign.

It was not until about ten days ago that Republican leaders in Ohio became aware of the extent, intensity and seeming effectiveness of the circularized attacks on Senator Harding. They freely admit that since they made this discovery it has given them more worry than any other feature of the campaign. In the light of some things which they claim to have discovered during the last twenty-four hours, the story of the "circular" fight on Senator Harding, when fully told, will furnish one of the most weird and sinister chapters in the history of American politics.

The circular propaganda apparently had been in progress for some time before the Republican leaders in Ohio became aware of its existence. It has been most assiduously conducted here in Ohio, in Indiana, in the border States and even in some of the States south of the Mason and Dixon line where the Republicans had been making a campaign. Echoes of the crusade have been heard from Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia and even as far South as Alabama.

It was not until yesterday, however, that "an open letter" addressed to "the men and women of America" appeared over Professor Chancellor's signature.

Professor Chancellor occupied the chair of political economy at Wooster University. Before he became a member of its Faculty he was Superintendent of Public Schools in Washington, D. C. He has taken an active part in the present campaign and has made many speeches.

A NEW YORK TIMES correspondent came to Wooster yesterday to interview Professor Chancellor. He lives in a little yellow frame house in the residential section of Wooster. Most of the surrounding residences are more pretentious than is his. The home of Professor Chancellor was conspicuous by the number of campaign pictures that looked out from the windows and clung to the frame walls. It looked much like a campaign headquarters.

"The professor is not home," said a young woman who answered the doorbell. "He went downtown, you may find him at the Western Union office or at the Wayne County Bank."

THE TIMES correspondent went on to the telegraph office and there the pro-

Concrete Ship Sinks in Collision off Newport; Goes Down in Three Minutes; 19 Missing

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 29.—The concrete steamer Cape Fear, a United States Shipping Board vessel, was sunk in the deepest part of Narragansett Bay tonight in a collision with the Savannah Line steamer City of Atlanta.

At a late hour nineteen of the crew of thirty-four of the sunken vessel were unaccounted for. The Cape Fear sank in three minutes, about half way between Castle Hill on the Newport shore and Rose Island, going down bow first in 125 fathoms.

The Cape Fear was outward bound from Providence for Norfolk in ballast, and carried only her crew, as did the City of Atlanta, which was bound from Savannah for Providence with a cargo of pig iron. The weather was clear, with only a slight cloudiness and a light sea running.

The City of Atlanta's bow was badly damaged, the result of hitting the Cape Fear amidships, but, although there was a seven-foot hole above the main deck, the bulkheads held and she anchored in the bay.

Of the fifteen men saved from the Cape Fear five slid down lines to the City of Atlanta and the others were picked up from the water by ropes or by boats that were lowered for them.

Captain Garfield of the City of Atlanta, in describing the accident, said that he picked up the lights of the Cape Fear and signaled with one whistle, which was answered. He was bearing steadily to port, he said, with plenty of clearance room, when suddenly the Cape Fear swung across his bow. He says that he had ordered the helm hard over and two whistles as a signal for the steamer to pass on the other side and ordered full speed astern, but could not avoid the collision.

The City of Atlanta struck squarely with her bow, the blow cutting a deep hole in the Cape Fear and shattering the concrete. Lines immediately were thrown aboard, but the steamer sank so quickly that the majority of the crew had to plunge into the water and take their chances of being picked up.

fessor was found. He is a man well over fifty, tall, spare, with a scholar's stoop, thin gray hair and a thin gray mustache. He was bending over a big stack of telegrams.

"I am hard at work, as you see," he said to the correspondent. "I have had some eighty telegraphic inquiries and forty long distance telephone messages in the last three weeks asking me about Senator Harding. I am just answering the last of them now."

"And what answer do you make?" was asked.

Professor Chancellor said he answered all the inquiries in the affirmative.

"I do not like this ghoulish business," he added. "It is very much like cemetery work. But, I suppose, I am in for it and have to see it through."

Professor Chancellor said he had spent twenty-two days investigating. He had done the work upon his own initiative and at his own expense.

"I never got a cent, and it cost me a great deal of money," he said.

"What made you delve into this matter?" ask the correspondent.

"I have written thirty-eight books," he replied. "One of them is entitled 'The History of the Presidency.' I was seeking material for supplementary work along the same lines.

"But these circulars which are being sent out with my name on them are sent out entirely without authorization from me and I don't know by whom. As a result I am getting these telegrams from all parts of the country."

"How did the result of your investigation become public?" Professor Chancellor was asked.

"Oh, there were reporters about everywhere. They saw me about the hotels and at work."

At this point Professor Chancellor handed THE TIMES correspondent the four affidavits which are referred to in the circulars.

"These are copies," was suggested. "Where are the originals?"

"They are on file," he replied. "You don't suppose I carry them about with me, do you?"

"On file where?"

"They are in safe deposit for protection," said the professor.

Professor Chancellor said that Governor Cox and Chairman White of the Democratic National Committee had urged him not to make the result of his investigation known before election. According to one person who talked to the Professor recently, he told him that he made a report to the Democratic State Committee.

While emphatically declaring that he had nothing to do with the circulation of the rumors, Professor Chancellor handed the correspondent a copy of his "open letter" after first tearing off the part of the first sheet upon which the caption appeared.

"You see, this is signed by me and I assume responsibility for it," he said as he gave it to the correspondent.

W. W. Smith, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, said to THE TIMES correspondent that neither he nor his committee had received a report from the professor and they knew nothing about the circular propaganda.

Statement by Republicans.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 29.—The Republican State Committee issued no statemenet directly on the Chancellor matter. This statement was given out tonight:

"To the voters of Ohio:

"A malicious propaganda is being circulated, the purpose of which is to arouse group against group, race against race, religion against religion.

"This propaganda is being circulated by the Democrats in the most malicious and cunning matter. The circulators are instructed to advise that it comes from Republican headquarters.

"We hereby state upon our honor that this headquarters has throughout the campaign, and will until its end, refuse to produce, circulate or authorize a production or circularization of any of this type of propaganda, whether of the vest pocket character, circulars or whisperings.

"We are absolutely opposed to and will remain opposed to group, class or religious appeal.

"We are going to win a glorious victory on Tuesday next, but we would rather drink of the bitter cup of defeat a thousand times than win one victory at the cost of our conscience.

GEORGE H. CLARK, Chairman.

Professor Chancellor's Career.

Professor William Estabrook Chancellor has taken an active part in politics in Connecticut and in Ohio, and in his own account of his life in "Who's Who in America," says that he has delivered 4,500 lectures in all the States in the Union.

In 1916 he was a Democratic Presidential Elector. Two years ago he was a candidate for Congress from the Eighteenth Ohio District while he was a member of the faculty of the College of Wooster. He was elected a member of the Wooster City Council in 1919, and previous to that time had taken an active part in Wayne County politics. He was Chairman of the "Four Minute Men" Committee in that county during the war.

He has been a member of the faculty of the College of Wooster for the last ten years and has lectured at many other universities, including New York University and the University of Chicago. He was head of the history department of the Erasmus Hall High School in Brooklyn in 1895, and later a lecturer on sociology in the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. He taught economics and sociology in the high school in Norwalk, Conn., for several years, and ran for Mayor of Norwalk. He was defeated in this, as in all other candidacies.

He is editor of the publication called the Ohio Teacher in Columbus and is the author of several books on education, sociology and economics. One of these books is called "Our Presidents and Their Office." This book was a study of the presidency, particularly of the lives of the men who have occupied the White House, and was published in 1911.

Professor Chancellor was born in Dayton, Ohio, on Sept. 23, 1867, and was educated at Amherst and European universities. He married Louise Beecher of Brooklyn in 1892, and for many years after his marriage lived in Brooklyn. He lived also at Bloomfield and Paterson, N. J., where he was Superintendent of Schools in both cities.

Dr. Chancellor was dismissed as Superintendent of the Public Schools in Washington, D. C., in 1908 by unanimous vote of the Board of Education. Attacks on him began as soon as he became Superintendent and a year after he took charge of the schools fourteen charges were made against him.

These included inefficiency and incompetency; lack of judgment, tact and mental poise; needlessly discarding 5,400 textbooks; exceeding authority; insubordination; libelling the District of Columbia educational system; destroying discipline; ridiculing the Commissioners and antagonizing the School Board.

He was able to appear only a few minutes at the trial in Washington, and collapsed on the witness stand while he was denying the charges. After he had been taken from the room the board voted upon his dismissal and chose his successor. His counsel intended to carry the case to a higher tribunal or to Congress, but nothing came of it.

He is a member of various educational associations, lists himself as a Democrat and a member of the Press Club of New York and the Authors' Club of London.

COX FUND BOOSTED BY LEAGUE FRIENDS

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Three Others "Match the President's" Donation.

HUGHES MAN HITS HARDING

Another Contributor Doubts That Mothers Can Forget the Terrible Nights of War.

Contributions to the Democratic National Committee's campaign fund continued yesterday to flood committee headquarters. Almost every contributor had something to say about the desirability of the United States going into the League of Nations. The "Match the President" fund received four $500 contributions, the senders being Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York City, Judge P. Armstrong of Oklahoma City, William C. DeVitt of Ashland, Pa., and Edward H. Blanc of New York City.

W. Jacobs, Jr., of Harrisburg, Pa., sent in $10 and wrote: "Do your level best to defeat the 'Wabbling Warren.' I cast my vote for Hughes in 1916."

A worn one-dollar bill was received with a note pinned to it which read: "They say every little bit helps, so here is a bit from an ex-Lieutenant who served with the American Expeditionary Forces. It is for the good of the cause."

John P. O'Connor, 51 Pine Street, Palmer, Mass., contributed $120. He wrote: "I have a son who went over with that glorious 104th Regiment, and I know what they were in. My boy's mother was found by me many a night walking her room wondering, waiting and praying that her 'Ted' might come through. I wonder if the opponents of the League of Nations think they can make the mothers of this country forget those nights of horrible suspense by the lame excuses they are putting out for the purpose of being returned to power."

Jesse R. Flanly of Babylon, N. Y., sent in $10. "I am a veteran of the World War," he said. "I was a member of the 107th Infantry, 27th Division of New York, and I am a strong advocate of the League of Nations."

Mrs. A. G. Dibble of the Bennett School, Millbrook, N. Y., contributed $10. "Although by inheritance and tradition a Republican, I am for Cox because he promises to uphold the league," she wrote.

William J. Vaughan of New York City contributed $100 to the fund. He wrote: "Our soldier boys in fulfilling their pledge to us did not duck or dodge their duty. The least I can do is not attack a sidestep my simple duty toward helping redeem our pledge to them, without wiggling and wabbling."

Contributions received by the Woman's Bureau included an additional $1,000 from Anita McCormick Blaine, Chicago, daughter of Cyrus Hall McCormick and widow of Emmons Blaine. She said she sent the money "to help fight the last trench." She also sent $2,000 to the Pro-League Independents. Mrs. Rose McGraw de Berriz, Democratic National Committeewoman from West Virginia, sent $100, and Jeannie Henderson, Southampton, L. I., $25.

Xavier Sodality Condemns Cartoon.

The Xavier Alumni Sodality of 30 West Sixteenth Street, a Catholic society, sent a letter yesterday through its President, Charles E. Nammack, to George Harvey condemning the publication in Harvey's Weekly of the cartoon caricaturing the Immaculate Conception

CATHOLIC PAPER PRINTS CARTOON DISCLAIMER

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 29.—The Boston Pilot, which is the official organ of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston, in its current issue contains this editorial article:

"In another section of the Pilot we carry the Republican National Chairman's disavowal of the cartoon entitled "Having Difficulty in Hanging the Masterpiece," which has caused wide dissatisfaction. The Pilot has made its protest against this caricature on the grounds of religion and honor. It has taken no part in this or any other political campaign, nor will it ever be found aligning itself with any party. Its sphere is essentially religious.

"Since, however, the public conscience is disturbed over the recent unfortunate publication of this cartoon, and The Pilot has done its honorable part in uttering its emphatic protest, and since the Republican National Committee have repudiated and disavowed any connection with its public presentation, we believe that it is our duty, in a spirit of fairness and honesty, to present the committee's statement of fact as given out by its National Chairman, and we are glad to do it."

William J. McGinley, Supreme Secretary of the Knights of Columbus, announced yesterday that that organization was taking no part whatever in the present political campaign.

"Two of our national officers, Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia and Supreme Advocate Joseph C. Pelletier of Boston, and many other representative men who happen to be Knights of Columbus," said Mr. McGinley, "have seen fit to express their opinion of a certain sacrilegious cartoon that has appeared in connection with the campaign. Catholics would be weak if they did not denounce offences of this kind no matter what their source. The Knights of Columbus are not in the campaign beyond their capacity as individual citizens."

LEAGUE ESSAY CONTEST OFF

Chairman Hays Declines to Co-operate in Selection of a Jury.

Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, declined yesterday the request of the Pro-League Independents to co-operate with George White, Democratic National Chairman, in selecting a jury to pass upon essays attempting to prove that Article X. of the League of Nations covenant abridged the sovereignty of the United States. More than 200 essays for the $25,000 prize, which was offered for a unanimous verdict of the jury, have been received, and the offer is now canceled by the refusal of Mr. Hays to accept one of the conditions of the contest.

Mr. Hays's reply was not sent to the Pro-League Independents, but to Henry Morgenthau, Jr., whom he described as "liaison officer between the Pro-League organization and the Democratic National Committee." "I have no time," he wrote, "to waste in academic discussion of a trick question which is so transparently disingenuous and insincere."

WOOD COMES EAST TO VOTE FOR HARDING

General Visits Republican Headquarters and Is Confident Senator Will Be Elected.

FOR STRONG FOREIGN POLICY

Says It Should Be Conservative, but Protect American Rights and Interests Abroad.

General Leonard Wood, who was a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, visited Republican national headquarters on his way from Fort Sheridan, Ill., to Bourne, Mass., where he will cast his vote for Harding and Coolidge. General Wood expressed confidence in Senator Harding's election. He had a talk with Will H. Hays, National Chairman, and other friends attached to the headquarters.

In a talk with newspaper men, who asked regarding his position in this campaign, General Wood said:

"Certainly all of my friends and all of Senator Harding's friends understand just where I stand and require no reassurances on my part. I stand exactly where I have stood all the time and as I made known after my visit to Senator Harding on July 11.

"A speedy return to a peace basis and to a Government under the Constitution, rigid economy, efficiency, revision of war taxation, a strong but conservative foreign policy, protecting American rights and interests abroad, protection of agriculture and industry, and industrial justice, remembering that labor is neither a commodity nor a chattel, and a rigid adherence to these fundamental principles and policies on which the stability and permanency of the Government depend—all these requirements are essential to the nation's welfare."

Asked about his position on the League of Nations, General Wood said he had expressed his views definitely in an open letter last February and that his position on the League was unchanged. He quoted the following excerpt from the letter in reply to the question:

"One aim of America's foreign policy has always been the promotion of the peace of the world. In order to accomplish this end her people must be free in any situation to stand for righteousness according to their judgment. As an important means to that end, instrumentalities should be created and developed by which, consistently with this freedom the momentum of the other free and peace-loving nations of the world, acting concurrently with us, can be added to our efforts.

Wages Cut in Southern Mills.

CHESTER, S. C., Oct. 29.—Announcement was made today that a 20 per cent. reduction in wages would be made at the big Baldwin Cotton Mills here. The reduction will be effective next Monday.

SENATORS APPEAL TO HARDING VOTERS

'A Barren Victory,' Say Leaders if Republicans Elect President and Lose Senate.

Admitting that the vote for Republican candidates for the United States Senate would fall far below the vote for the National ticket in a number of States, United States Senators Miles Poindexter, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Harry S. New, William M. Calder, Medill McCormick, Arthur Capper and Davis Elkins, members of the Republican Senatorial Committee, issued a special appeal yesterday, asking all supporters of Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, to vote for Republican candidates for the Senate as well. The appeal said in part:

"The election of a Republican President and Vice President would be a barren victory indeed, should the Democrats control the Senate."

BISHOP WILSON OUT FOR HARDING

Says World Peace Could Be Attained Better by Republican Administration.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson of the Methodist-Episcopal Church came out yesterday for Harding and Coolidge in a letter to Fred B. Smith, a social worker in this city, made public by the Republican National Committee. Bishop Wilson said he believed that the United States could better lend its influence for the welfare and peace of the world if the Republican candidates were elected than if the Democratic candidates were successful. He said, in part:

"Mr. Wilson, as dictator of the Democratic Party, is insisting upon the adoption of the League of Nations without essential modification. His relation to the candidate of his party and the relation of that candidate to him would seem to involve the dominance of Mr. Wilson's conclusions if Mr. Cox should be chosen President. In particular—Article X., in the thinking of Mr. Wilson, is the very heart and life of the instrument.

DR. AND MRS. FROST FOR COX

Dr. William Goodell Frost, for twenty-eight years President of Berea College, at Berea, Ky., a lifelong Republican, has bolted his party and is out for Cox and Roosevelt, according to advices received yesterday by the Democratic National Committee. In a statement announcing his support of Governor Cox and the League of Nations, Dr. Frost called Senator Lodge "the Republican boss" and declared that Senator Harding is "Lodge with a weaker head."

MRS. ROBINSON INSISTS TREATY WAS DISCUSSED

Says Tentative Draft Was Considered by Roosevelt and Lodge in December, 1918.

In a speech before 500 women at the Broad Street Theatre, Newark, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Douglas Robinson attacked THE NEW YORK TIMES for "its singularly unfair attitude toward me." After denouncing the League of Nations and James M. Cox's "attempt to wear the mantle of my beloved brother, Theodore Roosevelt," Mrs. Robinson said:

"THE NEW YORK TIMES has been singularly unfair to me. Today THE TIMES absolutely misquoted my remarks at a quaint little meeting addressed by me last night. I don't think there was a TIMES reporter even present. I do hope there's one here now. I said that in Theodore Roosevelt's sick room on the 19th or 20th day of December, 1918, I, at my brother's request, sent for Senator Lodge to talk over the tentative treaty draft with him. We all know the actual draft was hidden for some time from the Senators by the President.

"Those men sat down for hours, and they discussed every one of those reservations of Lodge's, and they were all O. K.'d by Theodore Roosevelt. THE TIMES says the Treaty was not drafted until after the dates I gave and until after my brother's death. The finished draft was not over until after the Colonel's death, but there was an unfinished draft.

"THE TIMES said I said Mary Garrett Hay was an independent. I never said that. Miss Hay was a Republican, and now she will vote for a Democrat, so she's worse than Mrs. Catt, but still she's not playing two ways. Mrs. Catt claimed to be an independent."

The quotation from Friday's TIMES referred to by Mrs. Robinson reads:

"'When Theodore Roosevelt was sick in Roosevelt Hospital, Senator Lodge and I went together to the hospital and there, sitting on the bedside, Senator Lodge and my brother went over every one of the reservations during a session of three hours, changing and deciding upon this one and that, and finally every one of them was O K'd by Theodore Roosevelt. My brother said he had hoped something would come out of the proposed League, but had concluded that with so many nations in it with conflicting interests the League would be a war breeder rather than a peace maker.'

"Theodore Roosevelt died on Jan. 6, 1919. The first draft of the League of Nations Covenant was published here on Feb. 15, 1919. The Peace Conference in Paris did not hold its first session until Jan. 18, 1919."

SEES TURNOVER TO COX.

Morgenthau Finds Voters Have Been Aroused in the West.

Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey and Ambassador designate to Mexico, returned to New York yesterday from a two weeks' tour of the Western and Middle Western States and reported to the National Committee that a complete political turnover had taken place in the last few weeks, with the result that hundreds of thousands of voters have gone over from Harding to Cox. He said it appeared as if the people had awakened from a stupor caused by Republican propagandists.

"The apparent reaction," he said, "could be attributed first to the better understanding of the League of Nations and President Wilson's attitude and support of it. The realization that Article X. is nothing more than an ordinary covenant of 'quiet possession,' or the enforcing clause so essential to every legislative statute, also has come to those who now understand the League in its true form."

Slayer of Two Sentenced to Die.

ODDS ON HARDING BIGGEST SINCE 1876

Democratic campaign officials do not place any credence in the report that there is $1,000,000 of Republican money available for betting on Harding at 10 to 1. They cite the experience of a well known Democrat of wealth yesterday when he offered some of the money at the announced odds.

This Democrat has an abiding faith that Governor Cox is going to be elected, and when he read yesterday morning that no one would take any of the $1,000,000 said to be offered at 10 to 1 he called up his broker and instructed him to take $100,000 of the amount, and to put up $10,000 to meet it. The telephone report on this a few minutes later was: "They say you must cover the $1,000,000 or nothing."

"I'll cover the million," declared the Cox believer. "Put up the $100,000 for me." A few more minutes passed and the broker was again on the phone. "They say they have been criticised for betting a million and have withdrawn the proposal," he explained. That convinced the Democrat that the story of the $1,000,000 going begging was a myth.

A short time later, however, the broker telephoned his client that he could get him $15,000 at 7 to 1. The Democrat told him to grab it quick. But disappointments came in battalions. The broker phoned that the $15,000 had been covered.

Milton G. Schwerin, who told of the million-dollar fund at 10 to 1, asserted yesterday that the whole million was actually wagered. The smallest bet at that figure he said, was $10,000 to $1,000. He said he did not know the total number of bets, because he had not always handled the stakes himself, but had referred bettors on Cox to his principals. Mr. Schwerin said that he would have between $300,000 and $400,000 this morning between 10 and 11 o'clock to bet on Harding at the same rate.

Odds on Elections Since 1880.

1916—10 to 9 in favor of Hughes over Wilson.

1912—3 to 1 in favor of Wilson, 5 to 1 against Roosevelt, 5 to 1 against Taft.

1908—4 to 1 and 5 to 1 in favor of Taft to defeat Bryan.

1904—4 to 1 on Roosevelt to beat Parker.

1900—4 to 1 on McKinley to beat Bryan.

1896—4 and 5 to 1 on McKinley to beat Bryan.

1892—Even money on Cleveland and Harrison.

1888—5 to 4 on Cleveland, who was beaten by Harrison.

1880—3 to 1 in favor of Garfield against Hancock.

During the closing days of most of the campaigns in the past charges have been made that false odds were reported and that large sums of money were offered but not taken in good faith at the last minute, in order to affect public sentiment. On election day in 1884, for instance, the New York Times said:

"The story was current last night that $50,000 had been sent out from Jay Gould's office during the day to be used in betting on Blaine and it was offered at odds, it was said, for the effect it would have. It was calculated that the news of the betting would be telegraphed all over the country and create an impression that Blaine's chances were regarded by the betting man as most favorable."

Many Reported Hedging.

It was asserted yesterday in the financial district that few men are now betting on Cox because they believe in his chances. The Cox money, it was said, is generally coming from those who bet heavily on Harding at closer odds and are now taking advantage of the lengthened odds to "hedge," insuring themselves of gains either way.

In Brooklyn betting at odds of 6 to 1 on Harding and 2 to 1 on Miller was reported by Fred Schumm. Even money was offered that Harding would carry Kings County by 40,000, that he would carry New York City, and that he would have a plurality of 250,000 in the State. Even money was bet that Smith would have a plurality of 60,000 in Kings and that he would carry the city by 200,000. One bet of $500 to $700 was made that all of the Republican nominees for the Supreme Court in the Second Judicial District would be elected.

Several bets of 2 to 1 were reported in the financial district that Harding would carry Ohio. Even money was bet that he would carry Pennsylvania by 500,000 and Missouri by 15,000.

COX QUESTIONS HARDING ON PLEDGES

what Republican success is worth to you and your corporate interest and send in your pledges accordingly'?

"What is your pledge to speculators in Mexico who seek to have the blood of American boys coined into dollars and who openly boast of your support?

"What is your understanding with Elihu Root which has caused him to rush to your defense at a time when Mr. Taft has pointed out the probability of vacancies in the Supreme Court? Is it because you have given a personal pledge or because of his knowledge of your attitude against Brandeis, a progressive?

Calls Harding Always Reactionary.

"I stated at Columbus, and restate here, that under the reactionary banner which you carry there have been arrayed more sinister groups than America has ever known. Every group has made a pilgrimage to the front porch, and to each group some assurance has been given, assurances, in many cases, which are neither warranted in statement nor implication of your platform, and these statements promise a special favor in many instances at the expense of general welfare.

"Senator Harding, 'the freest man that was ever nominated by any party for the Presidency of the United States'—if it were not a tragedy, that statement would be a joke. Surely, Senator Harding can expect no one to take him seriously in this respect when, in the face of his public record, every one must know that throughout the years of his public life, he has been as one in bondage to the big business and the corporate interests of the country. His entire public record has been one of 'turning his back' on every proposal for progress.

"He has been in this State always the leader of reactionary forces. We have met before in like alignment, and I welcome the situation as it exists now. The reactionary Senatorial clique has not dared to meet the issues squarely. Its candidate has been attempting to wiggle and wabble himself into the Presidency and to evade his own unsavory record of reactionary votes throughout the years. He has not dared bring into comparison that record with mine by discussing what he has done.

"To divert attention from the reactionary record of the candidate and from the shortcomings of a Republican Congress which has been responsible and solely responsible for the failure to enact remedial legislation in the last two years, and which is responsible for the disorder of world civilization today, the Senatorial oligarchy has attempted to make its issue against the very things they failed to correct, by charging them to the present Administration.

"But the people are alive to the situation. They have in mind that after the armistice was signed the President asked Congress to pass certain definite laws and to repeal others, which had been enacted in the emergency of war, while at the same time urging the ratification of the Treaty of Peace, in order that world readjustment and national readjustment might take place coincidentally, so that we might come into our heritage as the moral leader of the world and gain that material prosperity which ought to be ours today.

"In the conspiracy formed by Lodge and Smoot and Penrose and Newberry and Harding it was gleefully boasted that if Congress failed to relieve the people of the burdens of war, they would blame the Administration, and in their resentment, a reactionary Republican President might be elected. The reactionary plan from the start purposed to bring back into control the 'same old gang' which Roosevelt drove out in 1912. This was entirely evident when the conspirators assembled in George Harvey's room on that fateful morning and cast over the list of names to select as the candidate the most tractable reactionary of them all.

Why Harding and Not Johnson?

"Senator Harding had not gained a majority vote in a single primary election in the country. Senator Johnson had carried many States. If there had been only in the minds of the conspirators an honest and straight-out opposition to the League of Nations, Senator Johnson would have been the nominee, for there is no more avowed and frank enemy of the League in the country. But Senator Johnson is, on domestic affairs, a progressive and the Senatorial oligarchy did not want a candidate progressive on any subject. They could not have secured any promise from Johnson as they could from Harding, but even Harding's pledge was unnecessary, because they had before them his anti-progressive record.

"Senator Harding never championed one big constructive measure in all his public life, covering a period of more than a decade. In a critical time in our history, which called for men without standing quality for leadership, every proposal made for anything calculated to meet modern conditions he regarded as the beginning of socialism. After leading the opposition to the Constitution which brought the new order in Ohio his comment thereon was: 'The revolution in Ohio is on.' He has invariably followed the lead of Penrose and Smoot and Lodge. His reward is the Presidential nomination.

"In every important contest between capital and labor he has voted with capital. He voted for the anti-strike provision in the Cummins bill and dodged an amendment to strike it out. He voted for a longer working day for Government employes. He voted six times for the 'stop watch' system for labor in the army and in navy yards. He voted against raising the pay of soldiers serving overseas to $50.

"On every important question involving the welfare of the general public as opposed to private greed he voted for private greed. He voted for the private control and manufacture of munitions of war in the face of charges of gigantic profits being made out of the war by the munitions families—and this is one of the evils eliminated in the League of Nations.

"He voted against an appropriation to establish a Federal Employment Bureau, a measure favored by labor and by public-spirited citizens everywhere. He voted against a proposal to control rent profiteering in the District of Columbia. He voted against limiting the net income of railroads to 5 and 6 per cent., but in favor of 7 per cent. He spoke and voted against a tax on large corporations. He voted against exempting incomes of farming corporations from the corporation income tax.

"He voted a number of times against increases in taxes on war profits and large incomes, which would have reduced the tax upon small business men and persons of moderate means. He voted against an adequate appropriation for the Federal Trade Commission whose duty it is to investigate illegal and unfair practices by big business and to protect the honest business men of the country.

"He voted in favor of suppressing publicity of profits by profiteering corporations. Upon the food and fuel control bill, he voted against the Thomas amendment, prohibiting speculation. He voted against the Kenyon amendment to the food control bill, which would have fixed the price of goods which the farmer had to buy and not merely limit the price at which he had to sell his produce.

"He voted to permit officers of the War Finance Corporation to continue at the same time to be officers of private corporations and banks. He failed to vote on the Rural Credits bill. On proposals to extend freedom and a helping hand to humanity he habitually voted no. He spoke against an appropriation of $100,000,000 to feed the starving people of Europe, but introduced and spoke for a resolution to send American marines to Baku to protect speculative oil interests. He voted against granting independence to the Philippines within two or the four years. He voted against a provision that the Philippine Government shall be republican in form and established under a Constitution popularly approved. He voted against the principle of self-determination, whether of Ireland or other countries, in amendments proposed in the Senate.

"When he has not been definite and outspoken in behalf of special interests he has been evasive and he holds the world's record of having dodged 1,183 roll calls and quorum calls in the Senate. No man in America can match the record of Senator Harding in his opposition to progress, and that is the basis of his opposition to the League of Nations. The people of America, who are for the League are progressive, because the covenant written for the world is the most progressive, the most humanitarian and the most righteous code it has ever known.

"The alignment of the candidates on this, as on domestic progress, is definite. I favor going in with such helpful and reassuring reservations as are necessary to secure ratification. Senator Harding has definitely said, 'I turn my back on the whole thing.' In this attitude the Senator is consistent with his reactionary public record."

Answers on Jews and Ireland.

Governor Cox campaigned today at Youngstown, Kent and Akron. He began in a driving rain storm. The weather was cold, and at times sleet was mixed with the rain. But there was a crowd out to greet the Governor at 10:30 A. M. at Youngstown, the Hippodrome being crowded.

A new question was brought up by a neckler at this meeting after Governor Cox had replied to an inquiry about his stand on the Irish question.

"I want to ask you," said a man in the audience, "whether you will go to the same extent in stopping the massacre of Jews in Europe?"

"There are two things that the League of Nations wants to establish and perpetuate in the world," replied the Governor. "One is self-determination and the other is that anywhere in the world people may have the same religious liberty that they have in America. The conscience of the world will revolt against the atrocities you speak of that have been practiced and visited upon the Jews in Europe. I contend that the conscience of the world can be depended upon to correct it all."

"But how about the Irish question," Governor Cox continued, "I read from the morning papers that a gentleman overseas doesn't agree with me. He is finding fault with what I am saying, and the gentleman in question is Sir Edward Carson. Do you remember that when a liberal provision was made once for Ireland, he urged revolt against the authority of his own country and he said that the governmental decree ought not to be carried out?

"But in the same newspaper I see that the League of Nations champions in London and in England do not take umbrage at Governor Cox's words. They declare that Britain will be ready at the proper time to take the opinion of the world upon the Irish question. That is rather unusual, isn't it, coming from London?

"One step further. It has been said that the Irish question was a religious question. Within the last twenty years more of the leaders of the Irish cause have been Protestants in religion than Catholic—I should say two-thirds of them.

"They tell you that it is a geographical question, and I am rather disposed to think that, in a sense, it has been. The contention has been that England could not afford to establish a new governmental enemy at her very gates. But, my friends, when the League of Nations is established, the soil of England, the soil of Ireland, the soil of every nation in the world is protected against external aggression, and England no more can say that she is afraid to give Ireland her freedom because there will be an independent government at her very gateway. So that under the League of Nations is Ireland's chance to be free, and I believe that under the League she will be free."

Heckler on Democratic "Antis."

Another heckler asked: "Isn't it a fact, Governor, that the defeat of the Wilson League was due to the defection of Democratic Senators?"

"First of all," replied Governor Cox, "there is no such thing as a Wilson pact. How could it be called a Wilson pact when all he had to do with it was to pass with others upon the document at the peace table. President Taft and the League to Enforce Peace had worked upon the League for two years before President Wilson gave it any attention."

"Why don't you say something about those seven Democratic Senators?" persisted the heckler.

"My dear fellow, I have no concern about them any more than I have about the thirty-nine men who formed the conspiracy," retorted Governor Cox, "but I do say this: If we have got a conspiracy to upset, I think that it is a bad piece of business to give the job over to one of the conspirators himself. Senator Harding was one of the conspirators. Not one of these seven is running for President, but one of the thirty-nine is running for President."

Not Fighting as Partisan, He Says.

In this speech Governor Cox made this statement:

"Senator Harding at Akron last night said that he wanted the Republican Party installed in all branches of Government. He is making a purely partisan campaign. I am not. I am not fighting for a Democratic victory. If I lived in a State where there was a Senator running on my ticket against the League and a Republican running who was for the League, I would not only vote against the Democrat, but I would make speeches against him."

"Night before last," said the Governor, "in Akron some one asked Senator Harding this question, and I ask you to reflect upon it seriously: Senator Johnson says you are against the League, Judge Taft says you are for the the League. Which one of these two gentlemen is right?'"

"The Senator," continued Governor Cox, "laid down his manuscript and said: 'My friend, I am very glad you asked me that question. My contribution to America is that I have brought Senator Johnson and Judge Taft nearer together than they ever were before.'

"My motion," added the Governor, "is that if that gentleman had put that question another way, if he had said to Senator Harding, 'Do you stand with Johnson or do you stand with Taft?' do you know what the Senator would have said? He would have said, 'I do.'

"Now, I am willing to admit that Senator Johnson and Judge Taft have finally agreed. They are in complete agreement on one proposition, but one proposition only, and it is this: That both of them blindfolded can speak the name of a candidate of the Presidency who is trying to wiggle and wabble his way into the White House."

League Acceptance and Prosperity.

AKRON, Ohio, Oct. 29 (Associated Press).—Prosperity was preached during speeches today by Governor Cox, who said that America's entrance into the League would "bring an unprecedented era of prosperity," while nonmembership, the candidate went on, would bring "the worst financial depression within two generations." To his audiences in industrial centres the Governor said it would mean "smokeless chimneys" and reduced wages with longer hours.

At Youngstown one man asked:

"Do you know, Governor, that after Nov. 2 you will be playing pinochle in Dayton?"

There were cries of "Throw him out," but the Governor gave orders against such action, declaring that the interjection did not deserve attention.

"You know, there's some people who never do learn manners," said the candidate.

Referring to the Senator's statement last night that he had been constant in his League position, Governor Cox asked whether any of his hearers could tell him where Senator Harding stood upon the issue and, receiving no reply, the Governor said:

"I have asked that question of 2,000,000 people in America and no one has arisen to tell where he stands. The invariable answer is, 'On the front porch.'"

Governor Cox made public today a letter from Herbert C. Spitler of Dayton, a veteran of the World War, contributing money to be used "in distributing copies of the covenant of the League of Nations."

The letter expressed the writer's hope that Governor Cox would "inform the fathers and mothers not to forget that when they again say good-bye to their sons and daughters that they expect them to take up the pencil just where our dead comrades dropped their bayonets and complete the task that was promised them to be done by placing a mark under the rooster which will insure the fulfilment of the promise given to our boys who now sleep in Flanders fields."

Governor Cox also made public his reply in which he said:

"It is a sad commentary of human nature that the boys who offered their lives to end the war for all time must still carry on the fight to see that our pledge is kept.

"Those who have an opportunity to read the covenant will understand it, and when they understand it they will help vote for it."

chance for 24 more, making the almost certain Republican electoral vote 392, with a very probable additional 23."

Mr. Hays said the reports to him indicated that Harding and Coolidge would be elected overwhelmingly by the largest popular majority ever cast and by an electoral majority that would exceed the unprecedented Roosevelt electoral majority in 1904.

"We are now approaching the conclusion of this campaign," he said. "On the part of the Republican Party it has been predicated upon the necessity of the revival of patriotism in this country. It has had for its main purpose the re-establishment of an economical and efficient administration of the country's Government.

"The Democratic strategy in this campaign has desperately sought to escape just and due responsibility for Democratic extravagance, autocracy and failure to solve any of the domestic problems. The Democratic management has attempted to hide behind a 'peace' smoke screen which is as counterfeit as the 1916 pledge that Wilson would 'keep us out of war.' But America is uppermost in the American conscience today, and that means that the American voter is intent upon making America safe at home as well as abroad, and that the Democratic Party cannot avoid responsibility for eight years of maladministration. The electorate is determined that the accumulated work in Washington will not longer be denied attention; that all the domestic problems shall be met and solved immediately before which problems the Democratic Party for eight years has stood impotent and in confessed bankruptcy.

"The Republicans have succeeded in the earnest effort to keep their campaign on the very highest plane. In this course they will continue to the end, unaffected in any way by the depths to which the opposition is descending in the concluding days of the campaign.

"I have 100 per cent. faith in complete Republican victory this Fall because I have 100 per cent. confidence in American common sense and because I have 100 per cent. evidence that this dependable American intelligence will certainly express itself at the November polls."

CONTENTION OVER MACSWINEY'S BODY

The military had been dispatched from barracks to hand over the body to the civic authorities or relatives. The officer sent for an ambulance, proposing to transfer the coffin to the City Hall, but the building was shut and the city corporation decided upon an entirely passive attitude until the relatives should reach Cork. The officer, therefore, could not carry out his plan, and later the troops were withdrawn except for a small guard left to watch over the body until the relatives should claim it.

The funeral will take place at noon on Sunday. The officer commanding troops in this district has informed the Deputy Lord Mayor and the Bishop of Cork that no military display of any kind will be allowed by those in the procession and there must be no republican flags except the one with which the coffin may be draped. No Sinn Fein uniforms, or colors, will be permitted, and the procession must be kept within a quarter mile in length.

Troops will not interfere, states the officer, unless his conditions are contravened. Military headquarters have taken all measures to cope with any disturbances which may take place during the next few days, but it is not anticipated that any clash will occur.

Dublin Obsequies with Empty Hearse.

DUBLIN, Oct. 29 (Associated Press).—Over a bare catafalque in the Pro-Cathedral here this morning the venerable Archbishop Walsh celebrated a low requiem mass for the repose of the soul of the late Lord Mayor of Cork.

The relatives and other mourners, who refused to accompany the body after it had been removed from the funeral train to the steamer by the police at Holyhead, Wales, last midnight, attended the services. They planned to go to Cork by a special train this afternoon.

Dublin and the whole of Southern Ireland were in mourning today, with the tramways and other public services suspended and the hotels ceasing to serve meals. Many of the shops hal steel fronts against the possibility of trouble.

By 10 o'clock the streets were well peopled, but there was no gathering except about the Pro-Cathedral, which was overflowing long before the services began. Billboards bore the legend, "The Victor Comes Home."

The military were kept off the streets, only an occasional lorry hauling supplies giving evidence of their presence in the vicinity.

As the day progressed, however, thousands assembled in O'Connell Street and attempted to form a procession. Military forces with armored cars and tanks took possession of the district for the purpose of preventing any disorders. There was no interference, however, with the arrangements for the funeral procession which had been planned and which proceeded despite the fact that the family was prevented from bringing the body to Dublin.

The procession formed at the Pro-Cathedral and, headed by an empty hearse, wended its way along the route. The hearse was covered with wreaths, with the Sinn Fein colors attached, and was followed by Archbishop Walsh, thirty of the clergy in motor cars, the late Lord Mayor's brothers and sisters, the Lord Mayor of Dublin and the members of the Corporation, the Deputy Lord Mayor of Cork, and the Mayors of other Irish towns.

At one point an armored car, containing "Black and Tans," drove into the centre of the procession but did not interfere with its progress.

HARDING CHARGES MISRULE AT HOME

Declares Democrats Centre on "Speculative Propositions" as to Foreign Affairs.

SEES WAR SEED IN TREATY

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 29.—Senator Harding, in an address in Music Hall here tonight, called upon the voters of the country to repudiate what he termed "fundamental incapacity" of the Democratic party to administer the affairs of the Government.

In continuation of his pre-election statement issued to the people last Sunday restating the charges he had made during his campaign for the Presidency and which he asserted still remained unanswered, the Senator said that his opponents had tried to divert the issue from "deplorable domestic relations" to "speculative propositions with reference to our foreign affairs."

The present campaign, he said, "is a matter of self-defense and self-preservation for the people of the United States. Their Government is not functioning effectively; their public revenues are being wasted, their public debts increased to a point threatening their national solvency, while their industries, their commerce, their transportation systems are staggering under checks, burdens and imposts, housing conditions becoming seriously inadequate and living costs mounting beyond reach, and Government obligations in the hands of the citizenship under par and depreciation.

"Senator Harding devoted part of his indictment of the Democratic Administration to elaboration of his charge that military unpreparedness had been fostered deliberately in order to win votes in the 1916 Presidential election.

"If the Administration had been plunged into the war as Belgium was," the Senator said, "if there had been a conspiracy in fact to keep America unprepared, there could hardly have been a condition of greater unreadiness."

The armed forces of the United States and the workers upheld their traditions both at home and abroad, but in these triumphs, Senator Harding asserted, the Administration had little part.

The Senator charged that the Democrats had failed to keep their campaign promises in 1912 and 1916.

Bars League Including Article X.

Speaking extemporaneously upon foreign relations, Senator Harding was interrupted by a man who rose in the second balcony and said:

"May I risk propriety and ask you a question?"

"Certainly, sir," replied the Senator.

"No," exclaimed Senator Harding, his eyes on the long paper.

The crowd "booed" the heckler, who was still on his feet.

"Wait," Senator Harding said. "This is my meeting. Please let me run it. Let me ask you, Sir, are you a resident of Ohio?"

"Yes, I am," the man replied. "My question is very short."

"Who wrote that for you?" shouted Mayor Galvin, jumping to his feet.

"You are reported in The Commercial Tribune of this morning," the heckler began, when quiet was restored, "as having said at Akron that you would never have anything to do with a League with Article X. in it. As I understand it, you mean the so-called 'Wilson League.'"

"Wait," said the Senator, waving his arm. "You need not go further. I can answer you now. I can make this so clear to you that you'll be satisfied. If I am elected President there will never be a covenant submitted to the Senate with Article X. in it."

The crowd cheered wildly, and the heckler was seen to applaud this answer as he sat down.

Favors Soldiers' Bonus Bill.

At another point in Senator Harding's speech he said:

"I want to say to the service men here that I want an America that will never forget its gratitude for the service they rendered the country."

"Why didn't the Republican Party give us a bonus?" a man shouted.

"Why, my dear sir," replied the Senator, "a Republican House passed the bonus bill and it is now up to the Senate. I, myself, think it ought to pass, but the patriotic men of the American Legion, wouldn't have cared to have us pass a bonus bill last Summer at a time when our war bonds were 15 to 20 below par. The men who served America wouldn't have their reward at the expense of endangering our Government finances. Sound finance will come, but that calls for Republican control."

In the corridor of Music Hall Senator Harding saw a poorly clad old woman, a thin black veil tied over her head, wandering and unable to get into the hall. He promptly made her one of his special party and she had a seat in the front row of the platform scarcely three feet from the Senator.

The audience sang and cheered for ten minutes after Senator and Mrs. Harding appeared.

Thousands of people were unable to get into Music Hall, and these the Senator addressed later at an overflow meeting. A torchlight procession escorted him to the hall, where he was introduced by Mayor John Galvin.

Nominee's Cincinnati Speech.

Senator Harding in his Cincinnati speech said:

"Fellow-Americans: While there has been a great deal said in the campaign, especially in certain circles which proclaim and boast an atmosphere of ethereal ideality about the heart of the world and the soul of humanity, surely something is due to be said about the heart of America and even, if we are to be all practical, about the material welfare of Americans.

"From the beginning of the campaign there has been a persistent effort upon the part of our opponents to divert attention from the most important issues of the campaign, to concentrate the interest of the voters upon speculative propositions with reference to our foreign relations rather than to have any discussion of our deplorable domestic relations under the present Governmental Administration. But we do not propose that they shall evade this discussion or ignore their responsibility for the conditions which confront us.

"We have for the last eight years had an Administration which has been more concerned with theory than with performance, more interested in internationality than in nationality. We have had an Administration always abroad at home and never at home abroad. We have had an Administration which despised facts as puerile, ignored causes as negligible and sought results by proclamation.

"The Administration placed in power by the Democratic Party in 1912 has again to make a report of its stewardship. It is again seeking for a renewal of its commission of authority and a vote of confidence.

"We are asking for the return of the Republican Party to power because of the desperate need of the country, because of the perils into which incapacity, heedlessness, false principles and loose practices have plunged us.

"We realize that we are undertaking a herculean task in proposing to clean our own house of the débris and wreckage of eight years of reckless, unbusinesslike, impractical and blundering operation. We realize that it may take years to undo the evil that has been done. We realize that the work before us involves exhausting labor and sacrifice upon the part of all in responsibility, and that we shall have to fight unremittingly to bring about the reforms needed. But it is a matter of self-defense and self-preservation for the people of the United States.

"Their Government is not functioning efficiently. Their public revenues are being wasted, their public debts increased to a point threatening their national solvency, while their industries, their commerce, their transportation systems are staggering under checks, burdens and imposts, housing conditions becoming seriously inadequate and living costs mounting beyond reach, and Government obligations in the hands of the citizenship under par and depreciation.

"Fortunately the Republican Party has a record for meeting and solving such problems, and opening and maintaining the pathways of prosperity, and it can and will do so again. But the people must not be diverted or beguiled from consideration of these matters which affect them immediately and vitally, and they should perhaps be reminded of the record.

"In 1913 the Democratic Party went into power with a promise to reduce what was then considered the high cost of living. They made that the paramount promise of their 1912 campaign. What of the fulfillment? They lowered the barriers of trade, threw open our American market to unfair world competition, brought us to the verge of industrial paralysis and commercial stagnation, which the Administration announced placidly and mistakenly to be a psychological depression—and only the world needs of a world war saved us from economic disaster at that time. They went into office with a pledge to establish governmental economy, and they broke faith with an exhibition of the most profligate and inexcusable waste of public funds which the world has ever known.

"I do not refer to the expenditures necessitated by the war. We do not begrudge a cent of the money properly spent to aid in winning this great struggle. It was not always possible to justify all expenditures or to measure needs and apportion funds wisely. But it is a fact that from the very moment the present Administration took the reins of power the cost of government began to increase by leaps and bounds, and the cost of living went up step by step and leap by leap, in company and in sympathy with it. And this was before the war and in the face of that psychological depression to which I have adverted.

"In 1912, under a Republican Administration, the expenditures of the Government totaled $654,000,000, in 1916 they had risen to $742,000,000. Now, two years after the armistice—and in a time of practical, if not technical, peace—we find this Administration asking for appropriations for the current year of $5,294,000,000. This enormous, unprecedented sum would have been expended if a Republican Congress had not scaled down the estimates. The present Administration can make no promise to reduce the cost of government in the coming year if continued in power.

"In 1912 they demanded in their platform a reduction in the number of Government office holders. I believe that demand was justified. The Republican Administration then in power had instituted an investigation with a view to bringing about this reform and had published the partial result of that inquiry and its intention to act upon it.

"The new party Government found 280,000 Civil Service employes on the rolls of the Government. Instead of reducing the number from the very start there was a continuous addition to the civil list. The last estimate of the Civil Service Commission indicates that the number is approximately 657,000, and the best information is that the estimate is more than 100,000 short of the actual number and takes no account of the almost limitless boards, commissions and specialists and faddist officials.

"I want to be fair, and, of course, our World War machine created the need for more help in nearly all the departments, but since the war the civil list has not shrunk even approximately to a peace basis. The Administration in power seems to be utterly incapable of getting back to a peace-time basis of organization administration and expenditure.

"This not only indicates an unnecessary expenditure of public funds, but it takes out of the ranks of production and distribution every unnecessary employe and adds to the cost of living. The amount asked for the executive departments of the Government this year means a tax of $52 for every man, woman and child in the country—approximately $250 for every family of five. No one but the parasite escapes paying his share in one way or another.

"These are home issues which affect every one and which need no foreign interpretations. They concern you each and all, my countrymen, as vitally as tomorrow's breakfast, or the Winter coal, or the price of shoes and clothing. They are, in fact, a part of the cost of each of these items of the bill of existence in this land of ours.

"Take up the question of government in any phase and we find upon the part of this Administration the same incapacity or ineptitude, the same want of foresight, the same lack of practical comprehension of business as applied to government. Idealism may be used in the formation of policies, but the application of policies and their transportation into actions is business, and business is a matter of systematic administration.

Asserts False Pretense in 1916.

"You know, beyond all question that four years ago the public discontent with the conduct of affairs was already so great that the party in power would have been driven out of office except for the appealing statement that the President had kept us out of war, and yet at that very time the Administration knew definitely, absolutely, that our entry into the war was inevitable. Yet with that knowledge, concealed from the people, withheld from Congress, the campaign of false pretense was continued.

"No steps were taken to prepare for our entry, no hint of our necessities was given to those who must in the end supply them. If the Administration had been plunged into the war as Belgium was, if there had been a conspiracy, in fact, to keep America unprepared, there could hardly have been a condition of greater unreadiness.

"I want to be charitable and charge this to fundamental incapacity of the Administration. Setting aside the fact that an adequate program of preparedness might have in itself prevented the acts and policies which made necessary our intervention in the war, who can ever even approximately estimate what this failure of provision and preparation, this lack of preparedness, this indefiniteness of purpose and vacillation of policy cost us? The American Army and the American Navy upheld the traditions of our people and our history. American genius and American skill worked wonders at home and abroad, but these successes, in these triumphs the Administration had little part.

"We do not care to dwell on the costly blunders and the unspeakable waste of the war administration. We may forgive the aircraft waste and disappointment in aircraft equipment in the war, but we hold to strict accounting for the grievances and failure of two years of peace. We can forget the unhappy story of unheard-of waste and extravagance in seeking shipping to meet our war needs, but we do not forgive the utter failure to meet the opportunities for shipping eminence in peace. The failure of the Shipping Board, the astounding inability to meet the surpassing opportunity of all time, is the outstanding proof of incapacity to meet the call of the new order in the world.

"Every nation with few exceptions is facing the problems of reconstruction and reorganization following the world upheaval. These whose boundaries are even temporarily secure find themselves face to face with questions of domestic concern and involving internal tranquility. America is the exception. We have referred to some of these questions. We must set our own house in order."

"It is a matter of common knowledge that a majority of the governments of the nations are practically bankrupt. Even among the great nations there are very few which can be claimed to be solvent in the matter of realizable assets. This is of tremendous significance.

"Lincoln once said that our nation could not endure half slave and half free, and by the same token and in the same sense the economic world cannot long endure half bankrupt and half solvent, half subject and half free. This is obvious to all who consider the subject status of hundreds of millions of people under the fixed and practically unalterable conditions of the Versailles compact that dominated by the creditor nations of the world.

"Here are the seeds of future wars. The only release from intolerable conditions. This, we like to think, is a progressing world, a developing civilization. Universal peace must come not from fixed boundaries and unchanging restrictions, not from leagued and armed force, but from enlightened and expanded human nature, broadened acquaintance and understanding.

"Let us do our part in the world first by giving the world a fitting example of self-government, competently conducted. Before we reach for the stars let us sweep the earth."

Senator and Mrs. Harding arrived here late this afternoon. They were met by a reception committee headed by Mayor Galvin and escorted to the Sinton Hotel, where the Harding party will remain over night before leaving for Columbus and the final meeting of the campaign.

As the Senator left his car at the station here, several scores of express drivers and employes across the tracks cheered loudly for Governor Cox. The cheers and jeers of the expressmen followed the Senator along the station platform, but, aside from a slight smile, he paid no attention to the incident.

Senator Harding's train on the way here from Akron stopped for fifteen minutes at Marion. Several rear platform speeches were delivered at stops along the route.

ROOSEVELT MAKES 12 SPEECHES IN DAY

DWELLS ON SWING TO COX

Denounces "Hard Boiled" Republicans Who Favor League but Vote Ticket Straight.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for Vice President, carried his campaign through Westchester County yesterday in what was probably the most strenuous day of his eleven weeks' campaigning. Beginning his tour at Ossining the candidate crossed to Connecticut and then returned to New York State, making twelve speeches in all. Stops were made at Tarrytown, Yonkers, Mount Vernon, Scarsdale, Mamaroneck, Port Chester, Norwalk, South Norwalk, Mount Kisco and Peekskill.

Mr. Roosevelt's main theme was the League of Nations, which, he said, was "above party and above candidates," as it concerned the future of the United States for years to come. He bitterly criticised what he termed "hard-boiled Republicans," men and women of that party, he explained, whose honest convictions are in favor of the League, who know that a vote for Cox is a vote to go in and a vote for Harding a vote to stay out, but who, notwithstanding, intend to vote for the Republican ticket merely because they are Republicans. He also expressed the hope that Ireland might soon be permitted representation in the Assembly of the League. Speaking at Ossining he said:

"I have been in thirty-one States and this is my eighty-first day on the road. Things look awfully good. We are going to win. There is no doubt about it.

"During the last three weeks there has been a strong undercurrent for the election of the Democratic ticket. There is now an eleventh hour attempt to overcome this gain by charges that the Democrats spent large sums during the war. It is perfectly true. The Republicans helped spend it. The Republicans and Democrats together won the war. That is the American way of doing things."

At Mount Vernon he said:

"A vote for Harding is a vote against joining with the forty-one other countries in the League of Nations. A vote for Cox is a vote for America in the League with reservations that are right. The League question is the biggest question of this campaign, and I feel confident the people will vote right next Tuesday."

Addressing a large crowd in Yonkers Mr. Roosevelt compared the present Republican campaign to that of Charles E. Hughes four years ago, and said that after "months of being lied to" the people of the country are determined to accept progressive leadership, and will elect Cox. Harding was of the same category as Penrose and Smoot, said Mr. Roosevelt.

The nominee said that by electing Cox the country would get rid of "the most reactionary, do-nothing Congress the country ever had."

WELLS WON'T VERIFY 'HARDING LETTER'

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—To H. G. Wells was shown today a copy of the letter which Senator Harding was alleged to have written to Stanley Washburn in April of this year relative to reorganization of the Soviet Government.

Mr. Wells refused to express any opinion as to the letter being identical with the one which W. D. Vanderlip is said to have shown to Lenin. He did this on the ground that he would not interfere in American politics, and that all he knew on the subject came to him in confidence as a third party.

Senator Harding was asked last September to verify a letter addressed to Stanley Washburn at Lakewood, N. J., but all he would say was:

"Ask Mr. Washburn to verify that letter. You may say, however, that I am opposed to recognition of any Government in Russia until it shows capacity for observing honor among nations."

The letter shown to the Senator read:

UNITED STATES SENATE,
Washington, D. C., April 10, 1920.

Mr. Stanley Washburn,
Lakewood, New Jersey.

My dear Mr. Washburn:

I am making a belated acknowledgment of your letter of March 30 because I have been absent from the city during most of the time recently, and only this morning has your note come to my attention.

I have never at any time changed my views concerning Bolshevism, but I think we are coming to a point when there is no other course to pursue than recognize the de facto of the Government of Russia.

I do not know what the political future has in store, but I assume that both of us will be campaigning some time in the near future for whatever candidate is made the choice of the national convention. Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) W. G. HARDING.

Mr. Washburn himself would not verify the letter.

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—The reports that Washington D. Vanderlip of California has obtained large concessions in Siberia have created great interest in Japan.

The Foreign Office is quoted as declaring that it has received no direct confirmation of the granting of the concessions, but that it appears from advices received from the United States here is some truth in the reports.

FISHING BOATS SHOW CLASS

Esperanto and Delawana Meet in Waters Off Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 29.—An unofficial and unexpected test of the Canadian and American entrants in the international fishermen's regatta, which will begin here tomorrow, came this afternoon when the Nova Scotian schooner the Delawana, on her way to Halifax from Lunenburg, met the Gloucester boat, the Esperanto, while the latter was engaged in a trial run.

The wind was light, seven to eight knots, from the south when the Delawana, running free, encountered the Esperanto, beating out to the outer mark.

The general opinion of shore observers who watch the racers was that there was little to choose between them. Those who saw the Delawana close-hauled prior to rounding Chebucto Head and the Esperanto on her thrash to the lightship said that the Canadian craft was pointing just as high as the American and, as far as they could observe, was footing just as fast.

BROOKLYN CHEERS SMITH AND MOTHER

Governor Tells Great Audience Miller Is Silent on His Own Platform.

SAYS HE HAS NO MISGIVINGS

Denies Opponent's Charge That He Is Indifferent Toward Democratic National Ticket.

If Governor Smith had any doubt of his popularity in Brooklyn it must have been dispelled after last night's meeting in the Academy of Music, where more than 4,000 men and women cheered the Democratic nominee for ten minutes. Half as many ardent supporters of the Governor waited outside the opera house and gave him a rousing welcome as he rode up to the meeting.

Just as Governor Smith was about to begin his address someone on the platform yelled, "There's Al's mother," and the applause was renewed. The mother of the Governor, who sat in one of the boxes on the left-hand side of the stage, modestly acknowledged the greeting and returned a smile to her son.

"Judge Miller is quoted as making a remark which I don't believe he understands," the Governor began. "It was something to the effect that Al Smith was striking at his standards. The impression he sought to convey was that I had no interest in the election of the national ticket or the Congressional ticket.

"When Judge Miller made that remark it was a grave mistake and shows he doesn't know me. I know Governor Cox personally and intimately, and the last time I spoke to him was right here in Brooklyn at a beefsteak dinner.

"The history in public office of the Chief Executive of a very progressive mid-Western State indicates that the man best equipped and best qualified to apply modern and progressive thought to the solution of our problems is Governor James M. Cox of Ohio. Our own State is signally honored in the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt, a young man, democratic and able, who should have the support of forward looking citizens throughout the country. Our candidate for United States Senator, the present Lieutenant Governor, has by the conduct of his office in the last two years fully demonstrated his ability to understand the wants and the needs of the great rank and file of the people of this State."

Miller Silent on Platform.

Turning to the issues of the State campaign, the Governor declared that Judge Miller thus far had failed to make any reasonable defense of the Republican platform on which he was running. Not once had Judge Miller mentioned the Saratoga platform in any speech in the campaign, for the very good reason that it was written by a small group of disappointed men, Governor Smith said.

"I have come in contact with these disappointed ones," he said. "This year they sought to satisfy the interests in the preparation of the Republican platform. In July they expressed the fond hope of carrying the State by a million. When a heckler recently asked Judge Miller a question on the platform he replied, 'Who told you to ask me that question?' This shows how he is evading the planks of his platform.

"The Government of this State presents some very serious problems, and I have devoted a great deal of my time to a discussion of them, in the belief that what the people want to hear from the candidates for Governor, both from me and Judge Miller, is what he will do in this State if elected, and not what is likely to be done by some other person in some other part of the country or in some other part of the world.

"They are anxious, for instance, to know what is to be the future policy with regard to nominations for public office. I have declared in favor of the direct primary system, to the end that the enrolled members of a party may be able to make their own nominations. Judge Miller has declared against direct primaries, and in favor of a return to the old and discredited convention system.

For an Executive Budget.

"I have declared for an executive budget at Albany, in the interests of economy, and, while the Republican national platform calls for an executive budget at Washington, the Republican State platform declares against an executive budget for this State. I have declared in favor of a reorganization and consolidation of the State departments, not only in the interest of economy, but to promote efficiency in the government of the State."

Governor Smith discussed in detail the welfare measures which were passed during his term of office and asked if these laws were paternalistic, as he said Judge Miller had maintained.

"Judge Miller says he does not want to coddle labor," the Governor went on. "He does not believe the State owed anything to the welfare of the people. Well, I defend the measures I have put through against his charges and I believe the people are back of me."

In conclusion Governor Smith declared he was thoroughly content to rest the case with the voters of the State. He said he had talked with thousands of Progressive Republicans as well as Democrats in his tour of the State and had no misgivings about the result on Tuesday.

Lieut. Governor Harry Walker, candidate for United States Senator, said he believed that Governor Smith was stronger up-State this year than two years ago. He said the Republican campaign nationally had been one of propaganda, misrepresentation and deceit. He took up the charges of wartime extravaganze leveled against the Administration by the Republicans and pointed out that the actual plans for carrying out the war were in the hands of the General Staff, certainly not a partisan body, in his opinion.

The people of the country, whose attention was called to these charges, were apt to forget the good results of the Democratic Administration, Lieut. Governor Walker said, and he cited such laws as the Federal Reserve act as showing what had been accomplished.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury, member of the National Democratic Committee, told the audience that the people ought to thank the Almighty for Tammany Hall after two years of such a Governor as "Al" Smith. How any real Democrat wanted a change either nationally or in the State was more than she could see. Others who spoke included Justice Townsend Scudder, Judge Bert Jay Humphrey and Judge Edwin L. Garvin.

The meeting in the Academy was preceded by an automobile torchlight parade through the principal thoroughfares of the borough. About 250 automobiles participated.

OPPOSES SOLDIERS' BONUS.

H. C. Pell Says Measure Would Cost New York $500,000,000.

Herbert C. Pell, Jr., Democratic candidate for Congress in the Seventeenth District, speaking yesterday afternoon in the Astor Hotel to an audience of representatives of the theatre and allied industries predicted a financial crisis should the soldiers' bonus bill be passed. That measure, he said, would impose a tax of $500,000,000 on New York.

He favored adequate compensation to all men who were injured in the service and to the dependents of those who were killed, but said he opposed "wrecking the business of New York in order to scatter small sums among a group of perfectly healthy men who have suffered no injury."

CORRECTS H.W. TAFT ON COX

Auditor Challenges Statement Candidate Opposes Article X. Change.

The assertion of Henry W. Taft that the election of Governor James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for President, would cause a deadlock because two-thirds of the United States Senate would never agree to ratify Article X. of the League of Nations Covenant without change, was questioned last night at a Republican rally at Columbia University. Mr. Taft had said that he, personally, had thought Article X. with the proposed Lodge reservation unobjectionable, but that President Wilson would not have it in that form. Mr. Taft said that Governor Cox had adhered to the article in his speeches and that his election would mean that the United States would remain in a position of isolation.

"Has not Governor Cox agreed to accept a reservation on Article X.?" asked J. H. Riddle of 541 West 113th Street, apparently referring to the Democratic candidate's announcement in his recent Madison Square Garden speech that he would agree to a reservation that the consent of Congress to send troops abroad must be obtained in each particular case.

"No," said Mr. Taft.

"He has, and I can prove it," rejoined Mr. Riddle.

Mr. Taft said that Senator Harding had shown in his speeches that he would favor the essential features of the league, excluding Article X. He said that the best way for the people of the United States to contribute to the peace of the world was to elect Senator Harding.

Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman also advocated Senator Harding's election.

More Interested in Election Here Than in Previous Fights.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—Never before in the history of American politics has the French nation taken so deep an interest in an American election as in the one this year nor has the French press given it so much publicity.

During the last few weeks the newspapers have discussed at length the chances of both candidates and the effect which the result of the election may have upon future Franco-American relations. As election day draws near most of the newspapers carry columns of comment as well as a large amount of cabled matter. They publish photographs of Senator Harding on his front porch and Governor Cox speaking from the rear platform of his train.

The Figaro today devotes a column to an article on the probable effect of the women's vote on the election. The Echo de Paris prints a long cable dispatch from its Washington correspondent, conveying Senator Harding's comment on the recent interview given by Leon Bourgeois, President of the Council of the League of Nations on Article X. of the League.

All the newspapers refer to President Wilson's speech of Wednesday, none of them adopting a partisan attitude, but expressing regret at the President's physical breakdown and satisfaction that he retains all his mental faculties.

Steamship Rotterdam in Port.

The Holland-American liner Rotterdam arrived yesterday from Rotterdam, via Boulogne and Plymouth, with more than 2,000 passengers on board, and anchored in Quarantine for the night, as it was too late to pass the doctor. She will go to her pier in Hoboken early this morning.

MEXICO TO RECEIVE RECOGNITION SOON

American interests, which is clearly enjoined upon us as a duty, has at all times been a matter of primary concern to us, I may say that on the part of this country there has been no attempt to prescribe rigid and definite terms upon which a recognition of the Mexican Government would be expressly conditioned. This we have deemed wholly unnecessary and the disavowal of the Mexican representative of any policy of repudiation of obligation or confiscation of property or vested rights, either through retroactive legislation or future regulation, has the added value of being spontaneous and unprompted.

"There are certain pending matters in controversy between the two Governments and our respective nationals but these will be determined either by agreement or by the process of arbitration, to which Mexico is prepared to yield compelte assent.

"The letter of Mr. Pesqueira offers a basis upon which the preliminaries to recognition can confidently proceed, and I am hopeful that within a short time the sympathetic friendship and the patient forbearance which President Wilson has manifested toward the Mexican people during the long period of their internal disorders will be fully vindicated. The desire reflected in Mr. Pesqueira's letter for the confidence and amicably regard of the United States is fully reciprocated and I am happy to believe that the last cloud upon the ancient friendship of the two peoples is soon to disappear."

Mexican Representative's Letter.

Mr. Pesqueira's letter to the Secretary follows:

"Dear Mr. Secretary—While the informal and frank conversations I have had with Mr. Norman Davis, the Under Secretary of State, have resulted in a cordial and thorough understanding, I beg the liberty of putting on paper the exact position and definite desires of my Government.

"As you know, and as the United States must see, it is a new Mexico that faces the world in pride and confidence. From border to border there is peace. Not a single rebel remains in arms against the Federal Government and a whole nation thinks in terms of law and order and reconstruction. On Sept. 5 our citizens cast their votes in due accord with democratic procedure and Alvaro Obregon, the great soldier-statesman chosen to be President, is supported not only by a coalition of parties, but by a union of faith and patriotism.

"What you may not know, however, is the new spirit that animates my country. It is not only the case that our men and women have come to a deep and lasting realization of what Mexico owes to the idealism of President Wilson so nobly and patiently exhibited in the unhappy years during which our oppressed millions fought against the injustices which weighed them down for centuries. It is equally true that they have thrilled to the world vision of the President—his tremendous ideal of universal fraternity.

"Mexico today is not merely planning a future of happiness and justice for all within her borders.

"Out of our new strength we are willing and eager to play our proper part in the creation of a new and better order that will lift ancient burdens from the back of humanity.

"A first task, of course, is firm and enduring friendship between Mexico and the United States. Not only are we neighbors, but every other consideration points to the wisdom of an understanding that goes beyond mere treaties and sinks its roots into the heart of each nation. We have the same political institutions, the same aspirations, the same ideals, the same goals.

"Such a friendship is fast forming. The Governors of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona—your border States—have already stretched out the hand of friendship, voluntarily telegraphing the President as to their faith in the stability, honesty and sincerity of my Government.

"Our business is to set this friendship on foundations so firm that it cannot be shaken by the attack of reaction. Permit me, therefore, to deal in detail with certain slanders that have not only prejudiced the people of the United States, but which have aroused much bitterness in my own county.

"Mexico cannot but feel deeply aggrieved over the charge that she intends or has ever intended to disavow her obligations. President de la Huerta as well as President-elect Obregon have on repeated occasions publicly declared that Mexico will respect all rightful claims duly proved as such, submitting herself to the recognized principles of international law.

Will Arbitrate Claims.

"The Mexican Government is prepared to establish a joint arbitration commission to pass upon and adjudicate the claims presented by foreigners on account of damages occasioned during the revolution. Any claim that cannot be adjusted by means of direct negotiations between the claimant and the Mexican Government will be submitted to the consideration of this commission, whose decision will be deemed final and binding.

"Mexico has likewise held that, in order to place international relations on a solid foundation, the existence of a permanent machinery of arbitration is essential for the purpose of deciding any difference. As regard the United States specifically, Mexico has already expressed her intention in Article XXI. of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo and is prepared to enlarge and strengthen this machinery.

"Our plan is to establish a national program based on order and justice. It is our firm belief that the people of North America are just as faithful to their own high ideals. Hence nothing could better shield the dignity of both republics, as nothing could be more efficacious for the continuance of peaceful relations, than the operation of a commission of this nature, organized in accordance with recognized international practices.

"This policy should be made permanent, and the Mexican Government desires to co-operate in so far as may be needful toward this end.

"Another cause of deep national resentment for the Mexican Government is the oft repeated assertion that our laws are of a retroactive and confiscatory nature, and that our national program is based on a policy of confiscation. This is entirely groundless. Not one square yard of land has been confiscated in Mexico, not a single legitimate right of property has been annulled.

"Nor do we intend to deviate from this policy. President de la Huerta and President-elect Obregon have also made public declarations to the effect that Article XXVII. of the Mexican Federal Constitution is not and must not be interpreted as retroactive or violative of valid property rights.

"We are a proud people and the source of our pride is as high a conception of national honor as was ever erected by any nation. Therefore, Sir, when the Mexican Government declares that it is willing and ready to assume full responsibility for all of its international obligations, it is a solemn pledge that will be kept to the letter.

"Present conditions in Mexico—the stability of the Government, the spirit of the people—together with the plain statement of a sovereign people's purposes, all combine, it seems to me, to end misunderstanding, and I have the hope that your Government will feel justified in recognizing the present Government of Mexico and in resuming official relations in order that with a spirit of true friendship and co-operation we may look forward to the necessary rehabilitation of Mexico.

"Please permit me to thank you for your courtesies and never failing understanding. In the spirit of your great President you have not lacked in the appreciation of our struggle for liberty, nor have you ever lost sight of the fact that the sovereignty of Mexico is the most sacred possession of our people. It is because of this attitude that I am able to write to you in such frankness and such sureness that you will understand this letter to be no mere political overture, but the honest expression of an honest friendship. Respectfully,

"R. V. PESQUEIRA."

Creel's Trip to Mexico Recalled.

There was much comment late this afternoon upon the coincidence that the State Department's sudden announcement followed closely on the heels of the return from Mexico City to Washington of George Creel of the former Committee on Public Information, together with Mr. Pesqueira. While Mr. Creel was in Mexico City reports were circulated that he went there on a mission for President Wilson. But both at the White House and State Department it was repeatedly asserted that Mr. Creel went to Mexico in an entirely private capacity, and that there was no official significance in his trip.

Mr. Creel was at the White House, however, almost immediately before he left Washington for Mexico City. After his return to the United States he came direct to Washington. On Tuesday the Pesqueira letter was written to Secretary Colby. On Wednesday, Mr. Creel had a conference with Secretary Colby at the State Department, following which Mr. Colby admitted that Mr. Creel had given him his impressions on the Mexican situation. Yesterday Mr. Creel visited the White House and the oficial announcement forecasting recognition came today.

Neither Secretary Colby nor other high officials would today discuss the gossip connecting Mr. Creel with the decision to utilize the Pesqueira letter as a basis for recognition preliminaries, but the statement was made that Mr. Creel had nothing to do with the action taken.

George T. Summerlin, Counsellor of Embassy and Chargé d'Affaires of the American Embassy at Mexico City, is understood not to have been favorable to recognition at this time.

As a result of the action announced today the informal discussions that have been in progress between the State Department and Confidential Agent Pesqueira will now become formal, with full recognition of the Mexican Government as the de jure authority in Mexico in view, but the date of the exchange of protocols is not fixed, and will depend, it is believed, more upon the course to be pursued in the negotiations by Mexico than by the United States.

Henry Morgenthau of New York was nominated by President Wilson to go to Mexico as Ambassador to the former Carranza Government. The nomination is still pending before the Senate. Under the law no recess appointment of Mr. Morgenthau can be made while the original nomination is pending before the Senate.

THANKS TEXAS GOVERNOR.

President De la Huerta Sends Cordial Message to Hobby.

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 29.—Provisional President Adolfo de la Huerta of Mexico said in a telegram received today by Governor W. P. Hobby that "the liberality of North America, faithfully interpreted by you, has made your greatness felt by the Mexican delegates who met at the (Dallas) exposition." The message continued:

"As President of the Republic and as a citizen of Mexico, I transmit to you my most sincere thanks and my most fervent wishes for the prosperity of the American nation and for your own personal welfare."

JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT
FOR THE FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT. 10

X JAMES O'MALLEY . . . Republican
X ISIDOR WASSERVOGEL . Republican
X HENRY K. DAVIS . . . . Republican
X ROBERT McC. MARSH . . Republican

WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR THESE MEN

JAMES O'MALLEY Graduate of Cornell University, 18 years a practicing lawyer, 7 years daily experience in the actual trial of cases in court, Assistant District Attorney of New York County, 1910-1917; Special Deputy Attorney General, 1917-1920. His candidacy is indorsed by the City Bar Association, New York County Lawyers' Association, Women Lawyers' Association, Bronx County Bar Association, and he is one of the 9 candidates whose election is urged by the Citizens' Union. A juror, before whom he tried a case lasting ten days, says:—"He has ability of the highest quality, is painstaking, fair, courteous, humane, dignified at all times, considerate, patient. His place is among the judiciary."

ISIDOR WASSERVOGEL Has been actively engaged in the general practice of law for 24 years. For 6 years he was an Assistant and Acting District Attorney of New York County. The Bar Association, in passing upon his candidacy for the Supreme Court Bench, stated that Mr. Wasservogel "Has been engaged in unusually important matters and has shown marked ability and scholarship. He has been repeatedly retained by other counsel in difficult and extraordinary cases, and associates and adversaries in litigations which he conducted recommend him in the highest terms as exceptionally qualified for important judicial office by scholarship and character. Justices of the Supreme Court before whom Mr. Wasservogel has repeatedly tried cases and argued propositions of law recommend him highly, as also do ex-Governor Whitman and Mr. Charles Albert Perkins, under whom Mr. Wasservogel served in the District Attorney's office. Mr. Wasservogel would make a satisfactory Justice of the Supreme Court." The Citizens' Union declares Mr. Wasservogel to be "a capable and well qualified candidate."

HENRY K. DAVIS For 6 years a practicing lawyer in New York City. In early life he was a factory worker, was educated in the public schools, and earned his way through Rutgers College and the New York Law School. While a student he was a teacher in the City night schools. In the Bronx he has worked actively for public improvements, particularly increased school accommodations, and his law associates there have been Joseph I. Berry, Robert H. Bergman and John F. Frees. For several years he was Secretary of the Bronx County Bar Association and for two years its President. The Bronx County Bar Association and the Citizens' Union indorse his candidacy. During the entire war period he was Secretary and Chairman of Local Board 22, covering the Fordham, Riverdale and Kingsbridge Sections. The election of Mr. Davis will bring to the Bench an experienced lawyer, broad minded and patient, who will make a good Judge.

ROBERT McC. MARSH 17 years' experience at the Bar, 42 years of age, graduate of Harvard and of Columbia University Law School. Member of the Legislature in 1916 and 1917. A volunteer or military duty, erving throughout the war in the Field Artillery. Member of War Department Claims Board. The report of the New York City Bar Association says:—"Extensive and varied practical professional experience, great interest in and knowledge of public questions, excellent record for efficient service, competency and scholarship of high order." The Citizens' Union says:—"An able legislator, with a record of exceptional merit and usefulness. As a lawyer he possesses a breadth of legal knowledge and experience which should fit him to be an able Judge." Also indorsed by New York County Lawyers' Association, National Women Lawyers' Association and War Veterans' Non-Partisan League. Member of Voluntary Defenders' Committee of Legal Aid Society.

WANTS ALL WOMEN TO STAND TOGETHER

WOULD AMEND ALIEN LAW

Organization Holds Foreign-Born Wives Should Take Oath of Allegiance Before Voting.

While not on the program, politics was in the air at the fifty-third convention of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs in the Hotel Astor yesterday. An enthusiastic reception was given to Miss Mary Garrett Hay, who has announced her support of Governor Cox. Miss Hay told the federation women should stand together, though they might think different in their political views. Their one duty in politics was to vote for the candidates in whom they honestly believed and let others do the same.

"I respect your sentiments," she said, "and you should respect mine."

Of the resolutions passed by the federation the first urged an amendment to the laws making it compulsory for alien-born women to take an oath of allegiance before being allowed to vote and not permit them to become voters simply through the citizenship of their husbands.

Accepting a resolution proposed by the Alumnae Association of the New York University Law School in favor of the separation of the judiciary from politics, the federation pledged itself to use its influence, "regardless of political affiliations, to 'keep a good judge on the bench'."

Miss Evelyn Goldsmith, Chairman of Reconstruction Work for Wounded Soldiers of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs, was presented with a beautiful federation pin in recognition of her work.

Among the speakers was George Gray Baarnard, the sculptor, who described the war memorial upon which he is at work; Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, and Judge John E. McGeehan, of the Woman's Court.

Prizes for poems were given to high school children, one being awarded to Courtney Cullen Porter, a negro boy of the DeWitt Clinton High School, for a poem called "I Have a Rendezvous with Life."

FEW LIQUOR PERMITS GIVEN.

Ban Lifted, but Three-Fourths of Applications Refused.

John Connor, who has been designated by Charles R. O'Connor, Federal Prohibition Director for this State, to sign all permits for liquor, said yesterday that only about one-fourth of the applications are being acted upon favorably, the others being turned down outright. The ban on permits was lifted a few day ago, and since then, Mr. Connor said, he had been flooded with applications. He made no secret of the fact that the job he has is a strenuous one.

Fifteen arrests of saloonkeepers and bartenders in Bayonne, Hoboken and West New York for alleged violations of the Volstead act were made yesterday by detectives of the staff of Prosecutor Pierre P. Garven of Hudson County. The prisoners were held by Judges James W. McCarthy and Richard Doherty of the Common Pleas Court in $1,000 bail, except those who had been arrested before on the same charges. For these bail was fixed at $2,500 additional. This brings the total of arrests Thursday and yesterday to twenty-seven.

SENTENCE WIFE SLAYER TO 25 YEARS IN PRISON

Chicago Jury Rebuked by Judge for Penalty Imposed on ex-Lieutenant Wanderer.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Carl Wanderer, formerly a Lieutenant in a Machine Gun Corps of the A. E. F., was tonight found guilty by a jury which had deliberated twenty-three hours on the murder of his bride, Ruth Wanderer, and her unborn child. The jury fixed the penalty of twenty-five years in jail.

Wanderer's guilt or innocence of the death of the stranger who helped stage the fake holdup in which Mrs. Wanderer was slain was not passed on by the jury. This is covered by another indictment. The State can bring Wanderer to trial on that charge, but attachés of the court doubted tonight that such action would be taken.

The verdict aroused the ire of Judge Pam.

"You have erred," he told the jury. "You tell me now you believe him insane, but you were afraid an insanity verdict would not have kept him locked up. Why, men, I would have sent him away for such a long time that he would never kill again. A grievous error. You call him a wife murderer and say that he shall pay with twenty-five years' imprisonment. A regrettable error—and, mind you, I don't want to be in the position of criticising a jury."

TRUCK DRIVERS ASK WAGE ARBITRATION

Men Decide Not to Strike on Nov. 1, When the Present Agreement Expires.

Demands of the trucking interests upon their employes for ten hours' work at the same wages now paid for nine hours' work were rejected by 1,500 union men at one meeting last night and were met with a proposal for arbitration at a meeting of 2,500 others. The employes at both meetings agreed not to go on strike on Nov. 1, when the present agreement expires.

Local 282 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers met at St. Veronica's Hall, Washington and Barrow streets, with 1,500 present. Edward McCaffery, business agent of the union, presented the demands of the employers. He counseled the men to stay at work, saying that the transportation situation here was acute and that many trucking companies were moving to other cities.

LAST CUSTER SURVIVOR DIES

Frank Fleck, Aged 70, Is Killed by Auto Near Toledo.

TOLEDO, Oct. 29.—Frank Fleck, believed to have been America's last survivor of Custer's band of Indian fighters, was killed by an automobile on a suburban road near here early today. Fleck, a ship carpenter by trade, had made his residence in Toledo many years.

When Custer's troops were mustered to pursue Indian renegades he was attached to Reno's division. He suffered four bullet wounds and escaped with Reno's troops, who had become separated from Custer.

Fleck was one of seventeen who enlisted from Toledo in the regular army in 1867. He was assigned to the 7th Cavalry, which was sent against the Sioux Indians under Sitting Bull. He was 70 years old.

Contracts Let for New State Roads.

ALBANY, Oct. 29.—Contracts for building twelve State highways of nearly forty miles were awarded by Frederick Stuart Greene, Highway Commissioner, at a cost of $1,313,943, today. JUNKERS DEFIANT IN REICHSTAG CLASH

Reactionary German Parties No Longer Hesitate to Challenge the Republic.

SECRET TROOPS BUILT UP

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—This afternoon's debate in the Reichstag was noisy in the extreme and looked like a presage of still more tempestuous times. A noteworthy feature of the situation is the strength and assurance of the German National People's Party—our old friends the Junkers. It had just held its annual Congress at Hanover, as I have reported, and boasting over a million members, its leaders felt themselves safe in shouting defiance at the world again, in throwing down the gauntlet of deliberate challenge to the republic and in coming out definitely in favor of a return of the Hohenzollerns. One leader even openly gloried in the policy of the mailed fist.

It is amazing evidence of the mental muddle and political immaturity of a great section of the German people that millions of them will still enthusiastically follow such persons as Dr. Helfferich, the most grossly incompetent Finance Minister the country ever had, and Herr von Hergt, who when the United States entered the war declared that, as the American Army could neither swim nor fly the Atlantic, it would never appear on a European battlefield. Such incapables and discredited prophets still strut about as the only possible saviors of the country.

Fehrenbach's speech the other day was a great disappointment. From the man who roused Germany to wrath over the Zabern brutalities, all the fire and spirit seem to have gone. Scheidemann this afternoon, however, sternly brought the House face to face with realities. He pointed out that the militarists were playing the same game with Minister of Defense Gessler as with Noske.

Scheidemann here waved his hand toward the Minister of Defense who, illustrating these remarks, was sitting on the Government bench surrounded by numerous army officers.

Scheidemann went on to say the Majority Socialists would vote neither for the army budget "which accounted for such an astounding array of Generals and horses that one could not see the rank and file," nor for the new army bill which was imbued with the old Prussian spirit. The Ministry of Defense was wreathed in the reactionary spirit of Potsdam and Scheidemann declared his party could no longer have any faith in the loyalty to the Constitution of General von Seeckt, head of the army.

The whole speech sounded like a declaration of war by the Majority Socialists, who also are conscious of increased strength.

Scheidemann's words are given point by discoveries which have been recently made all over the country. Even Dr. Peters, the Disarmament Commissioner, had to admit today unearthing at Potsdam of a store of hundreds of machine guns and thousands of rifles secretly hoarded by reactionary soldiers.

But infinitely worse than that are the revelations just made regarding what can only be called a vast secret military organization built up and financed by the most reactionary element in the country. Some months ago Herr Escherich, a Bavarian official, began to form what he called the "Organization Escherich," now known as the "Orgesche."

It was represented as a patriotic association to prevent a Communist coup, but there is now abundant proof its object is to bring back the reaction to power. It hopes to succeed not so much by a sudden coup as by the incapacity and failure to govern of all other parties. Just as the republic arose out of the monarchial failure, so the Junker hopes to ride back into Wilhelmstrasse on the failure of the republic, and for that consummation the reactionaries are determined to be prepared. The Orgesch has Bavaria in its grip. The hold of reaction there has been steadily increased till today it is almost complete.

Then the Orgesch turned its attention to Saxony. In Chemnitz the "Steel Helmet Society" has been unearthed. It proved to be nothing else than an Orgesch branch with plans and money, ready with arrangements for counteracting all opposition and for the arming and fitting out of supporters, and with a good hold on the army and military police. There is proof that it is supported by funds from the Junker Party and the People's Party, the latter being one of the coalition Government parties.

The authorities so far have merely resorted to the weak medicine of dismissing the few minor officials.

In Bremen there exists a "Friendship Society" which is just such another, and Hesse boasts a citizen and peasant association which does not differ in one iota from the others.

How far publicity will spoil the reactionaries' plans remains to be seen, but they rely mainly on the inability of the other parties to hold the reins of power and the opening of the session shows the present Government in none too strong a position with a section of its supporters actually in the enemy camp.

The majority and minority Socialist parties in Bavaria have demanded an inquiry into allegations according to which there exists in Munich "a Murder Bureau." The object of this bureau, which it is stated exists with the full knowledge of the police and is even helped officially, is to do away with persons who are suspected of informing the Entente where stores of hidden weapons exist. To kidnap such persons there always is kept ready a motor car with a contrivance inside by which the victim is immediately gripped and held fast on entering the vehicle.

This bureau undoubtedly is merely another tenacle of the Orgesch. It is stated witness and evidence are available to support the allegations conclusively.

The German People's Party in Bavaria has just held its yearly conference at Munich. General von Schoch, Chairman of the party, declared the entry of the People's Party into the coalition forming the Central Government did not mean renunciation of the party's propaganda in favor of a return of the monarchy, which still remained one of the most important items in their program.

FIREMEN DENOUNCE VETO OF GOV. SMITH

Association Including Policemen Resents His Opposition to Two-Platoon Bill.

Governor Alfred E. Smith's veto of the two-platoon bill for city firemen and the failure of the Board of Estimate to increase the pay of firemen and policemen were condemned at a meeting of 3,500 members of the Uniformed Firemen's Association and the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association at Maennerchor Hall, 203 East Fifty-sixth Street, yesterday. Governor Smith was accused of having violated by his veto a pledge to sign such a bill made during his campaign two years ago. The meeting was said to have been for the purpose of trying to align the policemen and firemen of the city against him.

According to Joseph O'Reilly, Secretary of both organizations, the proposal to increase the salaries of firemen and policemen from $2,280 to $2,500 a year has been stricken from the budget. Mr. O'Reilly also told the meeting that Governor Smith had pledged himself in 1918 to favor a platoon system for the firemen, but had vetoed, first, a bill to permit a referendum on the matter on the ground that it could be settled by the Legislature and, second, had vetoed a mandatory two-platoon bil passed at the last session.

Pamphlets entitled "A Broken Promise and a Double Cross" were distributed, apparently with the approval of the officers of the two organizations. These contained an attack on Governor Smith, and said that his vetoes "furnished a fitting climax to the long-continued policy of insult and oppression of Mayor Hylan" towards city employes. The pamphlet concluded:

"The election of Alfred E. Smith as Governor will mean a victory for an administration that every city employe knows is regarded with suspicion if not with contempt. A victory for Alfred E. Smith will mean an indorsement of the spirit of enmity at the City Hall which has amazed the tens of thousands of loyal employes who three years ago voted to put the administration in power. Do you, your relatives and your friends, want another two years of the Smith 'alibi' administration? Do you want the Hylan administration of insult and intimidation to get any encouragement through the election of Alfred E. Smith for another term? Give the answer at the polls on election day!"

INDUSTRIAL CRISIS MENACES FRANCE

Many Thousands Out of Work as Demand for Manufactures Slackens.

RETAIL PRICES STAY HIGH

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—In the great manufacturing city of Lyons 25,000 men are reported out of work, and this figure is only one of the many indicative of the great industrial crisis which is threatening France in common with other countries.

At Limoges, one of the shoe manufacturing towns of France, some 8,000 shoemakers have been dismissed. In the automobile industry more than 30 per cent. of the men are without work, and at Roubaix, the centre of the cloth-making industry, while the factories are working only three or four days a week, there are many men and women who cannot find any work at all. The luxury trades, such as those dealing in furs and perfumery, are in the same position, and in the leather industry nearly 70 per cent. of the men have been dismissed.

At a meeting of workers' unions this afternoon some of the unemployment figures in the Paris area were given as follows: Metal workers, 35 per cent.; tailors, 40 per cent.: stonemasons, 20 per cent.; shoemakers, 60 per cent.; military tailors, 80 per cent.

So far there have been very few demonstrations and processions, such as happened recently in London, and the Government has already spent some time considering measures of relief. These for the most part entail the transportation of workers to the devasted regions, and, apart from the usual reluctance of the French workman to leave his home and undertake any other than his special trade, there is manifest unwillingness on the part of men who spent five years in the army away from their families to comply with the suggestions of the Government.

The Socialist and radical newspapers are working up a campaign to provoke demonstrations, and on that side events seem to be moving toward a crisis.

On the financial side matters are becoming no less serious. In practically all industries the stocks accumulated have become enormously greater than the demand. Retailers complain that the public is refusing to buy at present prices, and at the same time manufacturers and holders of stocks are still refusing to lower prices. Fear of a sudden drop with resultant ruin is obvious in many quarters, and manufacturers are hanging on as long as possible.

Yesterday at the monthly sale of raw hides the market broke 40 per cent. lower than last month, and it is stated that the stocks are equal to double the French demand. Yet there is no lowering in the price of shoes.

At Roubaix the stocks of cloth are getting difficult to deal with, in spite of the lowered output due to the dismissal of workers and the short hours of those retained. Prices meanwhile remain at the former high level and something like consternation has been produced in the trade by the announcement that the Government is about to dispose of 1,500,000 meters of cloth at a cheap rate from stocks which were bought after the armistice to provide suits for demobilized soldiers. The majority of the men preferred to take a cash payment instead of clothes, and the stocks which were left on hand are now to be sold in pieces of 100 meters. How long the manufacturers will be able to hold the market in the face of two facts, the strike of the buying public and the amount of unemployment, is being discussed in all the newspapers.

Already the effect of lowering prices in England is beginning to show itself in spite of the high rate of exchange, and the crisis is expected to come here within three months. Speculators are busy endeavoring to get rid of stocks and are finding no purchasers, and among the general public there is unconcealed pleasure in anticipation of the crash which appears to be coming.

BANDITS GET $54,500 IN CHICAGO HOLD-UP

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Following a spectacular street battle this afternoon between three young bandits, a bank messenger and a policeman, the thieves escaped with $54,500 in currency after fatally wounding the bank employe and slightly injuring the policeman. The police at once threw a dragnet around the district, but no trace of the robbers had been found at a late hour tonight.

The robbery occurred under the Ashland Avenue Viaduct of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad tracks between Fifteenth and Sixteenth Streets shortly after 3 o'clock and ranks as one of the most daring and successful daylight holdups in Chicago.

Jacob Yanovitz, the bank messenger, was wounded in the chest and right arm. He is 35 years old and has been in the employ of the Southwest Trust and Savings Bank for several years. After the robbery he was taken to the University Hospital, where it was said he would probably die.

Patrolman John Leonard, who was accompanying Yanovitz as a guard, escaped serious injury when a bullet struck a nail file in his pocket and was deflected.

The bandits are described as young, well dressed, and about 30 years old.

READS CARDS FROM BACKS.

Prosecutor McGrath Meets Challenge in Krohnberg Trial.

There was a demonstration with marked cards in Judge McIntyre's part of General Sessions yesterday in an argument by Max D. Steuer for the dismissal of an indictment against Louis Krohnberg, a manufacturer of 789 West End Avenue, who, it is alleged, won $800,000 in a series of stud poker games with business acquaintances in the Winter of 1919. Mr. Steuer contended that absolutely no evidence had been submitted before the Grand Jury or at the hearing of the charges by Justice Frederic Kernochan of Special Sessions to show that his client had marked any cards or had known that any of them was marked.

It was said that the cards were not the originals, but were marked in accordance with the description given by Jacob Silverman, the chief complainant, and other players. Steuer handed the deck of cards to Judge McIntyre, saying that it was impossible to read them in dealing them out. Judge McIntyre experimented with the cards. "I am quite certain I can't read from the backs," he said.

Steuer handed the cards to Thomas A. McGrath, who is prosecuting the case, remarking: "The learned prosecutor here has had a very great opportunity to master cards marked like these. Now, I challenge him to read the cards in this deck by looking at the backs." Much to the surprise of Steuer each card was correctly named by McGrath as he slipped each from the pack without seeing its face.

The court reserved decision.

McGRAW HELD IN $500 BAIL.

Giants' Manager Pleads Not Guilty of Illegal Possession of Whisky.

Judge Mayer yesterday in the Federal Court held John J. McGraw, manager and part owner of the New York National League Baseball Club (the Giants), in $500 bail for trial when McGraw pleaded not guilty to an indictment returned charging violation of the prohibition law. McGraw was accompanied to court by his counsel, Eugene F. McGee, and immediately furnished bail. No date was set for the trial.

When questioned about the charge that he violated the Volstead act by having a bottle of whisky in his possession in the Lambs on the morning of Aug. 8 last, when he fought with William H. Boyd and other members, he said: "This whole thing is a joke to me. It's not worth discussing."

The maximum penalty for the alleged offense is a fine of $500.

TO HONOR WAR'S FALLEN.

Company D, 307th Infantry, Will Plant Memorial Tree in the Mall.

Company D of the 307th Infantry will honor its forty-eight members who were killed in the war by a tree planting in Central Park at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. A red oak will be placed in the Mall in memory of the men who gave their lives.

Major Gen. Alexander, who commanded the 77th Division, and Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin will attend the ceremonies.

THIRTEEN INDICTED IN BASEBALL FIXING

BAIL IS FIXED AT $10,000

State's Attorney Moves for Their Extradition — Heads of Three Pools Are Also Indicted.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Indictments charging thirteen persons with operating a confidence game and conspiracy were returned today by the Cook County Grand Jury, which for several weeks has been investigating the baseball scandal. In addition three indictments were voted against persons operating local baseball pools. The charges grew out of the "fixing" of last year's world series between the White Sox and Cincinnati. Those indicted are:

Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson, Claude Williams, Fred McMullin, George Weaver, Oscar Felsch and Charles Risberg, White Sox players. Arnold (Chick) Gandil, former White Sox player; Hal Chase, former New York Giant player; Abe Attell, former boxer; Joseph "Sport" Sullivan of Boston and Rafael Brown of New York.

Chief Justice McDonald announced that he would fix bail at $5,000 on each indictment, or $10,000 for each of those indicted.

New evidence involving Claude Hendrix, pitcher for the Cubs in the game between the Cubs and Phillies early in September, which precipitated the present baseball inquiry, was placed in the hands of Assistant State's Attorney Replogle today. Rumors that the game in question had been "fixed" caused the Cub management to shift pitchers at the last minute. Alexander was sent in and Hendrix sat on the bench. The Cubs lost the game, although they made every effort to win it.

The evidence is a letter from Otto Floto, sporting writer of a Kansas City newspaper. He says that Hendrix sent a telegram to "Frog" Thompson, a well-known sporting character of Kansas City, saying:

"Bet $5,000 on opposition."

Following a statement from White Sox headquarters repudiating the information concerning the "fixing" of White Sox players last Fall, given by H. G. Redmon of East St. Louis, Redmon has come back with a reply in which he insists he gave the White Sox management the information, mentioning the names of the men involved. He says the later indictment of these men, on no stronger evidence than he laid before the Sox management, proves his statement to be true.

A telegram from Montreal announces that Abe Attell has left that city to confer with Attorney Replogle, but the authorities here have no direct information to this effect.

Those indicted today on charges of operating baseball pools are Martin J. Carlin, proprietor of the Universal Baseball Pool; F. C. Water, who runs the American National Pool, and William Chellus, the man behind the Great Western Pool of South Chicago.

Opera

Opera is not merely a showpiece for its interpreters. It contains a situation which furnished its composer with his major inspiration. Unless you are familiar with the story, the most realistic of opera music fails of its full effect. But with the knowledge of the central dramatic theme the music is vivified. We list four books which will maintain this balance between the creators of the work and the audience.

TRILLION RUBLES IS SOVIET'S DEFICIT

HUGE PROPAGANDA FUND

It Is Equal to the Combined Expenditures for Agriculture and the Interior.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. — Figures which are regarded as clearly revealing the desperate condition of Soviet finances in Russia reached Washington today in a report based on an article appearing in Ekonomitcheskaya Zhizn, or Economic Life, published in Moscow, on Sept. 23, according to which the Soviet budget for 1920 shows an income of from 150,000,000,000 to 160,000,000,000 rubles, and expenditures of from 1,100,000,000,00 to 1,150,000,000,000 rubles. This is the credited showing, with estimates from two departments missing, and reports received from fifty different commissariats.

According to the report received today, these figures on the condition of the Bolshevist Treasury were arrived at by consolidating the statistics sent in from the various departments and the fifty different commissariats. The Departments of Justice and National Economy had not reported their estimates at the time of the publication of the article.

The report gives sample budgets of the various departments as follows:

Department of Food, 174,000,000,000 rubles.

Department of Education, including propaganda, 100,000,000,000 rubles.

Department of Communications, 70,000,000,000 rubles.

Department of Agriculture, 62,000,000,000 rubles.

Department of Social Affairs, 62,000,000,000 rubles.

Department of the Interior, 40,000,000,000 rubles.

The report continues:

"The emphasis placed by the Bolsheviki on propaganda is considered evident from the fact that the budget contemplates an expenditure for propaganda and education practically equal to the combined expenditures for agriculture and the interior. Further evidence that the financial situation is daily growing worse was revealed at the meeting of the commissaries in charge of the different banks of Petrograd, called on Oct. 8. The main subject of discussion was the lack of paper money. It was disclosed that the demand for paper money, which in the first week of September had been 2,500,000,000 rubles, had increased in the first week of October to 5,400,000 rubles."

The central bank of issue, according to the report, has consequently been unable to grant the recent demands for paper notes and has been forced to establish automatic preference for military needs. Formerly, the demand for paper money was met in considerable part by individual banks, but now they cannot supply more than 15 per cent. of the demand and the central bank of issue has not been able to absorb the remainder.

Another factor in the situation is declared to be the growing depreciation of paper money, which has led to insistent requests by the people for paper currency. It has just been decided to meet this situation by enforcing the decree of the Central Executive Committee and require payment for certain settlements to be made in kind, with goods, instead of money.

FRENCH SEEK REASON FOR BRITAIN'S STEP

Temps Asks if It Is Reply to Refusal to Meet Germans at Geneva.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—British policy toward Germany continues to be the chief topic of the French press comments. Although, as usually occurs after a bombshell of this kind, soothing statements minimizing its importance have been issued by the foreign offices, it is felt here that the speech last night of the British Finance Minister, Austen Chamberlain, settled the purpose of the British move beyond a doubt.

The Temps, whose editorial writer is understood to be in close touch with official opinion, draws the moral from Chamberlain's assertion that England would have preferred to discuss the question of renouncing her right of the seizure of German goods at Geneva, but was led to act independently because of the postponement of that conference.

"Are we to conclude," says the Temps, "that the decision of the English Government is in fact a counterblast to French opposition to the reunion at Geneva of the conference where the Germans would be admitted to discuss with the Allies the problem of reparations?"

Although Nationalist newspapers speak vaguely of "protests" to be addressed to the British Government, it seems certain, in view of the internal political situation here, that for the time being, at any rate, there will be nothing more than a request for explanations.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—French diplomatic representatives in London have been instructed by the Government to lay before the British Government the French point of view concerning the decision of the British Government to renounce the right of confiscation of German property in the United Kingdom, according to newspapers here.

SOVIET BUILDS UP ARMY.

Trotzky Points to Needs of Troops on Southern Front.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 29.—A special dispatch to the National Tidende from Helsingfors says the journals of Petrograd point out that war operations, although peace with Poland has been signed, continue on different fronts. Petulura is only awaiting the approach of Wrangel in order to attack the Bolsheviki.

According to the Krasnaja Gazetta, Trotzky points out the necessity of supplying new equipment for the Bolshevist Army in Southern Russia in order to arrest threatening dissolution.

ITALY TO SEND RICCI.

New Ambassador's Appointment Waits on Approval of United States.

ROME, Oct. 29.—The appointment of Senator Rolandi Ricci as Italian Ambassador to the United States in succession to Baron Camillo Romano Avezzana, the present Ambassador, recently reported as contemplated, is considered now as practically certain. It is understood the Government is merely waiting to learn whether Senator Ricci would be persona grata to the American Government before announcing the appointment officially.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The name of Senator Rolandi Ricci as Italian Ambassador to the United States to succeed Baron Avezzana has not been presented to the State Department, it was stated today officially.

HOSTILITY TO LENIN GROWING IN RUSSIA

But Returning French Refugees Say People Fear Worse Anarchy if He Should Fall.

REPORT KERENSKY MOVE

Paris Hears He Is Going to Moscow to Rally All Anti-Bolshevist Parties.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—Continuous news of increasing hostility in Russia to the Soviet Government is reaching Paris from many different sources, and semi-official utterance was given today to an opinion that the situation is rapidly approaching a crisis. Especially in Moscow the disturbances have become a serious menace to the régime of Lenin and Trotzky, and the city has been placed in a state of siege. Troops under command of General Djerjinsky occupy all the principal buildings, and arrests and executions have again increased to an enormous extent with the discovery of what is stated by the Moscow wireless to be a royalist plot to place Grand Duke Michael, brother of the late Czar, on the throne.

It is only force, according to French refugees who have just returned from Russia, which is keeping the Bolsheviki in power, and it is their belief that the state of affairs might degenerate after a possible Bolshevist fall into complete anarchy. One of these returned Frenchmen, who formerly had a successful business in Moscow, when asked if conditions could be worse, replied:

"Oh, yes, much worse, and the Russians know it. They are afraid that should Lenin and Trotzky fall the Red army would immediately break into separate bands of outlaws, plundering on all sides, and that what organization there is would come to an end and complete anarchy would result.

"The people have been completely cut off from the outside world so long that they don't know what is happening or the attitude of the other powers toward them. Above all, they don't know what authority there is ready to take the place of a deposed Lenin. In Moscow now no one dares speak above a whisper for fear of spies and denunciation, but the people in the other countries ought to realize how much the Russians in their hearts are longing for deliverance, which they feel themselves powerless to effect for themselves, and they know it cannot be effected from outside.

"Could they be satisfied that another revolution would lead to a better and not worse state of affairs they would, and I believe could, dispose of Lenin tomorrow. Even the Red Army isn't so reliable as it was, since the defeat by the Poles, and even it is held together much by the thought that a revolt can only entail a worse state of anarchy."

This evening's French papers carry the news that former Premier Kerensky is leaving Prague today for Warsaw, where he intends to set up a general anti-Bolshevist headquarters and take direction of a crusade against the power of Lenin and Trotzky. He is apparently in touch with all the anti-Bolshevist forces and groups, and is trying to effect a junction between the partisans of Denikin, Yudenitch, Wrangel and all others united in common cause against the Bolsheviki.

RUSSIA REVOLTS REPORTED.

Rebels Said to Have Forced Evacuation of Odessa.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 25. — A special dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende from Kovno reports that rebellions have broken out in the Odessa district and the Governments of Podolsk and Kherson. Soviet troops sent against the rebels lost half. The rebels have broken off telegraph and railway connection between Odessa and Kiev.

Evacuation of Odessa is being prepared because of risings between Odessa and Nikolaiev. The rebellion is spreading in the direction of Ekaterinoslav. The same source reports that a Bolshevist army after a defeat is retreating on Kiev.

NEW PREACHER FOR WILLIAM

Head of Herrnhueter Will Conduct Special Religious Services Sunday.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DOORN, Holland, Oct. 28.—On Oct. 31 a special religious service will be held in the ex-Kaiser's private chapel in the grounds of Doorn House, when the head of the German religious sect, the Herrnhüter, will come from Germany to officiate and be the ex-Kaiser's guest for the day. The staff and servants have all been ordered to attend the service. The Herrnhüter also have a congregation at Zeist, near Doorn.

William has decided to grow a full beard instead of the small pointed one he has lately affected. The barber, who formerly went to Doorn House daily, is now ordered to come every two weeks.

Among the numerous bouquets received on the ex-Kaiserin's birthday was one from the Krupp family.

POLISH LEADER ASKS PARLEY AT VILNA

Also Demands Withdrawal of Other Troops—Lithuania Orders Mobilization.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 29.—A dispatch from Kovno says General Zeligouski has sent the Lithuanian Government a wireless message asking it to send delegates to Vilna to negotiate an agreement. He further demands the withdrawal of Lithuanian troops behind the demarcation line of June, 1920, which means the evacuation of Lithuanian territory formerly occupied by the Poles.

It is reported that the Government will not answer Zeligouski's telegram.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—A cable message received by the Lithuanian Mission in Washington from the Lithuanian Government indicates that war is about to be resumed on a large scale between Lithuania and Poland. The dispatch follows:

"The Poles are continuing their concentration in Vilna. Troops and ammunition trains are arriving daily from Poland. A general mobilization is proceeding in Lithuania and great determination is evident in the whole country for the defense of that country's independence. In some cases aged priests have enlisted in the army. In order to check the spreading of false and inspired news, the Lithuanian Government declares that no Germans are enrolled in the Lithuanian Army, and the small detachments which crossed the border near Eydkuhnen, were disarmed and sent back. It is true, however, that a large number of Lithuanians from the Memel territory enlisted as volunteers in our army. At present all rumors of a new German invasion in Lithuania are absolutely unfounded.

"A reign of terror has been introduced in the Lithuanian district around Vilna under Polish control. Numerous acts of cruelty and extortion are reported. Many priests have been severely beaten by the Poles, one was hanged and another shot."

NO AGENT SENT TO WRANGEL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—There is no foundation for the published statement that John A. Embry of the American Consular Service has been commissioned to go to southern Russia or elsewhere as plenipotentiary to the Government of General Baron Peter Wrangel.

The American Government is not at this time sending any plenipotentiary to the Wrange Government, but it is awaiting developments in the general Russian situation, expecting that the Bolshevist regime will collapse, and that the Russian people as a whole will replace it with a Government which can speak for the Russian nation with which the great powers of the world can deal on the basis of international law and order.

Embry, who was formerly American Consul at Omsk and familiar with Russian affairs, has been transferred from Finland to Constantinople by the State Department. He has been sent there in response to a request from Admiral Newton A. McCully, the American High Commissioner in south Russia and the Crimea, with headquarters at Constantinople. Admiral McCully asked for assistance, and the department met the request by transferring Mr. Embry to Constantinople.

JAPAN DEMANDS APOLOGY BY CHINA

Charges Use of Chinese Guns in Massacre by Siberian Red Forces.

PEKING, Oct. 29 (Associated Press).—Acting on the basis of the report of a joint commission of investigation into the alleged participation of Chinese gunboats in the massacre of Japanese at Nikolaievsk, Asiatic Russia, last Spring, Japan has demanded that China express regret. She has also demanded that the Chinese naval commander apologize to the Japanese commander at Nikolaievsk, that the officers and men involved be punished and that reparation be paid to the families of alleged victims of the Chinese guns. The findings of the commission, it is stated, are being withheld by mutual agreement.

The Chinese naval vessels are alleged to have lent guns to Russian partisans for the attack on the Japanese garrison of Nikolaievsk, in which several hundred Japanese were reported to have been killed.

Giolitti Thanks American Women.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 28.—Premier Giolitti today received Mrs. John Adams Drake and Mrs. Walton Marshall of New York in order to thank them for their labors on behalf of his country. He asked Mrs. Drake to convey his expressions of gratitude to all the other members of the American Free Milk Relief for Italy. The Premier listened with keen interest to a detailed account of the distribution of American milk and the progress made by the committee on America's tribute to Italy.

BIG FRAUDS BARED IN ITALIAN INQUIRY

Three High Officials of National Oil Trust Placed Under Arrest.

WAR SWINDLES CHARGED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Oct. 29.—A judicial inquiry into the astounding frauds upon the State which are daily coming to light in almost every branch of the public service has just led to the arrest of Commendatore Alfredo Sismondi, Commendatore Egidio Gaslini and Cavaliere Giuseppe Manca, who are respectively President, Vice President and Managing Director of the National Oil Trust in Genoa, and of five oil refineries at Porto Maurizio.

Sismondi and his confederates are accused of having extended their "oil and greasing operations" to the wholesale bribery and corruption of Government functionaries through whom they obtained contracts, based on false data, for thousands of tons of vegetable and mineral oils, with resultant loss to the Government of not less than 150,000,000 lire.

According to further charges made by the law officers of the Crown, Sismondi and Gaslini exploited their departmental controllership in Rome during the war for shameless profiteering on acids and glycerine for munitions.

The charges against Manca are particularly grave. He began his career as an obscure clerk of the Rome Ministry of Agriculture. On being transferred to the Oil Commissariat he came under Sismondi's influence, and when his misdeeds threatened to result in exposure asked leave to resign. Thereupon Sismondi called him to Porto Maurizio and created for him the post of manager of the Sairo refineries. Manca forthwith threw caution to the winds and built himself a splendid villa at that watering place. Later he returned to Rome as head of the Oil Commissariat, and finally the National Oil Trust rewarded him for his frauds in their favor by appointing him their director at a princely salary.

When the Roman journal, the Epoca, first divulged the frauds, Manca had the impudence to start legal proceedings, and the Directors of the Oil Trust flooded the newspaper offices with blatant professions of innocence and patriotic service, citing a number of leading manufacturers to testify in their behalf. But, as the Sairo Trust, founded in 1912, was in desperate straits on the eve of the war and yet has managed to increase its original £20,000 capital to £6,400,000, suspicion was aroused at the way in which its officials were importuning the Government for urgent liquidation of outstanding accounts. Hence the case was ultimately adjourned for more thorough judicial investigation, the results of which are here epitomized.

The property of the incriminated companies, including gasoline and candle factories at Bozen, those of the Grain Trust and the Rivarolo and Porto Maurizio refineries, have been sequestrated; the offices and residences of the accused officials in Genoa have been ransacked and sealed up, and vast quantities of documents have been seized, together with all their credits and deposits at the Rome Commissariat of Supplies, which amount to £1,680,000.

PAUL PROCLAIMED, REGENT SWORN IN Greek Government Awaits Reply of Constantine on Conditions Presented to Him.

ATHENS, Oct. 28.—Prince Paul, younger brother of the late King Alexander, was proclaimed King by the Greek Parliament this evening. Earlier in the session Admiral P. Coundouriotis was elected Regent. Prince Paul was born in this city, Dec. 1, 1901, and is not married. Since his father, former King Constantine, left Greece,, Prince Paul has been with him in Switzerland.

Criticism of the Government's policy in making Prince Paul's accession to the throne conditional was answered in the Parliament by Premier Venizelos with the declaration that it was intended that if Prince Paul were made King he should not be a proxy for ex-King Constantine.

Nothing has been announced as yet regarding any replies Prince Paul or former King Constantine may have sent to the Government communications informing them that Prince Paul's accession depended upon the formal renunciation by Constantine and his eldest son, Prince George, of all claims to the Hellenic throne. No replies, in fact, are expected until after the funeral of ex-King Alexander Friday, it is said.

LUCERNE, Oct. 29.—"There has been no official communication between former King Constantine of Greece and the Greek Government, and no decision regarding the course to be taken by Prince Paul in connection with the Greek throne," said Professor eGorgios Streit, former Greek Foreign Minister, to The Associated Press today.

Persons close to the former King say the family is indignant, charging that the Greek Government did not facilitate the journey of the Queen Dowager from Brindisi, and that consequently she arrived at Athens ten hours after Alexander's death. Complaint is also made that the request of former Queen Sophie, that she be allowed to nurse her son, was not answered. Former King Constantine and the former Queen are suffering greatly from shock. They receive no visitors. Messages of sympathy have been sent to them from rulers of various countries. Two masses were said today for King Alexander.

Constantine, according to members of his staff, insists that he has not abdicated, but places himself in the hands of the Greek people. He is said to entertain hope that if the coming elections are not controlled by the party of Premier Venizelos the dynasty will be restored.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 29.—Ex-King Constantine has telegraphed me from Lucerne that hitherto he has received no official information concerning plans for placing Prince Paul on the Greek throne on condition that Constantine and Prince George abandon all claims thereto. At present Constantine and Ex-Queen Sophie have shut themselves up in their apartments alleging that they are too much overwhelmed by grief over the death of Alexander to see correspondents.

From Constantine's intimates I learn that he has not abandoned the hope of once more wearing the Greek crown.

THE PRESIDENT'S BELIEF.

"You have spoken truly and fearlessly about the great issues at stake," says President WILSON in his letter of Oct. 29 to Governor Cox, "and I believe you will receive the emphatic indorsement of the voters of the country."

Governor Cox will receive a vote of confidence from his countrymen who in their choice of candidates are guided by a wise solicitude for the welfare of this country, for its interests at home and for its relations abroad. Certain racial groups, misled about the bearing of this election upon the countries of their origin, are being persuaded to give their votes to Mr. HARDING. The support of these elements is the basis of Republican confidence. If the electorate were to be guided altogether by considerations of the interest, the honor and the security of this country, we have no doubt that Mr. Cox would be triumphantly elected.

Great numbers of Republicans have come to the support of Governor Cox. The Republicans have always boasted that theirs was the party of intelligence. By reason of their high intelligence and standing these Republicans who refuse to support Senator HARDING belong to just that class which was felt to justify the boast that intelligence and Republicanism were practically interchangeable terms. These men and women have been able to state with unmistakable clearness their reason for espousing the Democratic cause. They believe the League Covenant to be the great charter of peace and security; they reject Mr. HARDING because he rejects the Covenant, turns his back upon the League. "It is not interpretation but rejection I am seeking," he says. "I am in favor of going in," said Mr. Cox.

Those utterances, announcing directly opposite sympathies and purposes, have been determining with multitudes of voters. The number of Republicans who have announced their intention to vote for Governor Cox is far greater than the number of those who took part in the Mugwump defection of 1884. In that year the result was determined by the Mugwump vote, Mr. CLEVELAND was elected. Of the vote cast this year upon an intelligent understanding and candid judgment of American issues, Mr. Cox will have a notable majority.

BRIGHTER SKIES IN MEXICO.

Mexicans justly feel that the salient facts about the condition of their country tell the story of a great transformation. There was a bona fide election for President on the first Sunday in September, when General OBREGON received more than a million votes. The new President will be inaugurated on Dec. 1. GOMEZ MORIN, Secretary to the Minister of Finance, SALVADOR ALVARADO, estimates that the number of men in arms against the Government has been reduced to twenty. From the advent of DIAZ in 1876 down to the present day no such thing could have been said before. But it is probably true, and may long remain so, if President OBREGON rules wisely. When FRANCISCO VILLA turns farmer on a Government pension, and when FELIX DIAZ abandons conspiracy for residence abroad by gracious permission of a Government that has rid itself of all other troublesome politicians, including PABLO GONZALES, the time has come for peace and the day's work in Mexico.

Señor MORIN states that all the railroads are now running without military protection and furnishing transportation at reasonable cost. Crops are increasing, factories are opening in towns where a wheel had not turned for years, and merchants are ordering goods with assurance that they will be delivered. Mexican promoters are coming to New York for loans and getting them. The mines can be worked again without fear of raids by bandits. New banks are being started. What is of special significance is that the provisional administration is commanding the services for the first time in Mexican history of highly trained and progressive men. When payment on the interest of the national debt is resumed, which promises to be soon, because revenue is flowing in, Mexico will no longer be a petitioner for loans. Even the agrarian problem is being solved by the division of the great ranches into small farms; with irrigation, which is promised by the Government, Mexico should become self-supporting.

There are two dangers to Mexico: agrarian agitation and hostility to foreign investors. With both removed and a stable administration at the capital, the imagination can set no bounds to the development of the country.

THE GENERAL HOLD-UP.

Large as are the sums mentioned in the testimony before the Lockwood committee as having been paid in graft, they fade before the enormity of BRINDELL'S operations as a whole. Already it is evident that no element in the public has escaped his exactions, or the results of them.

Employers and employés were mulcted alike. Small contractors whose entire capital was in their equipment testify that they were literally put out of business because they had not the ready money to meet BRINDELL'S demands. "I am bankrupt now," said JACOB FRADUS; "I am here to tell the truth. You can't do me good or harm. I am done for." Two construction companies whose names are familiar throughout the country appear as having had to pay thousands and tens of thousands in order to proceed with their business. Upon labor the burden fell with equal or greater weight. "Hold-up" strikes were called right and left and the men had to pay the cost in idleness. Experienced workmen, members of long-standing unions, were forced out of employment because they were not members of BRINDELL'S duplicate and "outlaw" union; their places were taken by ex-dishwashers and park-bench residents until they capitulated to the demand of an entrance fee of $50 and a weekly tax of $10 each on their wages. And the American Federation of Labor found no means of checking the outrage.

Ultimately, of course, the public pays a large portion of these exactions, and especially the poor. It pays it in the lack of housing and in increased rentals for the old, squalid tenements in which it is forced to live; it pays it in overcrowding, in unseemly and demoralizing living conditions, in an increased infant mortality and in the uncontrolled spread of contagious disease. Most of all, the public pays in a lowering of moral standards, in a sense of general and inevitable corruption. "What's the use?" said one witness who remembered SAM PARKS. "If it ain't BRINDELL it will be some one else."

When employers and workmen alike are involved — and involved both as victims and as accomplices—there is small occasion for the casting of stones. It may be pointed out, however, merely as a matter of fact, that the material loss falls chiefly upon labor. Recent advances in wage scales must have been very effectually balanced by the "rake-off" of the Building Trades Council and by the loss of wages in hold-up strikes.

In the whole monstrous affair there is only one bright spot. Though BRINDELL'S control was of iron, and though he was extending his grip throughout the country, his reign lasted just one year. His undoing, which bids fair to be as complete as it is sudden, is the result of one thing—publicity. "I never knew of such a situation," said an engineer employed by a great firm of contractors; "I never heard or saw anything like it." If the Lockwood committee ends as it has begun, we need never see anything like it again. Employers and employés alike will discover that there is a speedy and sufficient remedy in the courts; that "such a situation" has only to be revealed to be ended.

COOLIDGE VS. HARDING.

"I myself," declared Governor COOLIDGE in Carnegie Hall, "did not believe—do not believe—that the "Covenant intended to create a super-government." I believed then and "now that it was intended to be in "essence a compact." This is pretty near treason-felony. Has the Governor of Massachusetts never read Senator HARDING'S speech of acceptance, in which he asserted in so many words that the Covenant "was conceived for world super-government"? And does not the Republican candidate for the Vice Presidency know that the Republican candidate for the Presidency has repented that charge in speech after speech? Something would appear to be going wrong with Republican team-play.

The inference is plain that the Republican Party has taken a leaf out of the book of the late JAY GOULD. He once said that he was a Republican in Republican counties, a Democrat in Democratic counties, and in all counties was for the Erie Railroad. Where sentiment appears to be against the League, the Republicans are violently against it; but where the people are known to be for it, the Republicans are its stanchest upholders. Thus, when Governor COOLIDGE affirmed the readiness of the Republican Party to "take the good in that Treaty and that Covenant," the utterance, according to The Tribune's report, "caused "an outburst of applause which compelled Governor COOLIDGE to stand "silent." No doubt the amiable and pliable Senator HARDING would have joined in the applause if he had been present. But would HIRAM JOHNSON? He would have wanted to know who was being fooled.

ENDING THE BRITISH COAL STRIKE.

The exact terms of settlement to be voted upon by the British miners, which they are confidently counted upon to accept, are not made clear by the dispatches. All will depend upon what guarantee of increased output the Government has secured, and upon the nature and authority of the official board that is to decide all wage questions in the future. From the first the Government was willing to grant the demand of the men for two shillings more a day, on condition that production were kept up to a certain level, so that the Government cannot be accused of surrendering. Doubtless it did agree to a compromise in the matter of determining the amount of coal mined and fixing a sliding scale of wages hereafter. Meanwhile, the price of coal to the consumer is not to be advanced.

The strike itself was never so serious as was the fear of what lay behind it. The restless spirits among the leaders of the miners undoubtedly hoped for a general strike. For a time, indeed, it looked as if the railway men and transport workers would strike in sympathy. And behind all loomed the "Council of Action." This was formed on Aug. 9 by labor leaders, immediately and ostensibly for the purpose of preventing a war with Russia on behalf of Poland, and also the shipment of munitions to Poland. A general strike was to be the means of coercing the Government. But a document fell into the hands of the authorities showing that the organization under the Council of Action was intended for "the struggle "that is to come, whether by reason "of the present position [i. e., the "Polish crisis] or later on." The question has been whether this later on would not arrive with the coal strike. That fear has been dispelled for the time being. But the fact is established that a revolutionary animus has fastened upon many British laboring men. It might appear in threatening form if there should have to be next Spring, under the agreement, a reduction in the miners' wages. Then the Government and the public would have to meet it with unyielding determination.

AN UNCONSCIOUS BURCHARD.

A supreme example of unintended humor is furnished by Harvey's Weekly for Oct. 30. "We are now in the last week of the campaign," it says, "and the hoped-for Burchard-"ism has not appeared on the Republican side." This from the perpetrator of the most tremendous Burchardism ever heard of! The statement quoted was printed just when the country was ringing with the political stupidity of the sacrilegious cartoon in Harvey's Weekly and when Chairman HAYS and Senator HARDING himself were denouncing and repudiating it.

JUSTICES OF THE FIRST DISTRICT

In the First Judicial District, consisting of Manhattan and the Bronx, nine Justices of the Supreme Court are to be elected next Tuesday. Five of the sitting Justices, ERLANGER, FORD, GIEGERICH, GUY, PLATZEK, are indorsed by both parties, and will be re-elected. The names of these five have both the party emblems, the eagle and the star, before their names and after them the words "Republican" and "Democratic." Voters should not be confused by this and make the error of voting only for the four candidates who have but the single emblem and the single party description on the ticket. They should vote for nine candidates, not for four merely.

Of the four Democratic candidates, Justice BURR and Justice MCGOLDRICK, who had excellent records before their appointment to the bench and have served on it with distinguished competence, learning and integrity, should be elected. They are approved by the Bar Association and the Citizens Union. Both for their personal merit and professional accomplishments, and for the maintenance of the principle and practice of keeping on the bench, without consideration of politics, Judges whose service has been unexceptionable, Justice BURR and Justice MCGOLDRICK should be elected. Of the other Democratic candidates, FRANCIS MARTIN, District Attorney of the Bronx, has received the high approval of the Bar Association, which describes him as "a learned and competent lawyer." And District Attorney SWANN is sufficiently well known in this community. He deserves to be beaten soundly.

Of the four Republican candidates JAMES O'MALLEY, formerly an Assistant District Attorney of this county, and since 1917 a Special Deputy Attorney General of the State, is called "exceptionally competent" by the Bar Association, and ROBERT MCC. MARSH, a Major in the American Expeditionary Force, is a lawyer of high standing! Every voter must be careful to vote for nine candidates. Five of these are on both tickets. Two of the worthiest, MCGOLDRICK and BURR, are on the Democratic ticket only. As to the two others to be elected, the voter's preference will not go far wrong in any case provided he doesn't vote for the promotion of Mr. SWANN.

CONGRESSMAN GOLDFOGLE.

In the Twelfth District Congressman HENRY M. GOLDFOGLE deserves and should have the support of all his constituents. He is the candidate of the Democrats and the Republicans. He has served eight terms in Congress, from 1901 to 1915 and since 1918. He has been a faithful worker, has done good service, notably in connection with the bill to increase the compensation of postal employés.

His opponent is MEYER LONDON, who has the support of the Socialists. It would be an exchange altogether to the disadvantage of the Twelfth District to give to a Socialist the seat so long occupied by Mr. GOLDFOGLE, who was born in this city and who is a man of American convictions and of American understanding. His nomination by both parties, Republicans and Democrats, should assure his election.

FARMERS AS PRICE FIXERS.

The President of the American Cotton Association has telegraphed to the Governors of fourteen cotton States proposing that they call special sessions of the Legislatures to fix the price of cotton. The method would be tax penalties for those who plant more acres than the agreed average and tax exemptions for those who reduce their plantings. The farmers are holding mass meetings in support of the idea, and some Governors are predisposed in favor of similar action. The Governor of Louisiana has appealed to the cotton ginners to stop work for a month in order to raise the price of cotton, but the Governors of South Carolina and Texas decline to back him up.

If the price of cotton is below the cost of production, there is no need of legislation to restrict acreage. That will come about automatically, and more surely than through legislation. There is the same defect in laws regulating prices that there is in combinations for the purpose. If economically wrong, they are sure to be evaded or to prove unenforceable. If there are conspiracies to reduce the price of cotton, they are as obnoxious and harmful as conspiracies to raise the price of cotton by compelling restrictions on its production. The National Board of Farm Organizations does not think that the grain markets are free and fair. Accordingly it is preparing a petition to Congress to abolish trading in grain on the exchanges, because the speculators make the prices without producing the grain. Speculators have no power over prices unless they are right in their judgment of supply and demand, and in that case they perform a public service by their operations. If they are wrong, they are punished by their losses. Representative FULLER months ago introduced a bill proposing that prices of common commodities shall be regulated by a commission, in the manner that railway and public utility rates are regulated. This is too absurd to be discussed seriously, though it is well meant. The idea of United States Senator SMITH seems otherwise. He announces that on the first day after Congress meets he will introduce a bill to deprive the Federal Reserve of the discretion recently shown in refusing further to inflate bank credits for the benefit of agriculturists and the injury of consumers by substituting "shall" for "may" in the provision of the law regulating farm credits.

REVISIONISTS.

There was a convention of German bankers at Hamburg last week. Mr. MAX WARBURG was one of the chief speakers, and pleased his audience immensely with the declaration that "the Peace Treaty, based solely "on destructive tendencies and lacking in any constructive ideas, cannot last any length of time." Recovery, he added, was impossible until the great nations realized that the world was one single economic community. That the Treaty must be revised was the conclusion reached at a notable convention of German monarchists at Hanover a few days ago. Herr HELFFERICH and Field Marshal von HINDENBURG were the most prominent figures, and both expressed sentiments which suited their hearers very well. But the most highly applauded of all was the former Minister, Dr. HERGT, who declared that "we do not merely request revision "of the Treaty—we demand it. We "still maintain that we were not responsible for the war." He was full of admiration for "Orgesch," the political wheel within a wheel which has obtained a pretty complete control of Bavaria, and pointed ahead to the bright future when a similarly organized Prussia would join hands with Bavaria in bringing back the Hohenzollerns, forming a Russian alliance, and recovering the losses of the recent war.

German Kaiserites and German bankers are talking revision. But there is nothing new in their arguments; we have heard them all, long ago, from British and American radicals. Their demands are virtually identical: exculpation and freedom from indemnity for Germany, with the penalty to be borne by France and Belgium and Poland. If there must be an indemnity, let America pay it, as Mr. KEYNES proposed. It is a queer alliance; it is also a one-sided alliance. We do not know that Prussian reactionaries have ever done anything to forward the purposes of British and American liberals, but British and American liberals have furnished very considerable assistance to Prussian reactionaries.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Situation in Need of Mending.

Besides illustrating the somewhat astonishing difference between our methods of conducting a criminal trial, the proceedings at Bologna against the man COCCHI, the almost self-confessed and now convicted murderer of RUTH CRUGER, also present new proofs that Italy and the United States somehow should come to a more sensible arrangement than now prevails between them for the return by each to the other of fugitives from justice.

To extradite men under accusations involving peril to their lives on trial in a foreign court is now forbidden by the Italian Constitution. This prohibition is based, probably, on the fact that capital punishment was long since abolished in Italy, rather than on any suspicion that an Italian cannot get a fair trial in the countries where that penalty still is inflicted. But refusal to extradite, no matter how good the prima facie case abroad may be, is a frequent cause of irritation, for it suggests an implied criticism, a tacit assertion of superiority, that is hard to bear anywhere and is only justifiable when there is reasonable basis for suspicion that the courts of a country cannot be trusted to deal honestly with foreigners.

That a man accused of crime should be tried near the scene of its alleged commission is a fundamental principle of justice, as it is of law. That COCCHI preferred to be tried as far as possible from this city is comprehensible enough, but his preference is a negligible factor in the case, and the course of his trial has developed no slightest evidence that he has profited by what he had supposed or hoped would be the difficulty of bringing witnesses against him so far. The testimony offered has made him as abhorred in Bologna as he would have been in New York, and, according to all accounts, between a sentence to twenty-seven years' imprisonment in Italy and one to the electric chair here the difference is not in favor of the former, even from the standpoint of a murderer.

His Excuse Cannot Be Accepted.

Californians will note with displeasure that practically the only plea made in extenuation of COCCHI'S crime was to the effect that just before the murder was committed the man had drunk five glasses of Californian wine. That statement, as an excuse, or even as an explanation, of a particularly heinous crime would have grieved the vine-growers of the Golden State in the other days when they turned their grapes into real wine, such as it was, instead of into a sadly innocent imitation of that wine's appearance. Now they will not mind so much the Bolognese lawyer's dreadful reflection on their art and their product. Still, they will resent it as undeserved, and so it was, for innumerable persons have partaken of the Californian vintages and yet successfully restrained, if they felt it, the impulse to kill.

And that Californian wine had merits as well as faults was proved conclusively by the fact that not only were great quantities of it consumed under its own name, but other great quantities, and possibly even greater, passed muster as of Italian or French origin. Perhaps the prosecuting attorney in Bologna had that in mind when he said that it took something worse than any wine to inspire such a dastardly deed as COCCHI'S.

A Case of Arrested Development.

All that the American press can do with respect to the quarrel over circulation figures into which the London papers have fallen is to note with sincere grief the fact that the amenities of journalism thus should be forgotten in the British capital.

In other and cruder days, like disputes were common here. They gave, probably, a certain joy to a considerable part of the observing public, just as does any fight, whether between men or dogs. Probably, too, there still are Londoners who take a cheerful interest in an interchange of aspersions between their newspapers, but the more truly virtuous of them must be made sorrowful by the spectacle.

Over here such disputes have ceased, for everybody who will can know the exact average for each six months of every paper's circulation, all signed, sworn and sealed. Whether because falsification in the making of these revelations would be dangerous and expensive, or because, as can and should be believed, all impulse toward unveracity (in this particular respect) has died out in American journalistic circles, the semi-annual depositions are accepted as conclusive. To us, therefore, the report of this new war in London is a reminder of a dark age, its sins remembered only with the sort of remorse that is felt by sinners long reformed.

The New Theatre Purpose.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial article captioned "Mecca" in today's NEW YORK TIMES you state that, though the Century Theatre was originally built as a "temple to the drama," it has now become the home of "gorgeous spectacles, of music and song, of youth and beauty in choragic revels," and follow this statement by the assertion that "this frustration of high enterprise is not blamable upon public taste." In this many theatregoers heartily concur. There is a real need as well as an insistent demand in New York for a playhouse where the best in English drama can be suitably revived and properly portrayed. It has frequently been said that had Heinrich Conried lived he could have achieved the original purpose of the New Theatre, of which he was the inspiration. He would have effectively and successfully presented the great dramas with which English literature abounds. We find a worthy successor of Heinrich Conried in Morris Gest, whose magnificent production of "Mecca" has met with a warmth of praise and genuine admiration on the part of critics, producers and the public never before known in the history of the American stage and marked him a genius and a wizard.

Is it not possible Mr. Gest can revive the aims and purposes which caused the Century project to come into existence? J. A. O.

DENIAL FOR CANTACUZENE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE NEW YORK TIMES on Oct. 27 printed a report of a court proceeding in which it was alleged that out of funds allocated by the Russian Government to make payments in the United States an allowance was paid among others to Prince Cantacuzene, son-in-law of the late General Frederick D. Grant. The statement concerning my husband is absolutely false.

Prince Cantacuzene has been in America since February, 1918. In all that time he has never requested, received, nor has it been suggested that he should receive any money from any source Russian, whether the Embassy here or any other Russian group in America. He was for six months doing military service for Admiral Kolchak, part of that time in Siberia and part of the time in America. The period during which this service lasted was from the end of September, 1919, until the first of May, 1920, and during that time he drew his pay as Major General in the Russian army from the funds which would seem to have belonged to the Kolchak Government here. This military pay for his services was handed him by the financial attaché in America. When his special mission came to an end the pay stopped.

Prince Cantacuzene has never been attached to the Embassy in Washington, nor has he ever asked for anything from the Ambassador there—and while he and I have had a social acquaintance both with the Ambassador and the financial attaché, in no way at any time has it been a source of income to my husband or myself.

We should like to make this known to the public as well as the fact that we know nothing of any disputes which may arise or have arisen between claimants on Embassy funds and the Russian Embassy in Washington.

Farmers' Credit Organizations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Certainly, as THE TIMES says today, it is "undesirable that the representatives of the agricultural interests should leave Washington and spread through the country the idea that they are discriminated against by the money power." It is unfortunately true, however, that they will leave Washington with just that conviction.

The present conditions play completely into the hands of speculative buyers, who, being in commercial relations with the banks, find it possible to arrange credits where farmers are unable to do so. This is a condition, of course, that has existed for years, and is perhaps the principal cause for the big profits of the middlemen, made at the one end out of the farmers by buying their crops at ruinously low figures (owing to the farmers' need for cash) and at the other end out of the consumers by hoarding products and thereby controlling market prices.

Fortunately, the farmers are at last learning their lesson and learning it fast. Their co-operative marketing organizations are being formed all over the country along sound business lines, and, with their own packing houses and the employment of efficient marketing machinery, are becoming able to stabilize the output and command the confidence of and hence secure the needed credit from the banks.

This is a much better solution than that of relying on the Government for aid, and, while in the opinion of the writer the Federal Reserve system should have responded to the farmer's plea for aid in the present emergency, it is probably better in the long run that he should be forced to rely upon himself and more quickly develop his co-operative marketing organizations, which, by eliminating the speculators, will both increase the farmer's profits and decrease the consumer's expenses.

Alsace-Lorraine as an Issue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In trying to find a reason for the almost unanimous opposition of the German voters in the United States to the League I have come to the conclusion that the chief reason is that the Versailles Treaty ceded Alsace-Lorraine to France and that Article X. of the League guarantees the territory of France as fixed by the treaty from external aggression. Should the United States ratify the treaty and enter the League it would mean that Germany could never recover her lost territory by conquest. With the United States remaining outside the League and forced to make a separate treaty with her, Germany will immediately entertain the hope that she may recover Alsace-Lorraine through a future war with France.

I have reason to believe that the German voters in the United States are in sympathy with this idea, and if through their votes we are kept out of the League what will the future have in store for us—war or peace?

Italy's Denial on Coal Contracts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Oct. 21 some newspapers of this city published a dispatch from London under the headline, "Italy to Get Argentina's Contracts for U. S. Coal."

In this telegram Signor Sitta, the Under Secretary of Transports of the Italian Government at Rome, was quoted as stating that Italy had taken over from Argentina and Brazil contracts placed in the United States amounting to several thousand tons of coal, and further, that Italy was covering her need for this Winter by hurriedly arranged contracts.

Upon reading the above I immediately communicated with Rome, and this morning received a cable from Signor Sitta in which the Secretary affirms that the above report is quite erroneous and denies making any of the statements attributed to him.

I shall appreciate your courtesy in publishing this letter so that the false impression which the report must have created may be corrected.

A SONG OF THE YEARS AND STELLA.

In those mystic early years
Brimmed with love and holy joy,
Joy that no invading fears
Even briefly could destroy—
In those years a tricksy sprite
Watched with hazel eyes and wide
For my coming every night
Only to run off and hide!
Then a fruitless quest, while I (Always near the little fawn)
To her great delight would cry:
"Mother, where's our baby gone?"

Other years have come and brought
Other and maturer joys,
Other fears some ravage wrought
In our happy equipoise.
But through all a presence bright
Gave each day a golden crown!
Stella! When she stooped tonight—
Radiant in her first long gown—
Stooped for an approving kiss,
Lo, sweet Womanhood's fair dawn
I beheld—and murmured this:
"Mother, where's our baby gone?"

Always on Life's tortuous stream
Drifts a fleet of sombre sail;
Always in the lanes of dream
Stalks some spectre cold and pale.
Discipline us as you will
Ruthless Fates, but spare our child!
Father, keep her near us still,
Innocent and undefiled!
May I, fervently I pray,
Till the last weak breath be drawn,
Never with misgiving say:

YOUNG JEWS HONOR MEMORY OF SCHIFF

Services Held in Great Hall of the Y. M. H. A., of Which He Was a Benefactor.

NOTED RABBIS ARE HEARD

"His Death Is Israel's Sorrow," Says Dr. Samuel Schulman—Held Up as Example.

The auditorium of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, at Lexington Avenue and Ninety-second Street, was filled last evening with Jewish men and women at a memorial service held for Jacob H. Schiff.

An eulogy was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman, rabbi of Temple Beth-El and long the close friend of Mr. Schiff. There were shorter addresses by the Rev. Dr. Jacob Kohn, rabbi of Congregation Anshe Hesed, and by Justice Irving Lehman, who is President of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. H. A. Both Rabbi Kohn and Rabbi Schulman are members of the board.

In the front row sat Mr. and Mrs. Felix M. Warburg, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Schiff, with their two children.

On the platform was a large photograph of Mr. Schiff resting on an American flag draped with black. The walls back of the platform were draped with American flags draped with mourning.

The presiding officer was Rabbi Lee J. Levinger, director of religious activities of the Y. M. H. A. The musical part of the service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Simon Schlager, cantor at Temple Emanu-El, of which Mr. Schiff was a member.

Friday Ritual Recited.

The service opened with the regular Friday evening ritual, led by Rabbi Schlager. A special musical service was rendered by the Y. M. H. A. choir. The congregation joined with the choisters in singing Gotthell's "Come, O Sabbath Day and Bring Peace and Healing on Thy Wing." Rose Kantor-Brod sang a solo, "The Lord Is My Shepherd." The closing hymn was, "Cast Thy Burden Upon the Lord," by Mendelssohn, sung by the Y. M. H. A. Choral Society with A. W. Binder as director. After the hymn the rabbis and the congregation recited the Kaddish.

"Schiff prayed daily," he said. "He was regular in his attendance at Sabbath services. He observed all our holidays. He loved the Bible and Jewish literature. No one is truly a great Jew whose Judaism is only that of the blood that they cannot deny.

"The heritage of Judaism that came to Jacob H. Schiff he earned himself. It became a spiritual possession. Mr. Schiff belonged to the Reformed Branch of Judaism, but he was also in sympathy with the Orthodox branch. He had a keen love for the ancient heritage of our faith.

"Nothing in Jewish was alien to the heart of Mr. Schiff. He supported the Hebrew Union College and the Jewish Thelogical Seminary of America. He made possible the new English version of our Scriptures.

"Mr. Schiff brought honor to the Jew because of his worldwide influence. We have too few men who take their religion with them to the pinnacle on which they have been placed.

His Death Israel's Sorrow.

"Jacob H. Schiff is gone. The crown of our head is fallen. We have lost the crown of the Jewish community. He embodied the best influences of Judaism of his generation. No man can take his place because there is no man who combines all his qualities and all his interests.

"He is gone, and not so soon will we see a man like him. A new generation will produce its own leaders. Mr. Schiff was a tower of strength to many. He was our broad-minded friend and guide. His death is Israel's sorrow. Jacob, our Jacob, is not dead. He lives in our hearts—in the hearts of the Jewish people.

"Young men should be inspired by this man to strive to achieve to the highest Jewish manhood, which is the heritage of the Jewish faith, the faith to which Mr. Schiff was ever loyal. The memory of Jacob H. Schiff is a blessing."

Dr. Schulman told of personal incidents in the life of Mr. Schiff. He told of meeting Mr. Schiff on the Third Avenue "L."

"Schiff was a strap-hanger, to which company I also belonged," said the rabbi. Mr. Schiff told him he was going to attend three meetings and would arrive at the Montefiore Home late. "Tell them I will be in, please," he said to Dr. Schulman.

"It is proper that we should voice our sorrow at the passing away of our beloved friend and to speak our high pride and reverent joy in the life of one who though dead lives as an immortal possession of the people of Israel.

Schiff a Great American.

"Jacob H. Schiff left word that no eulogy be spoken at his funeral, and this request was respected. It was the natural expression of the modesty of the man. It is our privilege tonight, under the auspices of this association, which is the product of his benefaction, to seek inspiration from this great man. Jacob H. Schiff was a great man, a great American and a great Jew. Jewish young men not only in this country but all over the world will draw inspiration from his life for their lives.

"The financial genius of Mr. Schiff was world embracing. It was his part to play a great rôle in the financial world. The leadership of Jacob H. Schiff was world-wide.

"We did not come together tonight just to mourn the loss or sound the praise of this benefactor of mankind, but to learn lessons by which to live our own lives the better.

"Mr. Schiff was a great personality. He thought clearly and he spoke fearlessly. He was a fine incarnation of the Jewish mind. He was a man of vision, of idealism. He remained a perennial idealist. He was guided by a great vision of betterment for Israel and his fellowmen. He was not only a clear thinker, but he was an energetic doer. And he was a man of big heart. He loved his fellowmen. His philanthropy did not mean only the giving of money: it was the outpouring of personal sympathy. His recreations were almost altogether his public services.

Happy When Helping Sick.

"I think Schiff was never happier than when at the Montefiore Home among the sick, talking with them and praying with them. He was a man with whom no one would take liberties. But he was easily accessible. He loved and admired all men and women who did good. He had only one criterion and that was the sincerity of service. He was a man of fine courtesy. He was always considerate.

"Mr. Schiff had a deep humility. He was great because he was strong. He exacted the highest service from himself. When he once gave his confidence he never withdrew it. He did not expect men always to think like him, but what he demanded was sincerity."

Rabbi Kohn spoke as Chairman of the Religious Department of the Y. M. H. A. Dr. Kohn said it was his privilege to speak of the great Jew whom God had so recently called to his eternal reward. Rabbi Konn also dwelt upon the modesty of Mr. Schiff. It was not as the great benefactor, the philanthropist, the champion of his race that the friends were gathered to mourn, but rather the man himself who was welcomed wherever Jews met, the rabbi declared.

"Mr. Schiff was not a name or a power; he was an individual," said Dr. Kohn. "He was a companion, a man who worked with the people. The woes and aspirations of Israel were his concern.

"Mr. Schiff was a generous supporter of Jewish learning and Jewish scholarship. These institutions will go on doing their work with power because of his life. He was a genuine Jew."

"Jacob H. Schiff, the wise counselor, is dead, but he still lives and will always live in grateful hearts," said Justice Lehman. "We can honor his memory by keeping his spirit alive. Twenty years ago when the Y. M. H. A. was a small organization the President of it went with his burden to Mr. Schiff. And Mr. Schiff forthwith generously erected this splendid building.

"Jacob H. Schiff was a stalwart Jew, teaching the Gentile to respect the Jew and the Jew to respect himself. Loving his country, he tried at all times to keep his country true to the ideals on which it was founded. With us lies the responsibility of keeping the spirit of Mr. Schiff alive."

Jewish Boy Scouts acted as ushers. Aside from the young people prominent adults were present, including Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Hanauer and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Straus.

TWO GET NOBEL PRIZES.

Dr. Bordet of Brussels and Prof. Krogh of Copenhagen Honored.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 29.—A special to the Berlingske from Stockholm says that Dr. Jules Bordet of Brussels has been awarded the Nobel Prize for Medicine for 1919 and Professor August Krogh of Copenhagen the same prize for 1920.

Dr. Jules Bordet of Brussels, who has received the Nobel prize for 1919 in medicine, recently established the fact that the union of a toxin with an anti-toxin was physical rather than chemical, the toxin's molecule, which is the smaller, being enveloped by the molecule of the anti-toxin, which is the larger. He is also part discoverer of the Bordet-Gengon bacillus, a minute ovoid organism supposed to be pathogenic in whooping-cough, and of the Bordet-Gengon phenomenon, a test to determine whether or not a person contains amboceptors or intermediary bodies.

Professor August Krogh is a well-known oceanographer, who proved that alkalinity in sea water is greatly increased by the admixture of land water—a proof confirmed by the experiments of Professor E. Ruppin in his analysis of the water of the Baltic Sea.

The Nobel Prizes in physics, chemistry, medicine, literature and peace, were established by the will of Alfred B. Nobel, the Swedish scientist and inventor of dynamite, who died in 1896. The prize in medicine was last awarded to Dr. R. Barany of Augusta in 1914.

LOAN TO HAITI CONSIDERED.

American Financial Adviser Advocates $15,000,000 Advance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Consideration of a loan to be asked by the Haitian Government was begun today by John A. McIlhenny, American Financial Adviser in Haiti, and the State Department.

Mr. McIlhenny recommended to Under Secretary Davis, who represented the department, the early flotation of a loan of at least $15,000,000 so that the Haitians might obtain the advantage of the low rate of foreign exchange. Because a great part of the Haitian debt was contracted in Europe, principally in France, where the franc now is quoted at approximately one-third of its normal value, prompt payment would save the republic many millions of dollars. The amount owed to France was stated to be about 75,000,000 francs.

ANOTHER MILLION CUT FROM BUDGET

AUTOMOBILES UP AGAIN

After a meeting which lasted until after nightfall, the Board of Estimate cut about $1,000,000 from the budget yesterday. The amount lopped off up to date is $5,170,342, and the board will probably have to meet Sunday to finish its work within the limit set by the charter. In the work of cutting there were the usual tilts between members of the board. A resolution by the Mayor that all salaries be reduced to the amounts prevailing on Aug. 20, with the exception of those where increases were mandatory, was adopted, and thereafter any changes that might have disguised salary raises were opposed by the majority in the board.

The first department to be considered was the Department of Finance. The Controller read a statement consenting to a reduction of $97,879. Of this amount $93,879 was for the personal service account and $4,000 for equipment and supplies. When this cut had been agreed upon by the board, Borough President Curran pressed a motion to cut out actuary auditors and some others and Aldermanic President La Guardia wanted other employes dropped. The motions were lost.

The discussion then turned on the Controller's city-owned automobile, why it was not kept in the city garage and the cost of upkeep. President LaGuardia asked most of the questions. He wanted to have deducted the $500 paid to keep it in a private garage. The discussion was under way when Joseph Rock, who holds the garage contract, asked to be heard. He said he was no favorite of Controller Craig and that he had twice unsuccessfully bid for the contract before he got it. He got the contract, he said, when LaGuardia was away.

"When you were in the war," he explained in answer to a question by the Aldermanic President.

"While he was in Italy, up in the air," broke in the Controller.

President LaGuardia, white with rage, shook his fist at the Controller. "Don't you dare say anything about that—" The pounding of the Mayor's gavel drowned most of the remark, but in an interval of quiet, "Fat slacker" was heard. The motion was voted on and lost.

After Commissioner of Plants and Structures Whalen had told the board that he could care for the Department of Finance automobile in the municipal garage, it was moved by President LaGuardia that it be so stored. The motion prevailed, Commissioner of Public Works Sullivan of Queens voting for it. A motion by the Controller to eliminate entirely the municipal garage was lost.

When the Department of Education was reached the Controller moved to further reduce its budget by eliminating positions calling for an expenditure of $300,238. This was carried over the protest of President Curran and Commissioner Sullivan. Then the Controller moved to cut out two items of $1,090,000 and $1,500,000 on the ground that it had not been fully explained why they had been put in the estimates. This motion was lost.

On motion of President Curran, ten new Fire Inspectors and thirteen Assistant Inspectors were cut from the Fire Department budget. Mr. Curran said the Fire Prevention Bureau was one of the best managed in the city, but he believed this was no year to create new jobs. The board did not concur with Controller Craig that if new places should be cut from the Fire Department list they should be cut from all other departments. The board then cut out Police Commissioner Enright's secret service allowance, reducing the contingency account to $125,000, the sum originally asked but afterward doubled.

The Controller asked that a sum be added to the compensation of Walter J. O'Neill, a special examiner in the Finance Department, to bring his pay up to the standard for that place. Mr. Craig explained that the fault had been his and he wanted to make up to O'Neill what the city really owed him. The Mayor would not hear of it. The proposition was voted down.

After the Mayor had finished the call of the departments, President Curran wanted to cut off a $5,500 allowance for a new Deputy Commissioner of Plants and Structures. Commissioner Whalen explained that the new deputy would be an architect, whose services were required to look after the construction of twenty-one garages and the proposed markets. The cut was not made. The board will meet today.

GUY H. SCULL DIES OF BLOOD POISONING

Ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Succumbs to Infection from Carbuncle in His Nose.

Guy Hamilton Scull, who was Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner when Arthur Woods was at the head of the Police Department in the Mitchel administration, died suddenly last night in St. Luke's Hospital of blood poisoning. The infection came from a carbuncle that appeared in his nose last Sunday and had bothered him so little that he did not enter the hospital until Thursday.

After leaving Harvard, where he was a member of the class of 1898, he joined Roosevelt's Rough Riders and fought in the Spanish war. Then he went to Africa and followed the Boer war as a newspaper correspondent, and later covered the Boxer outbreaks in China for an American paper. Back in his own country, he entered the Secret Service and served along the Texas border, helping to drive back marauding Mexicans.

Perhaps the most picturesque of his many adventures was his trip with a crew of Harvard friends in the old cup defender Mayflower in search of the treasure of the Spanish galleon Good Faith, sunk some two hundred years ago in the Caribbean Sea. Their ship was dismasted in a hurricane and the argonauts were rescued by a British tram.

After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Houston will live in New York.

Mrs. Mischa Appelbaum Out Today.

Further improvement was reported yesterday in the condition of both Mr. and Mrs. Mischa Appelbaum of 228 West Seventy-fifth Street, who were taken to the Knickerbocker Hospital a week ago suffering from mercurial poisoning. Mrs. Appelbaum has so far recovered that she will be able to leave the hospital today.

ATTACKS SCHOOL 'AUTHORS'

Hirshfield Says Books of Doubtful Value Are Sold to City.

The irritation of Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield over the action of Superintendent of Schools Dr. William L. Ettinger, in advising members of the Department of Education not to testify at the investigation into school finances that the Commissioner is attempting, found expression yesterday in a letter which Commissioner Hirshfield sent to President Anning S. Prall of the Board of Education. The letter was really in reply to a request by Superintendent Ettinger that the Board of Education uphold his action. The letter calls the request a "cry for help to prevent the city authorities from ascertaining how the tax and rentpayers' moneys have been expended by the ring within the educational system."

After reminding Mr. Prall that the courts had decided that the taxpayers had the right to know how the educational appropriations were being spent, the Commissioner again turned his attention to Dr. Ettinger.

"As you know," he continued, "one of the evils which has for years existed in the school system is that almost every one holding a higher position within the system finds it convenient to become an author of some school book, or at least to write an introduction to an old book with his name printed on the title page, and furthermore, upon the theory of 'you tickle me and I'll tickle you,' every one of such books, no matter how doubtful its value, finds its way into some of our schools, no doubt for the purpose of giving its author or supposed author an opportunity to earn a royalty.

"Your Superintendent of Schools is not excluded from the class of 'authors' as is evidenced from the fact that during the school year 1914-15, 142,748 books in which Dr. Ettinger was interested were purchased by the City of New York Department of Education.

"It is one of the purposes of our investigation to list the publications by authors on the payroll of your department and to establish how much money in the shape of royalties the city has paid to the superintendent and principals."

Commissioner Hirshfield said that his inquiry had to do with finance and nothing to do with educational affairs. The inquiry, he told President Prall, was going on even if it should become necessary to "summon the worthy doctor before the bar of justice for advising resistance to lawful authority and obstructing the exercise of public duty."

Samuel I. Kessler to Marry Nov. 29.

Assistant United States District Attorney Samuel I. Kessler of Newark, N. J., and Miss Hortense S. Fuld of Paterson will be married on Nov. 29 in Sarnet Memorial Temple at Paterson. Miss Fuld is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses I. Fuld.

WEDDINGS.

Donald M. Kirkpatrick Marries Miss Renee Despard in St. Thomas's.

Donald Morris Kirkpatrick, a son of William S. Kirkpatrick, formerly Attorney General of Pennsylvania, and Miss Renee Despard, a daughter of Mrs. Henry Despard, formerly of 59 West Fifty-seventh Street, now of Darien, Conn., were married Thursday in the chantry of St. Thomas's Church by the Rev. Dr. Leach, the assistant rector.

The bride's uncle, Walter D. Despard, gave her in marriage. Mrs. Harold Ruckman Mitsel was the matron of honor and William H. Kirkpatrick was his brother's best man. CAMERA MEN DISAPPOINTED

Isaac F. Marcosson, Writer and Traveler, Returns from Exploration of Africa.

The Daily Mail Sandringham hat, made from the design for which Lord Northcliffe paid £100 to the winner in the prize competition recently in his paper, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Celtic and was a disappointment to the movie operators and photographers who had gone to the ship to make pictures of the new type of headgear for males.

The representative of The Daily Mail on board being a modest man, did not wear the hat when the liner arrived at Pier 59, North River, yesterday afternoon, but gave it to Captain Eric Leighton, D. S. O., whose aesthetic, Hamlet-like countenance and slim figure did justice to the novelty.

The hat resembled the gray narrow-brimmed article depicted in Dickens's book as being worn by Richard Swiveller in "The Old Curiosity Shop" and by Alfred Jingle in "The Pickwick Papers." Captain Leighton said that it combined the dignity of the early Victorian coaching topper with the soft comfort of the modern Homburg. He wore it slightly over toward the left ear with the jaunty air that artists have always considered necessary, on or off the stage, for that kind of headgear. The Captain added that The Daily Mail Sandringham hat looked much better in royal purple than when made of the ordinary fuzzy gray silk felt, but he did not think there was any likelihood of its becoming popular with the masses. It needed not only the aesthetic face and figure, but also a well-lined pocketbook to go with it, in his opinion.

Passengers on the Celtic did not know that The Daily Mail £100 prize hat was on board until a wireless message was received on Thursday instructing its representative to wear the novel head covering as he walked down the gangway. The cost of the hat in New York would be about $15. Captain Leighton, who stands over 6 feet, was the first British actor to receive the Distinguished Service Order and is a cousin of the late Lord Pauncefote, for many years British Ambassador in Washington.

Another passenger on the Celtic was Isaac F. Marcosson, the American magazine writer and traveler, who returned from a long trip from Cape Town, where he spent a week with General Smuts, up through Central Africa to Stanley Falls and 3,000 miles down the Congo River to the west coast of Africa. He also explored the Kasai River, one of its tributaries, lived with cannibals in the dense African forests, and heard the lions roar round his camp at night. Mr. Marcosson said he traveled in a hammock slung on poles and carried by blacks, and altogether covered 25,000 miles in the round trip from New York on steamships, railroad trains, camels, elephants, canoes and the hammock arrangement, which he said was called a "teapoy" in Africa. The economic resources of the Congo country were wonderful and gave promise of a great future.

Another passenger was Louis Tracy. C. B. E., the English novelist, who has come over to solicit funds for the restoration of Westminster Abbey.

Captain Howard E. Sullivan of the Green Star Steamship Lines, formerly of the 103th Artillery during the war, came back on the Celtic from a trip to France, where he went over the ground traversed by his regiment from Verdun north and was surprised to find that it was still full of old shells and barbed wire instead of crops of waving corn.

The Celtic had 250 in first, 597 second and 1,329 steerage passengers, of whom 458 embarked at Queenstown and were mostly Sinn Feiners, judging by their enthusiasm and waving of national colors when the ship docked at the foot of West Eighteenth Street.

Captain R. O. Jones, the commander of the Celtic, said that the weather had been rough for this season of the year. On Sunday night it blew a whole gale, seventy-five miles, from the southwest to west, accompanied by rough head and heavy beam sea.

TUXEDO HALLOWE'EN DANCE

Season's Debutantes in Club's Big Circular Ballroom.

In spite of unfavorable weather conditions the annual Hallowe'en ball at the Tuxedo Club house, Tuxedo Park, last night was largely attended. As usual, the affair was featured by the appearance of the season's débutantes.

The dance took place in the large circular ballroom that has been the scene of so many large social affairs, and this was one of the largest dances in many seasons.

The decorations were Autumn leaves, chrysanthemums and potted plants, and the hall leading to the ballroom was an arbor of tinted Autumn leaves and flowers. Many large dinners for débutantes were given both at the clubhouse and among the cottagers.

Among those who had parties at the club were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Spencer Morris, Colonel and Mrs. Henry H. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. F. Kingsbury Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. William Clearwater, Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Schieffelin, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius S. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick F. Carey, Mrs. Ernest R. Adee, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loomis and H. Gallatin Pell.

Those who entertained at dinner at their cottages were Mr. and Mrs. Leroy W. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Eben Richards, Mrs. Price Post and Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop McKim.

Among the débutantes attending were the Misses Georgiana Wells, Mary Cogswell, Harriet McKim, Clare Reynders, Ruth Ogden, Frances Isham, Helen Trevor, Katherine Porter, Constance Porter, Betty Barber and Caroline Prentice.

ENGAGEMENTS.

Miss Emily Gresser, the violinist, and David Liebovitz, a playwright, will be married on Nov. 2 at the home of Mr. Liebovitz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Liebovitz, 31 West Eighty-ninth Street. The ceremony will be performed at 5:30 o'clock.

Miss Gresser has been heard frequently in her own recitals, and has made concert tours with Mme. Yvette Guilbert in this country and Canada. She is American born, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gresser of New York. Her debut was made in Berlin, after which she gave recitals in the principal cities of Germany and Holland. It was in Berlin that she gave the first performance of Max Vogrich's "Mementomori."

Welles—Speer.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Welles, Jr., of 27 Washington Square North and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Charlotte Rose Welles, to Elliott Speer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Speer of Englewood, N. J.

EXPECT BRITISH MINERS TO ACCEPT SETTLEMENT

In Some Cases Pits Are Already Being Prepared for Work—Welsh Extremists Opposed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—There is every indication throughout the mining areas of Great Britain that the men will vote on Tuesday for acceptance of the Government's offer of settlement. The South Wales extremists expected to recommend rejection at a meeting of the Welsh Executive tomorrow, but they likely will be in a small minority.

It is significant that in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire it is being arranged to return ponies to the pits at once, and in some cases this has been done. If, as expected, the men vote for acceptance, the pits may reopen on Thursday next.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The Government's Emergency Power bill passed the final parliamentary stages today and received the royal assent.

The Emergency Powers bill gives to the British Government virtually wartime authority. It was introduced in Parliament with the advent of the miners' strike and when it seemed probable that the railway and transport workers might also become involved in the strike.

Newspapers here, in commenting upon the agreement by which the coal strike may be ended if the referendum to be held among the miners is favorable, generally recognize that the scheme is a compromise. Neither the advocates of the miners nor the representatives of the owners of coal pits claimed victory.

There is universal approval of the arrangement by which a sliding scale would apply to the profits of owners as well as the wages of the men, and this is thought the most hopeful feature of the agreement. For this reason it is believed the plan will be indorsed by the miners.

It is remarked that the settlement makes for future peace in the coal industry and may prove the introductory step for a new era in British industry generally.

GERMANS DEMURRING AT GIVING UP COWS

French and Belgian Demand for 800,000 Cattle Is Bitterly Resented.

By WALTER DURANTY.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—Reports from Berlin have recently appeared in the English Liberal press that France has demanded 800,000 milch cows from Germany, whose babies were represented as dying for lack of milk.

From a highly authoritative source—not French nor Belgian—I have received the facts of this affair. The Treaty provides that the first instalment of German bonds, amounting to 20,000,000,000 gold marks may be redeemed by payments in kind. Early in the Summer the Reparation Commission asked the allied Governments to inform it what sort of payments in kind they would respectively like to have. Having received the lists, the commission forwarded to the German Government in June for its guidance and information in case it preferred to redeem its bonds in kind rather than in cash. There was nothing in the nature of a command to "stand and deliver."

The French and Belgian lists contained requests for cattle amounting to 800,000 head altogether—cattle, not milch cows.

Surprising as it may seem, Germany has hardly fewer cattle now than before the war. The official agricultural journal of Berlin in 1914 gave the total as 21,800,000 head for all Germany, including Alsace-Lorraine and German Poland. The same publication for the month of June of the present year placed the total at 17,000,000 head. In other words, the proportion of cattle to population has hardly fallen, and the combined demands of France and Belgium do not reach 5 per cent. of the total. It is also worth remarking that the meat restrictions in Germany have recently been removed.

ANTHONY McOWEN DEAD.

Ex-Tax Commissioner Succumbs to Auto Truck Injuries.

Anthony McOwen, who was the first Coroner in the Borough of the Bronx and was long a prominent member of Tammany Hall, died yesterday in Bellevue Hospital of injuries received on Oct. 8, when an auto truck ran over him as he was crossing Third Avenue at Twenty-ninth Street. Last Saturday his right leg was amputated. He was born in County Wicklow, Ireland, in 1842, came to this country as a boy and later entered the building and real estate business in the Bronx.

He was an intimate friend of Richard Croker, was formerly President of the old Seneca Club, and had been Clerk of the Morrisania Court and a Tax Commissioner. In the last Memorial Day parade he was Grand Marshal of the Bronx G. A. R. Veterans. He lived with his daughter, Mrs. Ella Grasselly, at 1,311 Plimpton Avenue.

Ella W. Wilcox Memorial Service.

Special services to commemorate the first anniversary of the death of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the poetess, will be held tomorrow at Bungalow Lawn, the Wilcox home at Short Beach, Conn. At the services the ashes of Mrs. Wilcox will be placed in the urn with those of her husband, Robert M. Wilcox, who died in 1916, and the urn will be sealed up in one of the boulders forming the foundation of the Wilcox cottage at Short Beach. Edwin Markham, the poet, will deliver the principal address.

SHERIFF'S TENANTS WIN 'HUNGER STRIKE'

Quit Eating in the Berkeley When Knott's Company Raises Rate $5 a Week.

RENT INCREASES ACCEPTED

But Holders of Apartment Leases Threaten Suit When Food Prices Go Up.

The high cost of living has been reduced by approximately $3,000 a month in the combined cost of food for the forty tenants in the Berkeley Apartment Hotel, 20 Fifth Avenue, as the result of their refusal to accept an advance of $5 a week for each of the 100 or more dining room patrons. The apartment is operated by the Knott Hotel Syndicate, lessee, which is headed by Sheriff David H. Knott. The tenants said they had accepted rent increases of 50 to 100 per cent. without protest, but balked at the extra dining charge, asserting as a matter of principle, they went on a "hunger strike" by shunning the Berkeley dining room.

"Of course, no one went hungry," said one of the tenants yesterday. "The tenants simply took their meals elsewhere. Only one tenant patronized the dining room, and she was forced to do so because her health did not permit her to leave the building."

Included among the renters of apartments in the Berkeley are Theodore W. Morris, William J. Love, Edmund S. Nash, Cambridge Livingston, Frank H. Potter, the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, Lawrence L. Driggs, President of the American Flying Club; John J. Morris and Edmund W. Fairchild.

During the several weeks of the "hunger strike" correspondence passed between a committee of the tenants and the Sheriff, who refused to recede on the dining charge, declaring that food was costing more. Mr. Love told him the newspapers were reporting general reductions all along the line in food prices, to which, it was said, Sheriff Knott replied:

"The prices in the newspapers are for effect. I find that it is costing me more."

Mr. Love, who is general manager of the Bermuda Steamship Line, insisted that supplies for steamers' tables were much cheaper.

The Berkeley is owned by the Rhinelander estate. The committee of the tenants sought to take over the lease, but found the Sheriff's lease had five more years to run. Representatives of the estate told the committee they could have the property at the end of that period. Then the committee dropped hints of prospective suits to determine their rights under the profiteering law. With this, is was said, the Sheriff capitulated and restored the old table rate of $25 weekly.

DAYLIGHT TIME SOON TO END

Clocks Will Be Turned Back an Hour at 2 A. M. Tomorrow.

Daylight saving will end in the Eastern time zone on Sunday morning. At 2 o'clock in the morning the city's clocks will be turned back. Outside of lessening the hours of daylight and changing working hours in this city, there will be no difference in local conditions. The railroads have maintained standard time during all of daylight saving time, and on traction lines the change in hours will be noted on schedules without interfering with the present operation of trains.

The National Daylight Saving Association, of which Marcus M. Marks, former Borough President, is head, will resist any attempt to have the daylight saving law stricken from the statute books of this State. The association will endeavor to have Congress declare daylight saving in the Eastern time zone from May 1 to Oct. 1.

TO BUILD $3,000,000 POLICE HOSPITAL

OPPOSITE THE ART MUSEUM

Drive to Procure Building Is Proposed—Guggenheim, Wanamaker and du Pont Aid Scheme.

One of the largest and best-equipped hospital buildings in the metropolitan territory, it became known yesterday, will be erected in a short time in the Eastern Parkway section of Brooklyn. It will be built for the benefit of the Police Department of New York. Plans of prominent citizens, including the Deputy Police Commissioners, Edmond A. Guggenheim, Rodman Wanamaker and Coleman du Pont, to establish a suitable hospital and sanitarium for the men of the police force have been maturing for some time.

The property for the proposed hospital has just been purchased. It is on Eastern Parkway, covering a large block front opposite the Brooklyn Museum of Arts and Sciences. It has a frontage of 750 feet on the parkway, about 700 feet on Lincoln Place, and a large frontage on Underhill Avenue. It is a few feet east of the Martinique apartment house, where Police Commissioner Enright formerly lived. The property was assembled from various owners by Joseph P. Day.

It is estimated that practically $3,000,000 will be required to erect and equip the necessary buildings, and a drive to obtain the money is contemplated.

The need of a police hospital has long been recognized. At present, when policemen are injured in the discharge of their duty and when too ill for home treatment, they are obliged to go to hospitals near their homes or station houses. In many cases the expense of treatment is a serious burden upon a policeman who perhaps was severely injured in risking his life to insure the safety of other persons or property.

While the plans for the new police hospital have not been entirely completed, the hospital proper will occupy nearly a block front on Eastern Parkway, and there will be a roof sun parlor for convalescent patients. Ample recreation grounds will be provided. The hospital will be limited to the care of policemen injured while on duty or who become ill during their time of service, and also for the members of their families.

Sites in the Bronx and Westchester County were considered, but the availability of the Eastern Parkway property was deemed superior.

REDUCE THEATRE PRICE.

Selwyns' Drop to $2.50 Forecasts Abandonment of $3 Scale.

The eventual abandonment of the $3 admission price for dramatic attractions was forecast yesterday in the reduction of the weekday scale for "The Mirage" from $3 to $2.50 by the Selwyns, and in an announcement from John Golden that a plan to raise the admission price of "Lightnin'" to $3 had been definitely dropped. The $3 ticket, which began to come into vogue for non-musical shows about a season ago, has been in general use by a number of managers.

David Belasco, it is said, is one of those who are opposed to the $3 ticket for dramatic productions, and has retained a $2.50 scale at the Lyceum throughout the run of "The Gold Diggers." The announcement from the Selwyns also indicates a departure for the musical shows, which are now being offered at $3.50 and $4. A $3 scale, however, will be adopted for "Jimmie," which will open the Selwyns' new Apollo Theatre in two weeks.

At the Selwyn Theatre "Tickle Me" will continue at a $3.50 scale, and both this show and "The Mirage" will go to $4 on Saturday nights, as in the past. There are still a number of dramatic attractions in the city which charge $3 on week nights, and $4 is a common price for musical comedies.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Evind of the Hills" will follow "Youth" at the Greenwich Village Theatre. "Our Town," which is eventually to be produced at the Greenwich Village, will be tried out this week in Madison, Conn.

Jerome Kern will conduct the orchestra at the final performance of "The Night Boat" at the Liberty tonight.

Edward Fielding has been added to the cast of "Cornered," in which Madge Kennedy is now touring.

Winifred Lenihan, last seen as Richard Bennett's leading woman in "For the Defense," has been engaged for "When We're Young," in which Henry Hull will appear.

The Stuyvesant Players gave a program of three short plays last night at the Richmond Hill House, 28 Macdougal Street.

The Rialto, Rivoli and Criterion Theatres will have midnight shows, beginning at 11:20, about the usual closing time, next Tuesday evening, at which the election returns will be given. At the Capitol Theatre the returns will be announced during the evening by a magnifying telephone.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

Miss Mary Mellish's Song Recital.

Miss Mary Mellish, who for a couple of years has been heard in minor soprano rôles at the Metropolitan Opera House, appeared last evening in a song recital in Aeolian Hall. The operatic singer is not happy until she achieves one. The audience was large and friendly and had much applause for her performance of a program built on familiar lines, though the numbers themselves were far from hackneyed. It began with airs by Handel, Lully and Mozart, and continued with a group of French songs, another of songs by Brahms and Strauss, and ended with a group chiefly American.

Miss Mellish's voice is one of excellent potentialities, but her vocal studies have not been successful in giving her sure command of it or placing it unerringly where its tones are given a chance to sound to their best advantage. There are too frequently passages where the voice is pinched and the quality of the tone is injuriously affected.

She sings in a sincere and unaffected manner, and is not unsuccessful in giving characteristic expression to certain of her songs.

Ninon Romaine's Piano Recital.

Ninon Romaine, an American pianist who has studied in Berlin and played in Germany, gave her first New York piano recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. In which she presented a program of music by Schumann, Chopin and Liszt. She plays with repose, facility and fluency, not always with technical accuracy, but without much deep feeling for the music and without lingering much over its poetical significance or the romantic implications of the three romantics who engaged her attention. In her pieces by Chopin, the A flat ballade, three études and the A flat polonaise, her rubato was a disturbing infraction of the rhythm.

Mary Rose Actors Here from London

T. H. Nesbit, Miss Ada King, Guy C. Buckley, O. B. Clarence and A. Spencer Homewood, members of the company which has been playing Sir James Barrie's "Mary Rose" in London, arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Celtic. They will begin rehearsals today with others of the company for the production of the play at the Empire Theatre.

will be investigated by him. Likewise the testimony taken before the Joint Legislative Committee will be placed at his disposal so that he may decide whether any offenses have been committed that warrant action on the part of the Federal Government.

The extent to which Robert P. Brindell, through the Building Trades Council, exercised control over the house-wrecking industry, was disclosed at the Joint Legislative Committee's session on Thursday, when receipts held by members of the house-wrecking division of the Brindell organization were introduced as exhibits showing that they had paid for the privilege of working. These receipts bore the signature of Edward R. Walsh, Secretary of the Northern Wrecking Company of Hunters Point, L. I. At this hearing William Zaranko, head of the Housewreckers' Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, testified that the men were asked to pay $10 of their weekly wages of $44.

The Northern Wrecking Company, of which Walsh is Secretary, is headed by George J. Atwell, a housewrecker, at whose office, it was testified, efforts had been made to induce Zaranko to throw his men over to the Brindell organization. Atwell is President also of the Northeastern Supply Company, and both concerns, of which he was one of the incorporators, are capitalized at $5,000, and were organized to engage in the demolition of buildings, to deal in second-hand materials and to engage in trucking.

Atwell Figures in Case.

It was recalled yesterday that Atwell, through the Northeastern Supply Company, figured in the investigation of Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield which was followed by the removal of Dr. Jonathan C. Day as Commissioner of Public Markets. The Northeastern Supply Company, which was incorporated on Nov. 1, 1915, by George J. Atwell, Mary T. Atwell and Edward R. Walsh, was engaged to do most of the trucking of supplies at the time that Dr. Day conducted the food sales, beginning in the latter part of August, 1919.

The investigation of sales accounts of the Commissioner of Public Markets was made by Commissioner Hirshfield at the instance of Mayor Hylan, and when Atwell was questioned with reference to his charges for trucking it was shown that he received $97,815 for this work.

A report of his investigation was furnished to the Mayor by Commissioner Hirshfield on Oct. 1 last, and a copy also was placed in the office of the clerk of the Board of Aldermen. It is said that very few itemized bills were found, and the Commissioner of Accounts regarded some of the charges for trucking as excessive.

Atwell's company was paid at the rate of $35 a day for a truck. He had 100 trucks available for the use of the Commissioner of Public Markets in disposing of the surplus foods, Dr. Day, when questioned yesterday on the matter, explained that the Atwell trucking concern had been engaged by former Deputy Commissioner of Markets William W. Smith.

A second public hearing was held yesterday by the Aldermanic Committee on General Welfare, of which Alderman W. T. Collins is Chairman, to get further views of persons interested in the recently passed law providing that houses constructed exclusively for dwelling purposes may be exempted from all but local taxation for a period of ten years, beginning Jan. 1, 1922.

Among those who were heard was Senator William M. Calder, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Housing and Reconstruction. Senator Calder explained that it was the belief of his committee as well as himself that the Government should aid in relieving the nation-wide housing situation.

Calder Advocates Relief.

The conditions in England were described by Senator Calder, who urged that this country should avoid a repetition of that situation. He maintained that the committee should frame a law to include buildings on which construction is begun this year and next in the exemption benefits.

The benefit of such an exemption law should not be made to include very expensive houses, designed for private use, according to Senator Calder, who believed that the emergency measure should be framed so as to include as many people as possible in the building program. He asserted that if private builders were not encouraged by some measure of this kind to go ahead with building the Government and the State and municipal Governments likewise would have to furnish shelter for the people.

In advocating the adoption of a working ordinance to relieve the housing situation, Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland called attention to the near approach of Winter, which would likely be accompanied by sickness and other conditions constituting a menace to the general health of the community.

The committee also heard from representatives of the building interests their views on the nature of the ordinance considered most practicable.

A certificate of incorporation of the Real Estate Investors of New York, Inc., was submitted for approval to the Supreme Court yesterday by Julius H. Zieser, Chairman of the Legal Committee of the organization, who stated that its purposes were: To create an agency for the study and solution of the housing problems, present and future; to encourage investment in, and ownership of, real estate by promoting the welfare of investors and owners, and to present the views of real estate investors and real estate owners whenever and wherever such interests are involved or may come into question.

"I sincerely urge a friendly attitude between landlord and tenant," explained Mr. Zieser. "The payment of rent under a stipulation under which the rights of both landlord and tenant are equally protected will be conducive to such attitude.

"We heartily commend the work of the Joint Legislative Committee, and hope that it will also go deeply into the question of the withholding by financial institutions of finances for building purposes."

The Real Estate Investors of New York, Inc., was informally organized on Oct. 1 as the Real Estate Interests of New York. When the formal organization was effected the following Board of Governors was elected: Jesse Sharp, President; William H. Dolson, Vice President, and Arlington C. Hall, Treasurer. Two forms of stipulations, which it is proposed that landlords and tenants may sign, were submitted yesterday to Arthur J. W. Hilly, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, who said he approved them. The first covers the cases of disagreements between landlords and tenants where the tenants contend the rents specified in their leases are unjust and unreasonable, as well as oppressive. It provides for the payment by the tenant to the landlord of part rent on account, which payment and the acceptance thereof by the landlord is to be without prejudice to either party in the event of a suit.

The second stipulation covers holdover cases and provides for payment of rent to the owner on account, pending the outcome of litigation resulting from a holdover.

Isaac Kahn, a manufacturers' agent of 307 West Ninety-eighth street, appeared before Magistrate Max S. Levine yesterday as complainant against the Schuyler Arms a apartment house in which he lives. Mr. Kahn brought charges of unlawful entry because his apartment was entered, and the gas, telephone and lighting fixtures disconnected on Sept. 8. When he returned home and found the door locked he forced an entrance and went to court the next morning. He testified that he had lived at the Schuyler Arms for four years, and that his rent had been increased from $75 to $200. William McKenzie, manager of the Schuyler Arms, maintained that the place was a hotel, and that he was justified in entering the rooms of Mr. Kahn when the latter failed to pay his bill. Magistrate Levine held that the case was of such importance that he referred it to Special Sessions for trial.

SAY LASKER PLAN IS NOT FEASIBLE

Directors of American League Declare They Cannot Subscribe to the Proposition.

MAKE COUNTER SUGGESTION

Ask for Board of Nine, Including Three from Minors, to Work Out Another Arrangement.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—A counterproposal to the Lasker plan for the reorganization of baseball was made today by the Board of Directors of the American League in executive session here. The board's proposal was in answer to the ultimatum of the National League members and the three American League club members—Chicago, New York and Boston—who declared they would organize a twelve-club league if the five American League clubs, which are "loyal" to President Johnson, did not join in the plan before Nov. 1.

The board's answer suggests that a committee of nine members—three each from the National League, the American League and the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (minor leagues)—work out a plan of reorganization. This committee, it was pointed out, will give due consideration not only to the major leagues but to the minor leagues as well.

"We are confident," the statement says, "that in this manner a reorganization may be worked out along sane and practical lines, which will be satisfactory not only to so-called organized baseball, but to the public as well.

"We recognize that there is a strong feeling prevalent among the public in favor of some reorganization, and the American League will be glad to co-operate in a feasible and practical way to that end.

Lasker Plan Ineffectual.

"The Board of Directors is of the unanimous opinion that the so-called Lasker plan will prove wholly ineffectual to accomplish the results which its sponsors seek to accomplish and that the American League cannot subscribe to that plan," the statement continues.

In support of this assertion the Directors pointed out two reasons why the plan cannot be approved by the American League:

"First—It appears that the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (minor leagues) has thus far had no part in the working out of this plan, nor does it appear that the plan contemplates permitting the minors to have a proper voice or influence in the proposed reorganization. Permitting them to make recommendations is but an empty shell. Moreover, if a reorganization is to be accomplished the National Association should have a representative on the Board of Control, or National Commission, or by whatever name that body may be called.

"Second—As we read the resolutions adopted, the underlying idea of the sponsors for the so-called Lasker plan seems to be the creation of a commission composed of eminent citizens who have no connection whatsoever with baseball except as they may be patrons of the sport.

"The names which have thus far been suggested by the sponsors for the plan, according to the press, are of men who have heretofore had no experience in the management or conduct of baseball, and the wisdom of permitting men inexperienced in practical baseball affairs, no matter how eminent they may be, to be empowered to take over, even temporarily, under any circumstances, the management of baseball properties in which large sums of money have been invested is gravely doubtful.

Would Not Prevent Gambling.

"The so-called plan of reorganization has apparently been precipitated by reason of the gambling exposures, particularly the throwing of games by players, and the idea of the sponsors of the so-called Lasker plan seems to be that this evil in baseball can be entirely avoided in the future by the creation of such a commission.

"We have no confidence in such a commission being any more able to stamp out gambling than the National Commission has been. Indeed, we do not believe that such a commission could be as effective in stamping out gambling as a commission composed of practical baseball men who understand the game in all its details and know intimately the history of its players.

"If baseball games have been thrown in the past, as all now know they have been in one series, it has been due to the inherent dishonesty of the players who have sold themselves to the gamblers. The thing that will stop gambling in baseball is the certainty, speed and severity of the punishment meted out to those who sell games or do the gambling."

The meeting today was attended by B. B. Johnson, President of the American League, and all members of the Board of Directors—P. D. C. Ball, St. Louis; Frank J. Navin, Detroit; Clark C. Griffith, Washington, and Thomas S. Shibe, Philadelphia—all of whom signed the statement.

Neither President Johnson nor the "loyal" club owners gave any intimation as to whether or not they would attend the meeting to be held here on Nov. 8 by those club owners in favor of the Lasker plan.

HUGGINS TO MAKE CHANGES.

Yankee Head Predicts Revision of Outfield and Pitching Staff.

Manager Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees arrived in New York yesterday to confer with Colonels Ruppert and Huston and to sign the contract as manager of the club for next season. Huggins met both employers and discussed with them some plans for another season, but the signing of the contract was deferred until today. Terms have been agreed upon, and the signing is only a formal matter.

Huggins declared yesterday that he intended to make several changes in his ball club before the start of another season. He did not specify the players who would be involved, but intimated that some of the veteran members of the club would perform in other pastures next season.

"I realize that lack of speed is one big handicap of the Yankees as the club is constituted today," remarked Huggins, "and my main task is to add speed to the team. I probably will make changes in the outfield and in the pitching staff. The infield satisfies me, and I probably will stand pat on this part of the team. It is possible that I may make a change behind the bat, but I am not worrying any about the catching. That stands up better than some of the other departments.

"I do not know whether or not Pratt plans to play major league baseball next season, but with Fewster available I am not inclined to worry any about that position. Pratt told me before the season closed that he planned to play professional ball again next season. I have read since that he had decided to devote his time to coaching at the University of Michigan. If he wishes to come back we can use him, and if he insists on retiring I have not the slightest doubt about Fewster stepping in and filling the bill.

"I hope to make some deals this Winter, but no trades or purchases are likely in the near future. These must wait until the club owners decide upon what is to be done in the reorganization scheme. I intend to go to the meeting at Chicago on Nov. 8, and will also go to the minor league meeting at Kansas City the following day. I may be able to get a line then on what players are to be offered for sale or trade this Winter. I may get some deals started at that time, but it is not likely that they will be completed during these meetings."

Ray's Last Match Here to be At Lido Beach Election Day

Ted Ray, winner of the American national golf championship this year, will make his last appearance before sailing for England without his compatriot and partner, Harry Vardon. This will be an exhibition match on Election Day afternoon on the links of the Lido Beach Club, near Long Beach, Ray meeting George McLean, the professional at the Great Neck Country Club. Vardon cannot participate on account of private business engagements. McLean has been selected because of the fact that he holds the record for Lido, a 75, which is regarded as one of the most brilliant rounds ever shot on a seaside course. The match will begin at 2 o'clock. Ray will sail on Nov. 6.

JENNINGS IS SIGNED TO ASSIST M'GRAW

Veteran Player and Manager to Succeed Evers with Giants Next Year.

John McGraw and Hugh Jennings, players who were side by side twenty-five years ago when the Baltimore Orioles were making baseball history, are together again on the same ball club. Jennings yesterday signed a contract to serve as assistant manager of the Giants, taking the place which was made vacant when Johnny Evers was released so that he might assume the managership of the Chicago Cubs.

That Jennings was to be identified next season with a National League club has been understood generally since he resigned as manager of the Detroit Tigers about two weeks ago, but his acquisition as assistant manager of the Giants comes as a surprise. It was believed that he would take over the leadership of one of the clubs which was changing managers. Within the last few days Jennings had been mentioned in connection with the managerial jobs at Boston and Philadelphia.

The combination of McGraw and Jennings should prove a highly successful one to the New York National League Club. McGraw was seldom seen on the coaching lines during the last season. In fact, he did not appear at all after June, when he drew a suspension for some difficulties with an umpire. At times it has been reported that McGraw was about to retire as manager and devote all his time to the business end of the game, and within the last ten days it was reported that Jennings was to come here as manager of the club.

McGraw to Remain in Charge.

McGraw has made it plain, however, that he has no intention of relinquishing his post as manager. He probably will do most of the directing from the bench and assign the coaching duties mainly to Jennings. Hughey is the most picturesque performer on the coaching line among big league managers, and he is bound to be extremely popular along the National League circuit. He always has been a big favorite in the American League. New York baseball crowds always have been strong for the resoundful "E-Yah" and the grass-chewing stunts of Jennings.

In the event that McGraw at any time is unable to direct the playing of the Giants, the team will be in competent hands with Jennings at the helm. Hughey comes here with fourteen years of major league managerial experience behind him, and even some recent failures at Detroit do not dim the fact that most of his teams have been pennant contenders. His Detroit teams of 1907, 1908 and 1909 were pennant winners. Hughey is not exactly a stranger in the National League, as he spent several seasons with teams representing Baltimore, Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the older circuit.

Jennings was born at Pittston, Pa., in 1870, and first played professional baseball with the Leighton (Pa.) Club in 1890. The following year he signed with the Louisville American Association Club as first baseman and shortstop. In 1894 he was traded to the Baltimore Nationals, and four years later was shifted to the Brooklyn Nationals, on which team he played first base. An injury to his arm, which he received in diving into a swimming pool at Cornell University prevented him from returning to his regular position at shortstop.

Joined Detroit in 1907.

In 1901 he became manager and Captain of the Philadelphia Nationals and two years later he returned to the Baltimore Eastern League Club, playing second base and shortstop until 1907, when he was drafted by the Detroit Americans. Since that time Jennings acted as manager of the Detroit team until the close of the present season, when he resigned.

Checks will be sent out today to members of the Giants and Yankees as their rewards for having finished among the first three in the major league pennant races. The Giants' share of the world's series money for having finished second in the National League race amounted to $16,096.20, while the Yankees drew down $10,744.13 for finishing third in the American League. The Giants' money was divided so as to provide shares for thirty-two men connected with the club. Those receiving full shares will get $688.30 each. Others will get a half share of $344.15 apiece, and still others will receive a third share of $229.43. The division of the money is made according to the time some of the players were with the club during the 1920 campaign.

The Yankee regulars will receive $400 each, the sum of $10,000 being divided among twenty-five men. The remainder will be divided among persons connected with the club other than the playing end.

The Cincinnati Reds will divide the same sum as the Yankees, and a portion equal to that of the Giants belongs to the Chicago White Sox. Just how this money is to be divided is not known. The seven players who were released by President Comiskey after they were indicted during the investigation of the 1919 world's series would share ordinarily in this money, but their present status makes the case entirely different.

The Cincinnati Reds have given up Miami as a training camp, and it is probable that the Brooklyn club will spend two or three weeks next Spring at the Florida resort. The plan now under consideration is to do the early training at Miami and then travel north to Jacksonville for some exhibition games with the Yankees, who are expected to train somewhere in Florida. The Reds will do their training at Cisco, Tex., which town has offered a big guarantee for the former champions.

The reserve list of the Brooklyn club, as announced yesterday by President Charles H. Ebbets, includes thirty-eight players. On the roster are seventeen pitchers, four catchers, nine infielders and eight outfielders. The complete list is as follows:

Catchers—Elliott, Krueger, Miller and Taylor.

Rickets Makes Run of 54.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—William Rickets, Flint, Mich., set a new high run record for the current national pocket billiard tournament today when he scored 54 and defeated James E. McCoy of Richmond, Va., 125 to 50, in 26 innings.

JACKSON IS VICTOR OVER FITZSIMMONS

Bout Stopped After Tenth Round When Yorkville Boy Is Badly Punished.

At Madison Square Garden last night a crowd of 10,000 wild-eyed boxing enthusiasts witnessed one of the most spectacular finishes seen here in a bout between lightweights in many years, when Willie Jackson, the hard-hitting Bronx contender for the title worn on the brow of Benny Leonard, administered such a severe drubbing to Eddie Fitzsimmons, Yorkville south-paw, that the latter's manager, Dan Morgan, stopped the bout at the end of the tenth round, to save his boxer from taking further punishment.

Fitzsimmons had been pounded helpless in the tenth round and was doubled up on the lower two strands of the ring when the bell sounded the end of the tenth round. Referee Bill Brown's right arm had tolled off two seconds of what to all intents and purposes would have been the final count over the prostrate form of Fitzsimmons, when the bell sounded the end of the round.

Fitzsimmons's seconds, headed by the welterweight champion, Jack Britton, hopped into the ring and carried their helpless charge to his corner. A quick glance convinced Manager Morgan that Fitzsimmons was "through," and he motioned Referee Brown that he conceded defeat for the game little Fitzsimmons.

Fitzsimmons Floored Thrice.

Fitzsimmons, fighting a losing fight throughout, was twice sent to the floor before the final knock-down which came just as the tenth round was closing. In the eighth session, the Yorkville left-hander went crashing to the floor of the ring for a count of six when Jackson cracked over a wicked right to the jaw. Arising, Fitzsimmons was battered about the ring. But Jackson, in his eagerness to score decisively, was wild and ineffective. The Bronx boxer lost his chance and Fitzsimmons weathered a perfect gale of blows.

Through the ninth round Fitzsimmons was pounded groggy, but he gamely withstood the assault and tried feebly to retaliate. After about two minutes' fighting in the tenth session Jackson caught Fitzsimmons coming at him in a neutral corner, and like a flash crashed his right over on Fitzsimmons's unprotected jaw. The Yorkville lad went down like a poled steer with his face in the resined floor.

Fitzsimmons struggled to regain his feet as Referee Brown bent over him tolling off the doleful count, and the veteran ring arbiter had reached nine in his count when Fitzsimmons, punch drunk, regained his feet. He was unsteady and dizzy and whirled aimlessly about the ring, as Jackson was circling like a tiger, seeking an opening for one crushing right. He backed Fitzsimmons into the ropes near the former's corner, and there, pinioning the Yorkville boxer, Jackson bombarded his rival with swinging rights to Adam in rapid succession until Fitzsimmons folded like a jackknife over the lower two ropes. Referee Brown had counted two when the bell sounded the end of the round, but Fitzsimmons was oblivious of his surroundings, and no amount of labor could restore him sufficiently to continue.

Match Ordinary at Outset.

Up to the time of the sensational ending of the bout the match did not excel the ordinary. Jackson's speed was not employed, as was expected, for the Bronx lightweight encountered an almost insolvable problem against his left-handed opponent. Fitzsimmons, standing with right hand and foot extended, presented a peculiar, awkward style which Jackson found difficulty in solving.

Another feature which probably robbed the contest of some of its lustre was the heavy exactions of weight-making imposed on both boxers. Jackson was affected the least by this condition, but Fitzsimmons plainly showed the effects of the ordeal he must have endured to get down to the required 135 pounds.

The Yorkville boxer was slow and boxed throughout as if his arms were leaden weights. Jackson's speed was conspicuously missing, reflecting that he, too, had been affected by the weight.

Jackson fought from the start as if on knockout bent. He lashed out with rights and lefts to the jaw and stomach and several times shook Fitzsimmons with his heavy right-hand punch.

Jackson took every round up to the tenth except the seventh. In this session Fitzsimmons showed to advantage, shaking Jackson up with heavy jolts to the jaw and stomach, which slowed Jackson considerably. The latter was completely revived in the eighth round, and with his heavy attack to the face started Fitzsimmons on the road to the crushing defeat which came in the tenth session.

Brady Game, but Outclassed.

Ralph Brady, Syracuse welterweight, and Billy De Foe, a St. Paul lightweight, were the contenders in the second of the scheduled ten-round bouts. Brady, weighing 140¾ pounds, enjoyed an advantage of 13¾ pounds over the lad from the Twin City, but the disparity was more of a handicap than an asset for the Salt City boxer. Brady took an unmerciful beating through the first four rounds. He was battered from pillar to post in a hurricane attack which De Foe unleashed as soon as the opening gong sent the pair on their journey.

For a time it appeared as if the fight wouldn't get beyond the opening session. De Foe crashed home a right to the jaw which had Brady groggy, and a succession of rights and lefts to the face and stomach took all the fight out of the Syracuse lad. He weathered the storm, however, standing up courageously before the assault which De Foe unleashed. Brady was a punching bag in every round thereafter up to the tenth round.

In the third round Brady, groggy and on the verge of a knockout, twice fell through the ropes when seeking to avoid De Foe's attacks. In the sixth Brady went down from a right crack on the jaw and remained on the floor of the ring while Referee Bill Brown tolled off eight seconds. Early in the seventh round Brady went crashing to the boards again from a right to the jaw, but he gamely regained his feet at a count of nine and resumed his absorption of De Foe's punches.

Brady fell through the ropes again in the ninth round, and in the tenth session all he could do was hold on tenaciously whenever the opportunity to embrace De Foe presented itself. De Foe gained the judge's decision.

Lynch Has Better of Sprague.

Dan Lynch, Bayonne middleweight, gained the decision over Buddy Sprague of Harlem in the first of the ten-round bouts, which was an uninteresting affair. Lynch won the bout on his aggressiveness and his ability to assimilate punishment. He was battered through the early rounds by the cutting, jarring rights and left of his adversary, but shook off the effects of the punishment, and from the fifth round forced the milling. The Bayonne boxer ceaselessly chased Sprague before him in a wild attack, swinging out with rights and lefts, some of which landed and made Sprague groggy and wary through the latter rounds.

Sprague showed to advantage in the first four rounds, when it appeared that he would finish his rival. Lynch's gameness and ability to absorb the punishment, however, discouraged Sprague, and he wearied after the fourth round. Lynch, tired and sore, persisted and accumulated enough points in his six-round rally to gain the verdict.

In the six-round bout which opened the show Dave Astey, west side bantamweight, defeated Eddie Anderson of Wyoming. The judges disagreed at the end of this encounter, but Referee Dan Hickey unhesitatingly awarded the bout to Astey.

Miss Griffith Now Aims at Women's Golf Title of India

Miss Molly Griffiths, the young English woman who in a year's time has become one of the leading golfers on the other side, plans to make a trip to Calcutta this Winter to play in the women's golf championship of India. Her first season in important tournaments brought her into prominence as the nearest rival to Miss Cecil Leitch, England's champion. At Newcastle, Ireland, in the British ladies' title event, Miss Griffiths was runner-up to Miss Leitch and a month later at Le Touquet, France, she was again runner-up to Miss Leitch for the French women's crown. In both these tournaments, incidentally, she defeated Miss Marion Hollins of Westbrook, L. I., former metropolitan women's champion.

ARTICLES FOR BOUT TO BE SIGNED NOV. 5

Important Detail of Dempsey-Carpentier Match Awaits Representative from Cuba.

The articles for the widely heralded bout between Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Georges Carpentier, holder of the European title, which will be held in Havana, according to present plans, probably will be signed Friday. Developments yesterday indicated that Nov. 5 is the likely day for the principals and the promoters, Messrs. Tex Rickard, Charles B. Cochran and William A. Brady, to affix their signatures to the documents binding the match.

It was expected that the articles would be signed Thursday, when a banquet would also be tendered Carpentier. This plan probably will be discarded. Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, declared yesterday that he and the champion would journey to Montreal Monday, where Dempsey is scheduled to give an exhibition. The pair do not plan to return here until Friday. In view of the fact that the parties concerned in the transaction are anxious to obtain Carpentier's signature and that of Dempsey before the Frenchman sails for his home Saturday, it is altogether probable that the articles for the bout will be actually signed on Friday.

No new developments in the situation arose yesterday. Every aspect of the prospective match remained as it was Wednesday night, following the conference in the office of Promoter Brady, when the objections of Manager Kearns were overcome. Tex Rickard is noncommittal, as are his partners in the venture. The situation now depends on the arrival of the unidentified Cuban representative of the syndicate of capitalists who, according to the announcement of the promoters, plan to conduct the bout in Havana. With the arrival of this Cuban Thursday and the return of Manager Kearns and Dempsey Friday it is expected that arrangements will be completed.

SCHOOLBOY SWIMS TODAY.

Five P. S. A. L. Meets to be Held in Columbia University Pool.

Schoolboy swimmers will inaugurate their annual struggle for the Public Schools Athletic League high schools championship this afternoon, when the first series of dual swimming meets will be conducted in the Columbia University pool. The series will continue with weekly meets every Saturday up to Jan. 15. Ten schools have nominated teams for the struggle for supremacy. The program for each dual meet includes six events, as follows: 50-yard swim, 100-yard swim, 220-yard swim, plunge for distance, fancy diving contest and an eight-length relay.

Because of the imminense entry and the unusual interest in the meets, the P. S. A. L. officials will follow the custom of previous years and conduct the meets according to a time schedule. Thirty minutes are allowed for each meet. The first of the five meets scheduled for each day of the tournament will be started promptly at 1 o'clock, and the program will be systematically carried through thereafter until the teams in the fifth meet take the pool at 3 o'clock. This time schedule will be rigidly enforced through the series.

The meets scheduled for today are: Erasmus Hall vs. Boys, Commerce vs. Flushing, De Witt Clinton vs. Richmond Hill, Townsend Harris Hall vs. Manual Training and Stuyvesant vs. Evander Childs.

NAME OFFICIALS FOR GAME.

Tufts, Eckersall and Marshall to Oversee Nebraska Match.

Nat Tufts of Brown has been chosen to referee the game between Rutgers and the University of Nebraska on the Polo Grounds on Tuesday, while Walter Eckersall, famous quarterback of the Chicago team more than a decade ago, will act as umpire. Tiny Maxwell will be linesman.

There is some sentiment about changing the color of the Rutgers uniform. It is the consensus of opinion that since Rutgers has played numerous games on the Polo Grounds it should retain its colors, and, if possible, prevail upon the visiting host to change its coat for the afternoon.

Rutgers expects to give Gil Dobie the stiffest kind of a battle for honors in the strife this afternoon at Ithaca.

TOUCHDOWN THROWN OUT.

Committee Rules Villa Nova-George Washington Game Is 7-7 Tie.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Villa Nova has been credited with a 7 to 7 tie in the game played last Saturday against George Washington University, according to a ruling today of the Eastern Committee on College Athletics. At the time George Washington was allowed a 13 to 7 victory.

The decision resulted from a dispute of the second touchdown, when the ball went into the dugout behind the goal posts, where a George Washington player fell on it. Under the rules, the committee held, the dugout is considered part of the grandstand, and therefore the ball should have been played from the twenty-yard line.

Kaiser to Race Bello.

Harry Kaiser of the Bronx, six-day bicycle rider, will meet Tom Bello, Italian-American champion twenty-five-mile outdoor and ten-mile indoor flat floor record-holder, in a special unlimited Australian pursuit race, tonight, in the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory, Marcy Avenue and Heyward Street, Brooklyn.

In addition to the star match there will be four other events, a two-mile handicap, five-mile handicap, consolation race for non-winners and an amateur Australian pursuit race with teams of two men. Among the stars in the amateur world to take part are Arthur Muller, William Wherry, Irving Markow, J. Reilly, W. Vanden Dries, Joseph Phisterer, Harry Aron, William Marino, Joseph O'Shea, George Harvey, Joches Van Zant, William Rhodes, Herbert Wolcott, Jerry Nunziatta, E. C. Bendl, Anthony Altardi, Robert Smith, Andy Watts, Arthur Niminisky, Louis Hibon, Alfred O. Lakey, A. Fontana, A. Paternostio and J. Fried.

WILLIAMS GETS NO PAY FOR GANS BOUT

Boxing Commission Upholds Action of Commonwealth S.C. —192 Licenses Issued.

The action of the Commonwealth Sporting Club in withholding K. O. Lew Williams's end of the purse for the bout in which it was charged by the governing boxing officials he had quit to Panama Joe Gans was upheld yesterday at the meeting of the Boxing Commission. The commission, following a hearing on the case, refused to direct the Commonwealth S. C. officials to pay Williams. This decision was made by the commission in conformity with Section 22 of the New York State boxing law, which provides that "no contestant shall be paid for services before the contest, and should it be determined by the judges and referee that such contestant did not give an honest exhibition of his skill, such services shall not be paid for."

The formal statement disclosing the commission's decision on the case follows:

"At the hearing of the New York State Boxing Commission, at its offices at 291 Broadway, the commission decided not to direct the Commonwealth Sporting Club, Inc., to pay Knockout Lew Williams for his contest with Panama Joe Gans on the night of Oct. 19, when said Lew Williams, according to all the evidence submitted to the commission, deliberately quit.

In addition to being deprived of his end of the purse, Williams drew an indefinite suspension from the commission because of his unsatisfactory exhibition. This punishment was meted out at the meeting of the commission following the night of the contest.

The work of licensing boxers, managers, referees, judges, seconds and trainers showed considerable progress following the latest session of the commission and the License Committee, of which Larry McGuire is Chairman. A total of 192 licenses was distributed. The boxers licensed numbered ninety-nine, and in addition permits were issued to twenty-one managers, four referees, seven judges, forty-nine seconds and two trainers.

Following is a complete list of the licenses issued:

BARNES TO PLAY HERE.

Golf Pro Signs Three-Year Contract with Pelham Country Club.

Jim Barnes, golf professional at the Sunset Hills Club in St. Louis and formerly at Whitemarsh in Philadelphia, will be in the New York metropolitan district next year, according to an announcement last night. Barnes has signed a three-year contract to become professional at the new Pelham Country Club, which will be opened in the Spring.

The famous professional, who formerly held the Western, Southern and P. G. A. championships, and who finished sixth this season in the British open at Deal, England, was in the city recently and inspected Pelham's new layout. He described it as one of the best he had seen, and prophesied it would take its place among the championship links of America within a few seasons. It was designed by Devereux Emmet and is 6,465 yards long. The ground of the club covers 114 acres. It is on the Boston Post Road and fifteen miles from New York.

Barnes, a native of Cornwall, has been in this country more than a dozen years and ranks as one of the leading professionals. During last Spring there were reports that he desired to leave St. Louis and cast his lot in the New York section, but rumors of his leaving stopped when the Sunset Hills Club signed him for another season and contributed toward the expenses of his trip to England.

The Pelham course is expected to be ready for play in April, for most of the construction work is now nearing completion. During the Winter the club officials plan to foster skating, trapshooting and other cold-weather sports. Mont D. Rogers is President, Alfred T. Walker is Vice President, William B. Randall is Treasurer, and Edmund E. Sinclair Secretary. The membership roll will be limited to 300.

NO CONFERENCE PLANNED.

H. G. Pender, Dartmouth's Graduate Manager, Disclaims Report.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 29.—Horace G. Bender, graduate manager of Dartmouth athletics, today denied the statement attributed to him to the effect that a new intercollegiate union was pending among Dartmouth, Penn, Colgate, Cornell and Columbia. Although Dartmouth has had relations with these colleges in the past, there is no such union under contemplation at present. At the same time he intimated that the close friendship of Dartmouth with Penn, Cornell and Columbia in the past few years had brought the colleges into a virtual alliance.

Will Salt Water Shrink Money?

YOUR brow-wrinkled scientists will answer "No"—and ridicule the question. But a foreign exchange expert will answer "Aye, aye, Sir"—with a knowing nod.

* *

For the space of a salt water ocean has depreciated the value of the English Pound Sterling—and has done it rather drastically.

* *

When the shrinking was at its height we landed our Buckingham overcoats—and it's rather a coincidence that the time matched the period before the greatest advance in English woolen prices.

* *

So, from a value standpoint, you get a double advantage—and an advantage in styling and fabric which only an English overcoat possesses.

* *

Buckingham English overcoats are exclusive to these stores—the single breasted winter weight Slip-on models are $65—the double breasted winter Great Coats, $75. Other Overcoats $45 up.

IMPORTANT GAMES ARE SCARCE TODAY

TIGERS TO SEEK VENGEANCE

On the gridiron, ancestral home of the storm family, a comparative calm reigns today. That is to say, there will be nothing like the turbulence and elemental joy that characterized last Saturday's football hurricanes or the fervor and clamor of the classic cyclones which will whirl on many a field at the close of the coming week. This day of minor interest comes each season at just about the same point. It is not known as the children's hour, because football is in all respects, even in its minor inflections, a game for ripe old veterans of twenty or thereabouts—men hardened to the rough knocks and for whom life holds no more illusions.

At any rate—also, notwithstanding and nevertheless—this is the day that looms up when the football campaign has only a scant month left to run, as something akin to a resting spell just preceding the climactic contests of the year, with their attendant thrills and excitement. When one says "akin to a resting spell" one does not necessarily mean such a quiet day as all that. In fact, a squint at the tabloid adjacent to this column will reveal that no armistice has yet been signed. There will be lots of guns booming, including the big ones, but, in general, the heavy field pieces will not be brought to bear upon each other.

The tussle upon which the majority of football optics will be glued this afternoon—and which will cause the greatest number of telephone inquirers to learn this evening that the sports department is too infernally busy to hand out football scores—is to occur at a sometimes quiet retreat in New Jersey, one of whose citizens is sojourning in Washington, where he has a Government position. To Princeton will come the craggy Mountaineers from West Virginia to revisit the scene of a last year's triumph and see whether the old place has changed much. They'll find it much as heretofore, but they themselves, alas, have changed. A telescope couldn't find another Rodgers in their ranks, and that wonderful plunging back will probably be missed today about as sadly as he was last Saturday at New Haven.

Tigers' Hopes Are High.

Of course, plans to wreak vengeance go astray at times. Call up New Haven, mentioning Boston, and you can learn all about that. Still, if ever a 25 to 0 victor one year looked like a 25 to 0 loser—or thereabouts, please; this is no prophecy—the next season, why West Virginia looks the part in the Jungle today.

Not that the Mountaineers haven't got a strong team this year, or that they are the least bit dispirited. The fight they put up against odds at New Haven would be sufficient answer to any such theory as that. But it took both a Rodgers and a Tiger slump to enable the West Virginians to lower the Black and Yellow banner in 1919. The Rodgers is gone and there are no current indications of a Princeton slump. Besides, the Mountaineers' defeats by Pittsburgh and Yale and their tie with Lehigh afford sufficient evidence that they must be rated below their power of last season.

When Yale booked Colgate for today's game back in the time of snow flurries, the engagement didn't look like a cinch for anybody concerned. It has been a troublous year, however, for Huntington and his charges. Lack of veteran players and failure of much of the green material to fulfill early promise have made the road a rocky one for the youths from Hamilton.

Last season there was general repining over the lack of a Yale-Colgate game. This year, upon the eve of the battle, there is slight confidence that it will prove really a battle. The Blue banner floats over a mighty football machine, according to tangible evidence at hand, while Colgate's eleven is not only green but battered. Still, such an uprising as would make the imbroglio worth watching is by no means without the range of possibilities.

Harvard encounters today as a final training table mouthful before the Princeton game, an eleven from which the Crimson squeezed 47 points last season, while allowing in return whatever is left in a newspaper man's pocket just before payday. That Virginia is stronger than in 1919 is clearly indicated by the beating administered to Rutgers. However, Harvard has revealed greater potential powers also, and is in no fear regarding the outcome, although hardly anticipating such a heaped up score as the preceding one.

Notre Dame at West Point.

A leading claimant for public interest today will be the intersectional strife at West Point, where the Cadets will attempt to clear up the little misapprehension existing in Indiana that Notre Dame can wallop the Army mule right along. The Westerners, always powerful, fast and commonly excelling in the aerial form of attack, took the honors in last season's skirmish by the tally of 12 to 9, and it is the hope of the cadets to return the compliment with interest. They haven't had a hard game yet and their real capabilities are unknown.

A clash down in Atlanta, where Centre College will roll and be rolled on the native heath of Georgia Tech, will also attract much attention this afternoon. Each team has had its bumps and each prefers to be bumper rather than bumpee. Considering the strength of each, this looks like a very nice little murder in Georgia this afternoon.

Penn State whanged its big brother, Pennsylvania, last season by 10 to 0. The State College gang wants that many points in each period today.

Rutgers will visit Ithaca in the expectation of getting hers, and Cornell, fired with championship aspirations, will attempt to make the score a decisive one.

Syracuse, also the happy possessor of a slate unmarred by defeat, will engage Holy Cross in combat on the latter's field. The Worcester machine has considerable power, and the Orange may not escape entirely unscathed.

The Navy has an off day after the notable game played a week ago by the Middies at Princeton. That is, the day is not entirely off, but it's almost off, for Western Reserve will visit Annapolis.

Tufts will play on the Dartmouth gridiron, and Vermont is to visit Andrews Field for a setto with Brown. Neither game looks like much, but you never can tell.

Benny Boynton will bring his Purple aggregation from Williamstown to South Field, and Columbia's assignment for the afternoon doesn't appear to resemble a sinecure. Nevertheless, Buck O'Neill expects to stage a lively entertainment for the visitors. The Blue and White coach has juggled the team about a bit, and there is a strong belief on the Heights that Columbia will show marked strength in today's encounter.

Fordham is camping on Detroit's trail out on the lake shore. Not much is known here about Detroit's strength, but the affair looks like a tough job for the new Fordham eleven. Stevens will try to keep her slate, still unblemished save by a tie, clean in her meeting with [illegible]

JONES MAKES SHIFT FOR COLGATE GAME

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 29.—The cold wave which struck here at noon acted like magic upon the Yale football eleven, which has been suffering from the heat. Some of the players have lost weight heavily and have, in many cases, been laid off all the week and did not expect to be used tomorow against Colgate. Head Coach Tad Jones decided today to use Kempton and Kelly in the backfield, returning Kempton to quarterback and trying Howard Campbell out at left halfback.

The Varsity lineup will be:

This team had half an hour of signal drill, and then lined up for a dummy scrimmage against the second team. Both these elevens will probably be used tomorrow. All players who have suffered injuries were at the field except Dickens, who will be unable to don his uniform before the week of the Princeton game. He may play against Harvard.

Captain Callahan, Thorne Murphy, Mack, Aldrich and Johnnie Acosta, the crippled veterans, all had light work, and Murphy kicked several field goals from the 40-yard line. The officials tomorrow will be: Referee—Nathan A. Tufts, Brown University; Umpire—David L. Fultz, Brown; Linesman—H. C. McGrath, Boston College; Field Judge—J. A. Evans, Williams College.

HARVARD TO USE SUBS.

Regulars Will Be Missing in Lineup Against Virginia.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 29.—Tomorrow, when the University of Virginia comes to the Harvard stadium, it will find the Cambridge coaches relying on many substitutes to start the game. Coach Fisher has sent Captain Horween, Centre Rush Havemeyer and Quarterback Johnson down to Princeton with the scouts, and said tonight that even if things went wrong in the game he would not use the regulars now on the injured list, meaning Right End Gaston, Right Tackle Hubbard and Sedgwick, who now is expected to be in trim to play against Princeton a week from tomorrow. Two men who have been out of the game for some time will, however, be tried. The doctors have been keeping Roscoe Pitts, the great kicker who came from Tufts to Harvard a year ago, on the side lines. He has worked in only two scrimmages this year.

Tomorrow, however, he will doubtless be put into the game. He could not play against the Tigers without practice anyway and if his leg stands the strain of hard play tomorrow Harvard will feel that it will have the services of this fine kicking asset in the big games after all.

The other player who will return after a long layoff is Tierney, the center rush transferred from Boston College to Harvard. Tierney broke a cheek bone several weeks back, but a special helmet of headguard material, lined with steel, is expected to provide him with ample protection. Tierney weighs 186 pounds. The Varsity drill today was light, most of the regulars being on the field for a short time.

The rush line of this team averages 183 pounds and the backfield about 168 pounds, some seven or eight pounds less than the set of first string backs. Coach Fisher believes the Virginians will put up a stiff game, but the Harvard coach states that he will under no circumstances take chances with his cripples. Billy Murray, captain of last year's team, will go to New Haven tomorrow to see Yale in action.

Football Game Postponed.

A hitch in the arrangements for the field forced the cancellation yesterday of the football game scheduled for this morning between the Columbia freshmen and Hamilton Institute. The game was to have been played on the Hamilton field.

SEASONED HOOSIERS MEET ARMY TODAY

Annual Game with Notre Dame May Be Slow One Because of Heavy Gridiron.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The Army and Notre Dame await the whistle which will send them into action here tomorrow in their annual gridiron battle. Coach Kanute Rockne and twenty-five husky Hoosiers, who make up the Notre Dame squad, arrived from South Bend, Ind., at noon today. They are quartered at the hotel.

The Westerners arrived in a driving rainstorm which, combined with the showers of yesterday and last night, converted the Army's gridiron into the heaviest of the season. It cleared this evening and with the stiff wind which prevails and a hoped-for sun tomorrow the plains may dry up sufficiently to allow a fast played game.

The Westerners took their workout on the Callum Hall Field this afternoon, while the Army drilled on the north gridiron. Both indulged in only the lightest kind of work. The visitors are seasoned, while the soldiers are trying to find themselves with their green material. Rockne said tonight that he has four of last season's linemen in his forward wall and two backs who have played several seasons. They will be among those to start tomorrow against the cadets.

Of the six games played between Army and Notre Dame, the Westerners have been the victors four times. Coach Charley Daly will line up his strongest combination at the kick-off. Both teams are in the pink of condition. Tomorrow's crowd is expected to be the largest which has witnessed a football game here since the days Harvord, Yale and Princeton used to come. The game will start about 2:30, Eastern standard time.

ARMY.		NOTRE DAME.
D. Stork	L. E.	Riley
L. Storck	L. T.	Coughlin
Braidster	L. G.	H. Anderson
Greene	C.	Larsen
Clark	R. G.	Smith

PENN GIANTS TO BATTLE.

State Eleven Is Sure to Give U. P. One of Year's Greatest Tussles.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—With the arrival of Hugo Bezdek's Penn State eleven this morning the stage was set for the annual and much-heralded gridiron battle between the University of Pennsylvania and Penn State on Franklin Field tomorrow afternoon. Despite the apparent wide margin between the two teams, Penn undergraduates were confident tonight that the game would be the closest played so far this year. The Red and Blue is at its best in both morale and physical condition, and there is a strong feeling that Heisman will uncover a surprise before the afternoon has ended.

Heisman changed his practice ground in the last few days and took his charges to the links of the Whitemarsh Country Club, out on Chestnut Hill, where secret practices were held under ideal weather conditions. The snappy drills are believed to have helped the Quaker eleven immensely. Heisman is fighting chiefly against the overconfidence that helped to lead to the disaster against Virginia Military Institute last Saturday, and with Penn State's reputation preceding it the coach is having little trouble convincing his men that they will have the tussle of their lives tomorrow.

Penn will try out a brand new pair of guards against Bezdek's aggregation. They are Vic Frank, who was shifted over from centre, and Cochran. Wagner will start his first game at tackle, and Captain Bud Hopper will take care of one of the end positions. Carl Thomas has been shifted from tackle to centre. The only probable absentee will be Joe Straus, who is suffering from a sprained ankle.

Bezdek's sole worry is at quarterback, where both Killinger and Redinger are laid up. Williams will direct the eleven tomorrow. The squad which arrived today numbered twenty-six, and a large delegation of students will come down from State College. The student band of forty-five pieces arrived here tonight.

GAME TO TEST CORNELL.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Cornell plays Rutgers tomorrow on Schoellkopf Field, the first game between these two elevens in a good many years. The contest is attracting much attention in Central New York, not only because of the novelty of having a Rutgers team playing on the Cornell field, but because in this encounter lies Cornell's hope of a thoroughgoing and searching test before the Red eleven goes to New York to play Dartmouth on the Polo Grounds on Nov. 6.

The Ithacans were not altogether disappointed in the Colgate game as a means of measuring the strength and weaknesses of the machine Coach Dobie has constructed, for the Maroon put up a more stubborn fight than the score indicates. But the fact remains that at no time this season has there been any doubt about the outcome of a game Cornell has played, and consequently the Ithacans have never been up against the stern test of victory or defeat, and no one can foretell how they would react from such a situation. If Rutgers can provide such a test, tomorrow's game will be of great value to Dobie and the Cornell eleven, especially as it is everywhere conceded that Dartmouth next Saturday will prove as hard a game as any on the schedule.

The Cornell lineup against Rutgers will probably be the same as in the Colgate game, though Hewett may replace Lechler at fullback, and Gouinlock, at left end, may give way to Wegner or Hayner. Dobie has not decided between Hoff and Carey at quarter.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 29.—A squad of twenty Rutgers players left here today for the game with Cornell at Ithaca on Saturday. The players were in excellent condition, except Paul Duffy, halfback, the only regular who will be missing on account of injuries, though there are likely to be a number of new faces in the lineup. There was considerable confidence as to the outcome and all were positive that Cornell would be unable to amass a big score.

Coach Sanford does not expect to have his men at top form against Cornell, but instead is pointing for the Nebraska game at the Polo Grounds, New York, next Tuesday, and as there will be no chance for scrimmage before that time, the Cornell contest will be in the nature of a workout for the Corn Huskers. The work of Winner and Kleb, two new halfbacks, will be watched with particular interest, and Sanford is confident that with "Turk" Gardner, he has at last evolved a backfield combination that will put new life in the Rutgers attack.

Over Half Harvard Freshmen Engage in Organized Sports

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 29.—Six out of every ten freshmen in Harvard College are engaged in organized athletics, according to figures given out today by the university. There are 603 men in the class, of whom 146 are in rowing, 70 in football, 61 in track athletics, 41 in Fall baseball, 20 in soccer, 17 in cross-country work, and 7 in lacrosse, a total of 362. Twenty-three men get their exercise in equitation in an optional military course offered by the university, and the rest of the class, compelled by the regulations to take regular exercise, are engaged in swimming, tennis, handball, squash and gymnasium work.

RETURN OF HARRIS WILL AID COLUMBIA

Field General's Reappearance Helps Chances Against Williams in Game Today.

The unexpected and welcome return of Eunk Harris, first-string quarterback of Columbia, on the eve of the Blue and White's annual tussle with Williams this afternoon, sent the Columbia stock soaring last night. The doughty field general has been absent for two weeks at the bedside of his mother, who has been seriously ill, and he was generally considered gone for the season. He put in a dramatic reappearance shortly before practice yesterday and he was immediately inserted into the lineup, Canapary vacating the quarterback position and going to right halfback.

There was nothing but broad smiles on South Field among both players and spectators. With Harris again at the helm, the Varsity perked up considerably and gladdened O'Neill's eyes with the snappiest exhibition of the week. The team was overflowing with dash during the signal drill, which was lengthened in order to give Harris a drill in the newest formations. Within a short time he had the machine running smoothly again and did a lot of the forward passing, in addition to getting off a number of splendid kicks. Harris's ability in carrying the ball, throwing passes and punting will add a considerable margin to Columbia's offensive strength.

The quarterback's return will probably mean the banishment of Jack Thornton from the backfield. Burtt will start at left halfback, Canapary will return to right half, and Moszczenski, who unlimbered his injured leg yesterday, will probably be the nomination for fullback. This combination shapes up as the strongest that O'Neill can muster.

Prospects last night were that the greatest throng of the season will watch the gladiators battle this afternoon. Only a few hundred tickets were still available yesterday, and by game time, at 2:30 o'clock, an overflow crowd is expected. Williams will sit in the north stand, which has been reserved in full by the Purple in order to take care of the big number of Williams graduates in this city.

The centre of attraction, of course, will be the much-heralded Benny Boynton, once All-American selection at quarterback on Walter Camp's mythical eleven and one of the greatest runners in the game today. Stopping the Williams flash promises to be a man-sized job for the Columbia defense, which has been given special instruction in the difficult task. If the ends and secondary defense are equal to the assignment, Columbia feels confident of piercing Williams for enough points to win.

Two players will make their season's début in the lineup—Brodil at centre, in the position formerly occupied by Captain Jack Kienninger, and Herman at right guard, where Calloway, the colored player, held forth in previous games. Brodil's work as defensive centre will be closely watched.

Forsythe	L. E.	Codding
Modarelli	L. T.	Lassel
Walder	L. G.	Fulle
Brodil	C.	Smith
Herman	R. G.	Humes
Scovil	R. T.	Fargo
Pulleyn	R. E.	Joslyn
Harris	Q. B.	Boynton
Burtt	L. H. B.	Richmond
Canapary	R. H. B.	McLean
Moszczenski	F. B.	Burger

CONFERENCE GAMES TODAY.

Three Undefeated Teams to Take Part In Important Contests.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Three undefeated teams in the race for the Western Conference Championship, Chicago, Ohio State and Illinois, will take the field tomorrow in games which will have an important bearing on the "Big Ten" title. Interest in the contests is at highest pitch owing to the prospect for elimination of at least one of the contenders.

Thirty thousand persons, including a delegation of 1,500 with a sixty-piece band from Columbus, are expected to witness the battle between Chicago and Ohio State, the first game ever played between the two institutions. No contest in recent years has aroused such enthusiasm, and as a result of Ohio's sensational victory over the powerful Wisconsin eleven a week ago, football devotees are unwilling to hazard a guess as to the outcome of tomorrow's battle.

Illinois will clash with Minnesota at Urbana, but the game, unless Minnesota springs a surprise and trounces the Illinois eleven, will have no effect on the championship race, since Minnesota has been twice beaten this season.

Two vastly improved teams will take the field at Indianapolis when Northwestern tackles Indiana. Both teams have sustained upsets in the title race, but are slated to present their full strength tomorrow.

Michigan and Purdue will venture out of Conference circles. The Wolverines will take on Tulane University of New Orleans at Ann Arbor, while Purdue will battle Wabash at Lafayette. Tulane comese North with the reputation of playing a spectacular game.

WEINHEIMER MAY BE OUT.

Injury Likely to Keep Violet Captain from Lineup Against Trinity.

New York University's football team will be handicapped on Tuesday when it meets the Trinity College eleven on Ohio Field, if, as seems likely, Captain Jack Weinheimer is out of the lineup. In the Hamilton game Weinheimer suffered a torn muscle in his left ankle, and Gargan will probably keep him out of the Election Day game as he wants to take no chances.

Gargan has been working several men in Weinheimer's place in the backfield, but it is not certain who will get the assignment. Nelson, Bates and Mayer have all shown promise. Nelson has a bad knee that may keep him out of the game, but Gargan seems to be satisfied with his ability, and if he is able he will probably get the berth.

Some shifts in the line are possible, but nothing definite is known as to Gargan's plans. Horrigan, the big guard, has been shifted from one end of the line to the other, and shows a great amount of ability at each position. Edgar has also been in the line most of the time this week, and should Horrigan go to some other place he will play guard.

CALLS BETTING A FOOTBALL MENACE

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Declaring gambling and betting to be as strong a menace to college football as professional baseball, Romeyn Berry, graduate manager of athletics at Cornell University, today issued a statement to the student body at Cornell warning them against wagering money on the outcome of the Cornell football contests and especially on the Cornell-Dartmouth game to be played at the Polo Grounds on Nov. 6.

In his statement he warns of the methods alleged to be in use among certain Ithaca residents, one of whom he particularly denounces as "Citizen A," to obtain bets, many at odds, on the Cornell eleven.

His hinting also at the possible buying of college football players following the methods used in the famous Chicago White Sox scandal in baseball may explain in some manner why the Cornell team has been practicing behind closed doors all season and why Coach Gil Dobie refused to allow his team to run through signals on Schoelkopf Field preliminary to Saturday games, but gives his Varsity signal drill in the baseball cage far from the eyes of the spectators in the stands waiting for the game.

GREEN TO SAVE STRENGTH.

Spears Will Keep Dartmouth Regulars Out of Tufts Game Today.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 29.—Dartmouth will present a patched up appearance in the game against Tufts tomorrow, according to an announcement made tonight by Coach Spears. Although Captain Robertson and Shelburne, backfield stars who have been injured for a good part of the season, are back in condition, Spears has decided to save them for use against Cornell next week. Other regulars who will not start are Lynch and Moore at ends, Sonnerborg, tackle; Holbrook, halfback; Crisp and Merritt, guards. The latter two, however, will be sent in if the contest proves closer than is expected at present.

The starting lineup will be: Jordan, quarterback; Bower and Sanderson, halfbacks; Burke, fullback; Foster and Streng, ends; Neidlinger and O'Meara, tackles; A. Schembach and Weld, guards, and Cunningham, centre. Jordan will do the kicking.

Should the Massachusetts eleven show unexpected strength the Green mentor plans to throw in his regulars despite their injuries. Otherwise, he will save them for the Polo Grounds clash with Cornell, now considered the big objective of the Green team.

TEST NAVY BACKS TODAY.

Folwell Will Try Two Sets In Game with Western Reserve.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 29.—The Midshipmen are expecting little difficulty with Western Reserve here tomorrow, but Coach Folwell seized the opportunity today to test two different backfields. Poole, Watters, Hamilton and McKee will start tomorrow's game, and Rawlings, Taylor, Organ and Dole will be tried later. Koheler, Noyes and Cruise, regular backs, will be rested.

Special interest is taken in the showing of Rawlings and Taylor, who have indicated in practice this week that they are likely to develop into fast and powerful runners.

PRINCETON LINEUP SHOWS CHANGES

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 29.—Princeton will take the field against West Virginia in the Palmer Stadium tomorrow without any overconfidence as to the result. Bill Roper spent a lot of time this afternoon drilling his men in defense against West Virginia formations and he will send into the field a slightly altered lineup which he banks on to avenge last season's defeat at the hands of the Southerners.

The lineup which ran through the plays this afternoon discloses several unexpected changes. Frank Murrey will be calling the numbers in Don Lourie's place when the first whistle blows, as the latter is not in the pink of condition, and Keene Fitzpatrick, the Tiger trainer, is unwilling to risk losing him for the Harvard game by any accident that might happen tomorrow. Another absentee will be Joe Scheerer, the tall punter having suffered a bereavement in his family recently. John McCaull will also be missing, as Roper has decided to try McMannon in his place. The latter is heavy and well built for the job, and the Nassau coaches have been trying hard all season to develop him to fill the gap in the middle of the line.

Legendre will start the game on one wing, while Raymond will take care of the end opposite him. Today's workout was a light one, practice for the kickers and a short but snappy signal drill for the first team being the only work prescribed by Coach Roper.

The rehearsal started on University Field, where Keck and Murrey tried drop and placement kicks from the 30-yard line with fair success, while Thompson was booting the leather toward the uprights from all angles and distances. The scene shortly shifted to the stadium and a punting contest ensued between Murrey, Thompson and Cleaves, the latter coming out ahead by averaging slightly under fifty yards. In the continued absence of Wittmer, the local instructors are put to it for a man to do the punting satisfactorily, now that Scheerer is no longer available. Cleaves should be able to fill the bill against the West Virginians, and his sprinting should be an added offensive weapon.

The freshman football team left this afternoon for New Haven, where they are slated to meet the Eli yearlings on Saturday. The cub outfit has been improving rapidly in the last few weeks, and despite a disastrous preliminary season, are regarded to have an even chance of overcoming the Blue aggregation.

MEREDITH MAY NOT PLAY.

West Virginia's End Unable to Participate in Final Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—West Virginia's football squad arrived here at noon today and at 2 o'clock went through a light workout on Franklin Field. Meredith, the big end, was still laid up and was ordered to bed at the hotel instead of taking part in the workout. There is little hope that he will be able to play against Princeton tomorrow.

Hawkins was used at his end and the other regulars were the same as announced by Coach McIntyre yesterday. Johnson, tackle, was drilled for a long period in place kicking today.

WAR MASK AGAIN BEATEN BY RECOUNT

LOVELY FINALLY WINS ONE

Graduates from Maiden Class by Capturing Test at One Mile—Lady Stella Leads Juveniles.

If the hair-line victory of C. A. Stoneham's Recount over Johnny Dundee's War Mask a few days ago left any doubt of his ability to repeat the performance, it was removed yesterday to the satisfaction of a thoroughly chilled crowd that turned out at Empire City. This son of Ballot once more defeated War Mask at practically the same weight arrangement in the Eclipse Handicap at a mile, and left no question about the victory this time. He won by six lengths and raced the Dundee horse to pieces in the stretch drive. Sweep Clean was third among the seven that tried for the purse.

The Eclipse Handicap was the feature of a card that offered little in the way of an attraction. Most of the horses have been shipped to Maryland or sent to Winter quarters and with only one more day remaining of the local season it was probably not to be expected that better events would be arranged. The cold wind that whistled through the stands did not add much to the pleasure and the log fire in the clubhouse was the most attractive feature at the course.

Recount was at home in the soft going and ran a much better race than the last time, when his decision was gained by only a neck. He was installed the favorite and his victory was the most popular of the day, for he carried more support than any other horse during the afternoon. This was indicated by the reception he received when he got back to the stands.

War Note Takes Lead.

At the outset it appeared that neither Recount nor War Mask would get home in front, for War Note raced into a long lead rounding the first turn and when he got to the backstretch had opened up a gap of half a dozen lengths. He ran as though he were going to make a runaway race of it, but by the time he reached the far turn he had had enough. About the time he switched his tail and stopped, Recount charged on him and, closely accompanied by War Mask, took the lead. War Mask made a bid at the head of the stretch, but once Recount was headed for home he drew away easily. War Mask was as easily second best and was six lengths in front of Sweep Clean. Tom McTaggart was outweighted and was never a factor in the contest.

Buddy Ensor went to Empire City to ride one race and when returned home. His one mount was a winner, however, for he won with Lady Stella in the first race, a dash of five and a half furlongs for maiden two-year-olds. He got Lady Stella away in front and kept her there for the entire journey and had three lengths to spare over Ravanna, with Gwendola third.

The second race was particularly satisfactory to Trainer James Fitzsimmons, when Lovely emerged from the maiden class in a test at a mile. Fitzsimmons has started this filly a number of times recently in races where she figured to have a good chance, only to be disappointed each time. Lovely finally drifted down to the cheapest class of performers and there she found her level.

Wins by Ten Lengths.

The result was she got home about ten lengths in front of Caddie, Flypaper and others, which are to be constantly found among the also runs. Flypaper showed a burst of speed for half a mile and stole a long lead, but tired badly, and Lovely took command to win very easily.

George Peterson's Ragazza, which had won a race the day before, came right back and scored another victory in the third race over the short six-furlong route. She defeated the well-played favorite, Sammy Kelly, by about two lengths while American Boy got up for third. Ragazza showed her fondness for the mud and, following the pace closely, drew out easily in the stretch. Sammy Kelly might have made the decision closer but for suffering mishaps. He was pocketed in the back stretch and was forced to go wide turning for home. He only managed to get up in the last few strides to take second.

George Peterson scored another victory in the fifth race with L'Enjoleur, which has long threatened to win, and, like Lovely, finally dropped into a spot where he could not miss. The race was at a mile and L'Enjoleur won by six lengths from Chimera, with Blodwin third. Florsain, which was named for the race, was scratched while in the paddock by order of the stewards. She was so lame that she could scarcely walk. L'Enjoleur raced Chimera down and drew out in the stretch to win as his rider pleased.

Fright Big Disappointment.

The followers of the favorites received a setback in the last race, a six-furlong dash for two-year-olds, when the Oneck Stable's Fright, a 1 to 2 choice, finished last in a field of three. The winner was the Greentree Stable's Good Bye, which galloped home six lengths in front of J. W. McClelland's Irish Abbess, making her first start. Good Bye raced into the lead in the first furlong after having tried to run away at the barrier, and was never threatened for the balance of the distance. Fright proved a bitter disappointment, for she displayed none of the speed expected of her and though put to a drive in the stretch, was beaten two lengths by Irish Abbess for second place.

TO RUN AT VAN CORTLANDT.

Columbia Harriers Will Meet Williams Team This Morning.

As a preliminary to the Columbia-Williams football game on South Field this afternoon, the cross-country teams of the two rivals will clash in a six-mile hill and dale race over the Van Cortlandt Park course, beginning at 11:30 this morning. It will be the first meet of the season for the Purple and the second for Columbia, which was represented in the Syracuse invitation run recently. The Williams harriers arrived in the city last night, led by Captain H. H. Kellogg.

The line-up of the two teams will be as follows:

Columbia—Captain Walter Higgins, Al Turner, H. J. Lowenkopf, Bert Harris, A. W. Haskell, B. Schaeffer and either G. De Manais or H. G. Hudson. Williams—Captain H. H. Kellogg, H. R. Coan, J. W. Crofts, C. F. Jones, W. B. Wolfe and E. V. Peasce. Crofts, who is the Williams track Captain, is the star of the visiting aggregation. H. H. Brown, two-mile Intercollegiate champion, will not run for the Purple. The referee will be Dr. George L. Meylan of Columbia.

SERVATIUS WINS AND LOSES

Steinbugler Beats Veteran, 150-128—Latter Defeats Boyd, 150-142.

Louis A. Servatius was on both the winning and losing ends of a billiard double-header staged last night at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn in the tournament for the interborough championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. Servatius lost to Charles Steinbugler by a score of 150 to 128, and then turned around and defeated Frank Boyd by 150 to 142. Both matches were as close as the scores indicate and the three players gave an admirable exhibition of balkline billiards.

In his match with Steinbugler Servatius made a high run of 18 and averaged 3 27-41, while his opponent's best effort was a cluster of 21 buttons. Steinbugler averaged 3 8-40. Servatius started the match in whirlwind style, running 21 in his first inning. It looked then as though he were going to make a runaway match of it, but Steinbugler found his stroke and caught him in a few innings. From then on to the finish it was nip and tuck. Steinbugler ran out with an unfinished run of 11.

The second match was equally close and exciting, and one of the biggest crowds that has gathered at the Brooklyn Academy all season was given a remarkably fine exhibition of billiards. Servatius made a high run of 30 and averaged 4 18-33, while Boyd's high run was 25 and his average 4 10-33. The result was in doubt up to the last minute of play.

The final matches of the tournament are due to take place on Monday evening. If Boyd wins on that occasion the three-cornered tie will still continue, but Steinbugler has a chance to break the tie. A victory will give him the honors of the tournament.

ADAMS IS CUE VICTOR.

Defeats Whitehill, 25 to 20, in Three-Cushion Billiard Tourney.

The final game in the three-cushion billiard handicap at Doyle's Broadway and Forty-first Street academy drew an immense crowd last night. The contestants represented both ends of the handicap, as William Adams, the winner, played from scratch, while Clarence Whitehill received an allowance of 11 points, which was the limit. Adams won by a score of 25 to 20, the game taking forty-five innings.

The game demonstrated what a strong factor safety play is. When the twenty-fifth inning was reached Adams seemed out of it, as Whitehill was leading by the score of 20 to 10. Adams then began playing the toughest safety which he is capable of, and experts claim him to be the strongest oller of the amateur field. When a shot appeared which looked the least bit doubtful he played more for the leave than for the point, and twelve times during the match he played deliberately safe. That his method was correct is shown by the fact that Whitehill failed to score during the last half of the match, and it is doubtful if any amateur could so strong was Adams's defense.

Monday night at Doyle's will witness the beginning of the snooker handicap, as well as the annual pocket billiard handicap. The latter has one hundred entries.

HOPPE AVERAGES 75.

Champion William Hoppe averaged 75 in his exhibition billiard match against Charles Peterson last night at the Morningside Academy. He ran out 300 points in four sessions, the feature of his work being his wonderful nursing. Two beautiful massé shots drew plenteous applause from one of the biggest galleries the Morningside Academy has ever held. Peterson played admirable billiards himself, but Hoppe never really gave him a chance to get set. Hoppe's score was 86, 65, 95, 54—300, while Peterson, averaging 16, counted 1, 3, 56, 8 for a total of 68.

McDANIEL IS VICTOR.

Defeats Cohen in Three-Cushion Billiard Match by 35 to 27.

In the three-cushion amateur handicap billiard tournament in progress at Joe Thum's Academy J. McDaniel last night defeated M. Cohen by a score of 35 to 27.

McDaniel made a high run of 3, and Cohen's best effort was 2. Cohen indulged in a great deal of safety play in the long-drawn-out battle, which was distinguished mainly by the amount of checking done by both players. McDaniel made three safeties, to eight for his opponent. The winner was particularly good in his bank shots.

Boxing at Commonwealth Tonight.

Flyweight boxers will occupy the centre of the stage this evening at the weekly Saturday night show of the Commonwealth Sporting Club, where a quartet of bouts between ring midgets will be held. The stellar attraction of fifteen rounds will bring together Joe Dillon and Mickey Nelson.

Donnaccna Probable Favorite In $7,500 Latonia Cup Today

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 29.—The Autumn season will come to a close here tomorrow with the running of the $7,500 Latonia Cup, a race at two miles and a quarter, in which G. W. Loft's Donnacona will probably go to the post favorite. There are but six named for the test, with Minto 2d assigned to top weight with 120 pounds. This is one race that the West has hoped to win and the chances for a victory by an Eastern horseman depend entirely on the Loft colt.

PAUL JONES WINS OVER POOR FIELD

Kentucky Derby Victor Scores Easy Success on Muddy Track at Laurel.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 29.—Ral Parr's Paul Jones, winner of the Kentucky Derby and The Suburban, scored his first victory since the latter event here this afternoon when he beat some ordinary performers at a mile and a quarter. He won from Dr. Joe by slightly more than a length while Tantalus was third among five starters.

Paul Jones had been defeated several times recently and his race today was no indication that he was at his best again, for he had little opposition. However, he did have a muddy track which appears to be necessary for his best performances and he led all the way under restraint and was an easy winner at all stages. Dr. Joe followed the pace closely to the stretch but could not get up and the others, including Snapdragon 2d, were never contenders.

G. A. Cochran's St. Michael proved the best of the two-year-olds which opposed him in a six furlong dash and won easily from Dr. Chas. Wells and Night Raider, among others. He raced Harmonique into defeat in the first three furlongs and drew away to take command.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For two-year-olds; claiming; purse $1,000; five and a half furlongs. Weather clear; track slow.

BOY RUNNERS IN ACTION.

Seventeen Teams Will Be Entered in Cross-Country Run Today.

The Public Schools Athletic League will conduct the third series of the quadrangular high school cross-country runs this morning, starting at 10 o'clock. The interest in this series of runs has been greater than had been expected by the committee. There are seventeen teams entered, with a maximum entry of 170 boys participating in this event.

The cross-country course to be used by the boys this morning will be the famous Van Cortlandt Park trial, which has been used by the Intercollegiate Association and also by the Amateur Athletic Union. The contestants run one lap—an approximate distance of two and one-half miles.

In addition to the regular teams which participate in this run, many of the schools send their second-string teams, so that they may run over the course after the last team has been sent on its way. In this way the school coaches are drilling a group of boys for cross-country, so in addition to 170 boys actually competing there are at least 100 to 150 boys taking advantage of the opportunity for cross-country training.

HARRIERS ARE READY.

Cornell and Harvard Teams Go Hill-and-Dale Route Today.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Cornell and Harvard will meet here tomorrow afternoon in a dual cross country meet over a six and a quarter mile course, the runners to finish in the stadium just before the Cornell-Rutgers football game. This will be Cornell's second meet of the season, the Red and White harriers having scored an easy victory in an invitation race at Syracuse on Oct. 16.

The Cornell runners against Harvard will include all of the men who took part in the Syracuse meet. Those scoring for Cornell on that occasion were McDermott, Bonsal, Carter, N. P. Brown and R. E. Brown.

Cross country racing [illegible] is back to where it was before the war and interest in the sport is, perhaps, keener than ever, because, after the home season is finished, a team of seven Cornellians will cross the Atlantic to meet an Oxford-Cambridge team in an international cross country race near London.

GREEN TO MEET M. I. T.

Dartmouth and Tech Harriers Will Run Over Hanover Course.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 29.—Coach Avery of the Dartmouth cross-country team announced tonight that Coakley, Sherburn, Porter, Manchester, Mills and Merriam would compose the Green squad tomorrow against M. I. T. The race will be run over the Hanover course, six miles long. The Tech harriers defeated Harvard two weeks ago, and are considered one of the strongest teams in New England.

Coakley is the strong man for the Green, while McMahon is the best bet for Tech.

LATONIA RACE EASY FOR MISS MUFFINS

She Has Two-Length Margin Over Rivals in Two-Year-Old Feature Sprint.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 29.—M. L. Fletcher's fleet Miss Muffins had little difficulty in winning the five and a half furlong sprint for two-year-olds, which was the feature of the card at Latonia this afternoon. Racing in her best form and apparently liking the soft track, she seemed to outclass her opposition and won by two lengths from Bruce Dudley and Pongee without being fully extended.

It promised to be a real contest right after the start when Guv'nor raced out with the winner and forced her to set a fast pace. After going three furlongs Guv'nor tired, and when he reached the stretch he quit utterly and was a bad last.

Sand Bed scored handily in the fourth race when he won by two lengths from Grey Eagle and Rapid Stride, among others, in a six-furlong sprint. He had all the speed of the field, and, going to the front with the break, went into a comfortable lead, though he had to be shaken up at the end when Grey Eagle charged on him.

WE SELL SO SOCONY MOTOR GASOLINE STANDARD OIL CO. OF N.Y.

The sign of a reliable dealer and the world's best Gasoline

Every motor highway and byway throughout picturesque New England and New York, is a part of the long "Socony Trail".

THE natural beauty of Lake George is always alluring to the observing motorist. And you will find it convenient there to replenish your supply of Socony gasoline. Socony stations are located at frequent intervals along the roads of eastern Massachusetts—and in western Vermont or northern New York State.

Socony is the quality motor fuel. The methods used in refining it are the result of a comprehensive experience, extending from the infancy of the industry to the present day. New processes have been developed from time to time in well-equipped research laboratories. Every known method is used to produce the cleanest, most powerful gasoline that can be made.

Socony is first and foremost a dependable gasoline. Its low boiling point insures easy starting, complete combustion and full power and mileage at all times wherever you buy it. Begin using Socony regularly—for all-year economy.

The red, white and blue Socony sign is an assurance of reliable quality. And every Socony dealer strives to render exceptional service. You can always expect to receive it—and you will.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Irregular Recovery in Stocks—Money 10 Per Cent.—German Exchange Weak.

In the sixth consecutive day of 10 per cent. call money (again with 9 per cent. the day's minimum), prices of most stocks recovered on yesterday's Stock Exchange. The day's movement, however, was irregular and entirely a matter of professional activities. Some stocks, especially in the industrial group, declined a point or more before the later general recovery, and the day's net gains varied widely. Bond market prices also were generally firmer than the day before, including the war loans.

In the foreign exchange market the course of rates on Germany was the point of interest; they touched yesterday the lowest figure since the third week of March. From the quotation of 1 to 1.1-3 cents in that week, which represented a depreciation of 95 per cent. from normal parity, the mark recovered in May to about 3¼ cents, a depreciation of 87 per cent. Yesterday's rate for German sight exchange was practically 1¼ cents again. To countries like our own, such variations in an excessively depreciated currency may seem of little importance; but, after all, they mean that the foreign purchasing power of Germany's currency has been trebled in two months and again reduced nearly two-thirds in the five months following. Stated in this way, it is easy to see how absolutely Germany's home market and efforts at a foreign trade must have been upset. The German habit of mind being what it is in such things, some attempt at readjusting the paper currency in a drastic way would seem to be one of the probabilities of the not wholly remote future. Sterling was little changed yesterday; French exchange was steadier.

The September earnings of the railways, a considerable number of which were made public yesterday, are on their face more confusing than illuminating. This could hardly have been otherwise. The Interstate Commerce Commission itself, in its report of July 29 granting 20 per cent. increase in passenger rates and 25 to 40 per cent. in freight rates, emphasized the fact that "it is impossible to forecast with any degree of certainty what the volume of traffic will be;" to which one commissioner added that "no one can tell what revenue will actually be produced." Subject of itself to these uncertainties, the rate award had been immediately preceded by a grant of higher pay to employes by the Railway Labor Board, and the increase in wages, being allotted not by a uniform percentage but by specified additions to the previous pay of different groups of employes, created a question of great intricacy as to what actual increase in the payroll on a given railway or system of railways would be. In so far as this wage award was retroactive, the question of the next few monthly accounts was still further complicated.

Undoubtedly this is why the net operating income for September, the first month of operation under the new wages and the new rates, shows such seemingly bewildering variation in the comparison for different roads with the results of a year ago. Some of the statements produce all the increase in net that could have been expected, but some give actually smaller net returns than in September, 1919. On the whole, the showing can hardly be taken as anything but a preliminary and purely experimental test. It was frankly so regarded by the Interstate Commerce Commissioners. Their duty in the whole matter of rate-fixing was explicitly recognized by them as that of "establishing rates that will yield in the aggregate, as nearly as may be," the prescribed percentage on property valuations. If the rates as first arranged should be either insufficient or more than sufficient for the purpose of carrying out these instructions, then, so the commission added, they "must necessarily be subject to such readjustment as the facts may warrant." But the facts still remain to be determined.

N. O. T. & M. Dividend a Surprise.

Declaration of an initial dividend of 1½ per cent. on the capital stock of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company, payable December 1, to stockholders of record November 20, was somewhat of a surprise to the financial district yesterday, but after the company's earnings statement for September was digested a different viewpoint was taken. Gross earnings of the road in September were $1,376,549 and net for the month was $404,380. This was a big improvement over the $134,002 net reported in the seven months of this year ended with July.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Foreign exchange rates moved within a narrow range yesterday and offerings of bills were light. Sterling sight drafts were quoted at $3.45⅞ as the maximum and $3.45¼ as the minimum, the final rate being $3.45⅝, fractionally lower than on Thursday. Francs were steady. The German rate advanced from 1.26 to to 1.36 after an early decline. Japanese exchange remained firm at 50.87½, which was only a shade lower than a week ago. The premium on Japanese exchange has been maintained for a long period despite a persistent flow of gold from San Francisco to Yokohama, representing the transfer of private balances.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Conserving Oil Resources.

In discussing the oil situation a few days ago the President of one of the largest producing companies expressed the opinion that it was highly essential that supplies be conserved, else the world would experience eventually an oil shortage which would be beyond possibility of correction. The supply of petroleum, he said, is fixed, whether the supply be oil produced from present known fields or not. There is just so much petroleum and our consumption against this supply is making steady increases. He held that the burning of oil underneath boilers in lieu of other fuel was extravagant to the utmost degree, stating that the oil should be used in Diesel engines or in the form of gasoline in the gas engine. However that may be, the use of fuel oil is rapidly spreading, even to the displacement of coal in certain localities, and it is well worthy of note that the inroads against potential products are great. Some corrective plan must be applied, and applied forcefully and quickly, if anything approximating conservation is to be attained.

***

Mexican Petroleum Earnings.

Edward L. Doheny, President of the Mexican Petroleum Company, in discussing earnings of the company yesterday, said that the 1920 earnings would be well in excess of those for 1919, and predicted that 1921 earnings would surpass those of the current year by fully 50 per cent. The report of the company for last year still hangs in abeyance because of difficulties encountered with relation to Federal taxes.

Following the announcement of the 150 per cent. stock dividend by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana the shares broke sharply yesterday on profit taking. This was in line with the old theory of Wall Street to sell on the "good news." There was a recovery toward the close, which was at 785, compared with a final sale of 805 the preceding day. It is reported that a reduction in the par value of the shares is contemplated and that such a proposal will be submitted to a meeting of the stockholders which will be called within a short time. It is expected that the new par will be $10 a share.

***

United Fruit.

A special meeting of the Board of Directors of the United Fruit Company has been called for Monday, according to word received here yesterday from Boston. It is believed by some that a stock dividend declaration will be made at this meeting. The regular meeting of the board does not take place until Nov. 9.

***

The High Money.

Every day of this week money on the Stock Exchange has been tight, relatively speaking, with the rate going to 10 per cent. on every one of the five afternoons when there were quotations. The early rise was attributed to the Government's large operations, but the continuance of the stiff price for demand accommodation has caused some readjustment of theories. On the whole, probably it would be more accurate to say that Wall Street has abandoned one theory of fairly positive sort for a more or less muddled idea, not at all positive, that the Government operations, plus the new financing, plus the crop demands, have made money scarce. The whole business is confusing and, at least in stock market circles, there seems to be no idea worthy of the name, of what it is all about and when it is going to end and allow rates to come back to where they were two weeks or so ago.

***

Acceptances.

Acceptance dealers say that the present week has been the worst they have experienced in fully a year. The demand for bills has been nil, except for a very slight inquiry for prime New York names, and as a result there has been an accumulation of bills in dealers' portfolios which is not at all as the dealers would like to see it. Some of them say this is the "pre-election" influence, while others have other explanations. But because of the very poor demand most men in this market look for an increase of sizable proportions in the amount of bills purchased by the Federal Reserve Bank and held for investment by that institution.

Illinois Central Equipments.

The $8,107,000 Illinois Central 7 per cent. equipment trust certificates, recently approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and sold by the company to Kuhn, Loeb & Co., have been placed with investors. The certificates are secured by pledge of miscellaneous equipment valued at $13,515,918, and will mature serially $737,000 each year for eleven years. The prices at which the certificates were sold were said to have been from 101 to 103¾, representing income yield of 6¾ per cent. on the shorter maturities to 6.80 per cent. for the longer.

September Railroad Earnings.

Sentiment regarding the changes in earning power of the railroads as shown in the initial reports covering September, the first month in which the new schedule of interstate rates became effective, was somewhat mixed in local railroad offices yesterday. It was the general feeling that the September earnings figures will fall to reflect a true picture of the earning power of the roads under the new schedule, first, because of lower intrastate rates prevailing in some of the States which opposed the increase on statutory or other grounds, and secondly, because of the heavier maintenance and expense expenditures which the roads made in September. In addition, it was asserted that many of the carriers have not as yet cleared up all of the back pay due to employes under the last wage advance. And it is thought that until the differences between intrastate and interstate rates is cleared up and expenditures hit a normal gait, no true idea of the benefits of interstate rate increases may be had. At the same time the figures showed increases in both gross and net, which certainly look favorable as compared with earnings in the last month in which the old rate schedules were in effect.

***

Strike Hurt D. L. & W. in September.

In comparison with August earnings of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad the September figures while greatly improved both as to gross and net would have undoubtedly been better had the anthracite miners not been on strike for three weeks during that month. In August, D. L. & W. showed a deficit of $1,806,536 in place of net earnings due to the inclusion in that month of back wages for May, June and July, so that a showing of $983,778 in net for last month was a big gain. But net would have been a great deal more if several of the mines served by the road had not been working at about half capacity during three weeks in September.

Railroad Shares Irregular.

It was apparent in yesterday's market that traders were digesting each September railroad earnings statement individually as the reports reached Wall Street. In instances where the roads showed a big improvement in net as well as gross earnings shares moved into higher ground although this was not true in all cases. On the other hand shares of some of the companies which reported earnings which were not considered as favorable as had been expected sought lower levels. So that at the close the price changes in the railroad group were somewhat irregular and confused. With the exception of Southern Pacific, which was easily the leader of the group and gained more than a point and a half on the day, interest lagged as compared with that shown in the same shares a comparatively short time ago.

CUBA TO GET LOAN FROM BANKERS HERE

American Financiers Arrange for Credit of $75,000,000 to $100,000,000.

MAY BE OFFERED TO PUBLIC

Haitian Government Also to Obtain $15,000,000 Loan to Care for External Debt.

The Cuban Government is to secure a loan in this market of $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 from a group of banks and bankers headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., the Guaranty Trust Company, the National City Company, the Chase Securities Corporation and others. In addition to the local institutions it is planned to have leading banks and banking firms in other cities participate.

There was some doubt yesterday as to whether this advance of credit would be purely a banking credit or would embrace the formal offering of securities to the investing public. Several bankers who are in the group arranging the matter expressed the opinion that an offering would be made and that the securities would be in the form of short-term notes of the Cuban Government, running for one year or serially for three to five years. If there is an offering the rate of interest probably will be about 8 per cent.

The proceeds of this loan, it was further stated yesterday, will be used to finance the Cuban sugar crop, and for no other purpose, and because of this fact the short maturity will be entirely practical, as far as having the Cuban Government liquidate the debt within a very short time is concerned.

The money will be advanced to the Government, which in turn will re-lend it to the sugar interests on the island, securing the advances by collateral satisfactory to the lending banks here. The whole matter will be approved by the United States State Department before final consummation of the transaction is possible. It was said yesterday that in all probability no official statement regarding this loan would be made until after the elections next week. The Cuban elections take place on Monday, and as Tuesday will be a holiday here it is expected to be the latter part of next week before the matter is settled.

The Government of Haiti also is to secure a loan from New York bankers. This will be for $15,000,000, and probably will be arranged through the National City Bank. This loan has been approved by the State Department, and the proceeds will be used exclusively to take care of Haiti's external debt, which is slightly less than the $15,000,000. Most of this external debt is held by French interests, payable in francs, and because of the heavy discount on francs at the present time liquidation of the debt would be accomplished at a considerable saving to the Government of Haiti. The loan is expected to be a banking operation, but, as in the case of the Cuban transaction, ultimately there may be a public offering of securities.

DOHENY ISSUES STATEMENT

Explains Relations of Mexican and British Mexican Petroleum Cos.

Edward L. Doheny, President of the Mexican Petroleum Company, issued a statement yesterday explaining the position of the British-Mexican Petroleum Company in its relation to the other Doheny properties. His statement says, in part:

"As stated in the report of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company to its stockholders last year, the British-Mexican Petroleum Company was organized by an American and British group, the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company being the owner of one-half of the stock. The purpose of the company was to engage in the sale of petroleum products in the United Kingdom. Contracts were made at that time for the sale of fixed quantities of petroleum for a period of three years, amounting to about one million tons annually.

"Nothing has occurred since then in the way of a change in the relationship of these companies. The British-Mexican does not own a share of stock in any producing company. The Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company owns one-half of the stock of the British-Mexican. In carrying on the business for which the company was organized the British-Mexican is now furnishing the oil using steamers of the White Star and Cunard Lines, the Olympic and Aquitania, respectively."

OFFERS STOCK TO EMPLOYES

General Electric Gives Details of Installment Purchase Offer.

The General Electric Company has issued details of the plan under which employes may subscribe to stock in accordance with an announcement on this point made recently. The subscription is open to any employe who has been on the payroll since Sept. 1, 1920. He is offered the privilege of taking ten shares of capital stock at $136 a share. This is 2½ points under the closing price for the stock yesterday on the New York Stock Exchange. However, there will be a credit of $20 a share against the subscription price, which will represent a net return substantially the same as that which would be enjoyed by any one purchasing stock on deferred installments and receiving cash and stock dividends.

Payments are to be made in twenty-nine monthly installments of $4 each, or in 116 weekly installments of $1 a share for each share subscribed. Allowing for the $20 credit, the certificates go to the subscriber when $116 a share has been paid in. Advance payments will not be permitted. The stock will be open to subscription during the month of November.

TIRE CO. ARRANGES CREDITS.

Goodyear Concern Finds It Unnecessary to Make New Loans.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company is to receive financial assistance, either through the extension of maturing loans or by the extension of new bank credits, to the extent of $25,000,000, and this will make it unnecessary for the company to do any additional financing at the present time, according to an announcement made yesterday by Goldman, Sachs & Company, and A. G. Becker & Company.

The announcement was made on behalf of the two firms signing it and the Chase Securities Corporation, the Continental and Commercial Securities Corporation of Chicago, and Lehman Brothers.

The bankers further stated that a careful study of the condition of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company was being made, with a view of determining what permanent financing, if any, was necessary, but it was said no announcement in this connection was likely to be made for some time to come.

English Wool Prices Lower.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: "The wool market has been very dull during the past week and the tendency of prices is lower. The settlement of the English coal strike is considered a helpful factor in the market situation. The Government auction of low wools, suitable mostly for carpet purposes, was successful, only 5 per cent. being withdrawn. Low quarter blood territories sold at 10 to 14 cents in the grease, or an average of about 25 cents clean basis."

CARRIERS TO INSIST ON RIGHTS IN LABOR

VIEWS ON SEPT. EARNINGS

Too Soon to be Used as Guide, Some Leaders Think — New York Central Net Declines.

While the formal statement issued by the Chairman of the Association of Railway Executives after the member road meeting in the Grand Central Terminal yesterday, reviewed general conditions and asserted that definite action was not taken on several matters which were discussed, it is understood that within a comparatively short time the executives will announce their stand in the dispute with labor over a national labor board of adjustment and centralization of labor matters in Washington or Chicago. The carriers, it is also understood, will insist on freedom of action on this question.

Section 302 of the Transporation act, under which the railroads are prepared to demand freedom of action, reads that "Railroad boards of labor adjustment may be established by agreement between any carrier, group of carriers or the carriers as a whole, any employes or subordinate officials of carriers, or organization or group of organizations thereof."

One of the actions taken by the member roads yesterday which is significant at this time, was a reduction in the per diem charge from $1.10 a day to $1 a day. This was done because of the price decline which has occurred in the last few months and which is expected to materially decrease the cost of repairs to cars in the future.

ARREST THREE MEN IN COOPERATIVE ROW

Meeting Following Resignation of Brindell Results in an Altercation.

TWO DISTURBERS FINED $5

Founder of Corporation Says They Were "Radicals" and Tried to Disrupt Society.

Following the resignation of Robert P. Brindell, President of the New York Building Trades Council, from the Board of Directors of the Wholesale Purchasing Corporation, Inc., the officers and remaining Directors held a meeting in the Tribune Building last night to effect a reorganization, but the meeting ended in a scrimmage.

The organization was started originally for the purchase and distribution of household supplies among members. Some of those who attended the meeting were there to call attention to the laws regulating co-operative organizations and to ask for a strict observance of them. According to one account, Brindell had resigned since his exposure by the Lockwood Committee, and according to another account he resigned two months ago.

John Turchin, an accountant, of 1,566 East Twenty-second Street, Brooklyn, and Herbert S. Cohen of 1,562 East Twenty-second Street, who represented the King's Highway Association, got into an angry dispute with the former colleagues of Brindell on the Directorate of the corporation. They were ejected from the meeting, arrested and fined $5 in Men's Night Court. They then returned to the meeting, which had adjourned, got into another fight with strugglers after the adjourned meeting, were arrested again, and released from the Clinton Street jail on bail of $25 each.

George H. Salmon, founder of the corporation, said that the three men arrested were "radicals" and had attended several meetings of the co-operative societies in an effort to disrupt them.

DISPUTE STANDARD OIL MONOPOLY IN FRANCE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The Standard Oil Company is not going to be left in undisputed possession of the French market. Just when voices were beginning to be raised here and there against a threatened monopoly of the "Standard octopus," comes an announcement that the Anglo-Persian Oil Company has formed a parallel deal with a French group, of whom the naturalized Frenchmen, Sir Basil Zaharoff and Admiral Ornato, of Dixmude fame, are the most notable members.

The prospects of a struggle between the two great rivals is not unpleasing to the French, who calculate that one of the first results is likely to be a fall in prices such as recently occurred in Switzerland, where the Standard and Royal Dutch companies are cutting rates against each other. As far as influence in France goes, the antagonists seem pretty evenly matched. The Standard group includes the powerful Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, which is understood to have a big interest in the great firm of Hoschette, which has a practical monopoly of newspaper and magazine distribution in France and is closely affiliated with the paramount newspaper and papermakers' combine, which is credited with forcing through Parliament some monopolistic and protectionist legislation. The leading morning newspapers of Paris and the provinces are members of this combine, and the amount of influence they can wield upon public opinion and Parliament is incalculable.

On the other hand, Zaharoff is a tower of strength in himself. The country old Levantine, who spends a considerable part of the year in almost royal seclusion in his house in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, is one of the legendary figures of Paris. His wealth and his influence over and knowledge of European and Asiatic affairs are reported in thousandfolds. During the war he is said to have quadrupled his already colossal fortune as one of the leading figures in English armament manufacture. More recently he has become interested in the development of French ports and shipping together with the Banque de la Seine, which is associated in his deal with the Anglo-Persian Oil Company.

During the Premiership of Briand, to whom he is understood to be bound by close personal friendship, Zaharoff was stated to have exercised a new radio press agency whose connection with Briand and his policies is still maintained. If, as appears probable, Briand becomes Premier again in the near future, it seems as though the Zaharoff party might be able to exercise an influence on Parliament and the public worthy of comparison with that of their opponents.

WILL MARKET CROPS AS DEMAND REQUIRES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Resolutions urging that all crops be marketed as the demand requires and that Congress conduct an investigation of interest rates charged by banks were adopted today by the Farmers' Conference.

All farmers were urged to join existing co-operative marketing organizations or organize new ones, and Congress was asked to give the Federal Farm Loan Board authority to issue and sell in the open market short-term securities based on warehouse receipts issued under the Federal Warehouse act.

Delegates to the conference interpreted the resolution for marketing as the demand requires as authorizing a holding movement of cotton, wheat and other farm staples.

WHEAT MARKET VARIES.

Argentine Frost Reports and Farm Strike Cause Unsettled Close.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Bulls had the advantage in the wheat market today owing largely to frost reports from Argentine and to views expressed by a widely known trade authority that the farm strike in the United States was serious. The market closed unsettled, 1½ to 2¼ cents net higher, with December $2.09½ to $2.00⅝ and March $2.03. Corn finished 1⅛ to 1⅝ up and oats gained ⅛@¼ to ⅜ cents. In provisions the outcome varied from 25c decline to 35c advance.

More than usual significance was attached to Argentine frost news inasmuch as wheat crop damage was implied, and any great impairment of yield in the Southern hemisphere would be likely to bring about a more active European demand for supplies from the United States. Aside from the Argentine situation, interest among wheat traders centered almost entirely on developments touching the holding attitude of farmers. It was contended that notwithstanding primary receipts continued liberal, an adequate test as to the amount of stoppage of rural selling would require at least ten days. Under such circumstances the trade was largely at sea and venturesome dealers were quick to act on an opinion which held that the farm strike was not altogether visions.

Cash oats borrowed their strength from wheat. Provisions were irregular, influence on the one side by higher quotations on hogs and on the other by packers selling.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....8 per cent. for the best names
Thursday ....8 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Blouses for Spring.

Women's blouses for the Spring will be of crepe de chine and Georgette, both the regular blouse and the slip-overs, and with filet lace in the trimming going strong. The report of the revival of Irish lace is said to be improbable because of the difficulty of obtaining it. Practically all the filet lace now comes from China and, with its great working population, there is an unfailing source to draw upon for the material. Owing to the decorative and wearing qualities of the filet it is likely to be popular for a good time to come.

Suits for the Plump.

The class of women known as "stouts" are having a good field in dressing this year, says a manufacturer who works for them alone, since browns are going well and nothing is more satisfactory for the over-plump woman. They are buying very little black, and are going in largely for embroidery and also for jet ornaments on dresses and for plain things in suits and coats.

More Gray Goods Business Done.

A bit more business was done in the local gray goods market yesterday than on Thursday, the increase being principally in printcloths. Sales of those goods included spot 39-inch 68-72s at 11¼ cents and 38½-inch 64-60s at 10 cents. Second hands sold spot deliveries of Southern 38½-inch 60-48s at 8½ cents. They also disposed of November-December lots of 6.13-yard sheetings at 6¾ cents. Some unimportant business was done in staple sateen construction at prevailing prices.

A New Rubber Elastic.

What is called an easy stretch, a term which became familiar in connection with aviators' caps in war time, is applied to a new crinkled silk ribbon elastic. It is used for a variety of purposes, among them being as an edge for boudoir caps, which being light have a tendency to slip; as shoulder straps for silk under-blouses and for waist bands. It is also made up into round fancy elastic hosiery bands. The latter are finished with small hand-made French flowers. The elastic is unusually light and soft, stretches, but holds firmly, and comes in all colors.

Styles in Handbags.

The biggest sellers in small leather handbags for women have been what are called canteen bags. They are leather cases, an oblong square in shape, which gives them their name, and are really vanity bags, with mirror, powder, puff, &c., and with room for a small purse and handkerchief. Some large firms are already sold out on them for January delivery, as they are more a Spring and Summer than a Winter bag, and big orders are being arranged for another season. In a larger size, an eight or ten inch one, they are called an overnight bag and will hold small toilet accessories. One of the places in which they have had a large sale has been Los Angeles, where the many movie actresses have been credited with buying them as conveniences for holding makeup.

Winter Style Week Successful.

Although reports vary somewhat as to the amount of actual business done, local millinery interests agree that the first movement to establish Winter hats for Winter wear was a success. The movement was inaugurated here during the week, when special displays of cold-weather chapeaux were on view in the leading wholesale houses. More than 400 buyers from various parts of the country were in the city for the event, some of them coming from points as far away as San Francisco and New Orleans. All of them seemed pleased with the showings and asserted their willingness to do their part in bringing about four seasons a year in millinery.

Varieties of Rubber Aprons.

Brand new for the holiday trade, and a practical and pleasing gift for children, is a little rubber apron with Mother Goose designs upon it, which will be boxed in attractive style and retail for about $1. It will cover the entire front of a little frock and has a strap which goes around the neck. It has two little round patch pockets with "See-Saw," the "Old Woman in the Shoe" and other Mother Goose stories all illustrated on one apron. The apron amuses the child and saves laundry work. There is a variety of women's rubber cloth aprons, attractive ones having a plaid finish while others are plain or they come in the smooth rubber. They are going well in these days of domestic service difficulties. It is only necessary to wipe them with a damp cloth and then with a dry towel to clean them.

Domestic Size Coal Wanted.

While the demand for domestic sizes of hard coal shows no signs of letting up, Saward's Journal will say today, it goes without saying that the mild weather which prevailed during the greater part of the current month has been a boon in the anthracite trade. It has overcome to quite an extent the setback to production and distribution caused by the strike in September. Already there are predictions being made of a much easier situation developing soon after the first of the year, unless there is a lot of cold weather in the meantime. As for bituminous coal, so far as its effect on the American market is concerned the British strike has fallen flat.

Straight Razors Selling Abroad.

Despite the increasing popularity of the safety razor, the old-fashioned straight razor has more than held its ground. More than that, it has developed greater popularity during the last fiscal year was more than $6,000,000, the highest amount ever reached in a single year. In former years razor exports were confined almost entirely to "safties," but the high quality of the American straight blade has awakened a new appreciation in foreign trade.

American Toy Trade Very Big.

Quantity production, made possible by machine operation, has within the last six years developed the manufacture of toys in this country into one of the most substantial American industries, according to W. O. Coleman, a director of the Toy Manufacturers of the U. S. A. In a statement issued yesterday, Mr. Coleman said that the sale of toys here during the last year came close to $100,000,000, of which $80,000,000 worth were made in this country. Indications are, he said, that 1921 will see a further development in the American industry which will result in an increase of at least 30 per cent. in production. Of particular interest, Mr. Coleman pointed out, is the steady increase in exports of toys to foreign countries, some of which were formerly able to undersell the domestic manufacturers in this market.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Pressure was low and falling Friday over the Canadian Maritime Provinces and Manitoba, and from California eastward over the southern plateau and southern Rocky Mountain regions, and it was high over nearly all other sections. Colder weather overspread the Atlantic States Friday, and the temperature was from 6 to 15 degrees below normal Friday night from the Mississippi Valley eastward. Frosts formed Friday morning as far south as the East Gulf Coast and the South Atlantic Coast north of Florida.

There was reaction to somewhat higher temperatures in the Plains States and the Lake Superior region Friday, while colder weather again overspread the plateau and northern Rocky Mountain region.

The outlook is for generally fair weather in the States east of the Mississippi River Saturday and Sunday except that snow or rain is probable in Northern Michigan Sunday.

The temperature will rise slowly in the Southern States and from the Middle and Upper Mississippi Valley eastward to the Appalachian region Saturday, and the weather will become warmer in the Atlantic States Sunday. Colder weather will again overspread Northern Michigan Sunday.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND SUNDAY.

New England, East New York, New Jersey fair Saturday and Sunday with slowly rising temperature.

West New York fair Saturday and Sunday, rising temperature Sunday.

3 A. M.	50	46	4 P. M.	44	53
6 A. M.	45	44	6 P. M.	46	50
9 A. M.	46	49	9 P. M.	45	52
12 M.	49	50	11 P. M.	42	50

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 48; for the corresponding date last year it was 50; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 50. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 45; at 8 P. M. it was 44. Maximum temperature, 54 degrees at 12:01 P. M.; minimum, 42 degrees at 11 P. M. Humidity, 67 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 60 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.78 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.90 inches.

OLD WALDO HOUSE WILL BE OCCUPIED

COST MORE THAN $550,000

Residence on Seventy-second Street Corner Will Be Altered Into Small Apartments.

An interesting Madison Avenue deal which will result in the improvement of a residence which has never been occupied from the day it was erected, more than fifteen years ago, was closed yesterday in the sale of the well-known Waldo house at 26 East Seventy-second Street, on the southeast corner of Madison Avenue. It has a frontage on the avenue of 102 feet by 40 feet on the street. The property has been purchased by a corporation known as the Renaissance Building, Inc., composed of H. W. Healy, C. W. Hansen and W. L. Albott, from Fred T. Ley and others.

The residence has long been one of the curiosities in the realty history of New York because, while being one of the largest and finest private dwellings in that neighborhood, and the original expense of which, including the land, was estimated at about $550,000, it has never had a tenant. It was built by Mrs. Gertrude Rhinelander Waldo, the exterior being modeled from a French chateau and the interior elaborately fitted up, with a magnificent marble staircase, rare tapestries, carvings, a large ballroom on the second floor, a bowling alley in the basement and elevator equipment. Soon after its completion Mrs. Waldo's husband died, and it is said that was the reason why the family never occupied the house.

Within the last few years the artistic house deteriorated rapidly, and there was a time when its broken windows and partially broken stone work suggested the appearance of some venerable ruin in the choice Lenox Hill residential section. In 1912 the property was sold at foreclosure for $150,000, being purchased by the Dime Savings Bank of Brooklyn. Old restrictions limited the use of the plot to other than private houses, and that fact, in addition to its ruinous condition, prevented its purchase for remunerative improvement. The Dime Savings Bank instituted court proceedings and succeeded in removing the onerous restrictions. Then, in 1918, the bank sold the property to the Samuel A. Herzog Construction Company and it was said that the company would improve the site with an apartment structure. Nothing was done, however, and in March, 1919, the Fred T. Ley Company acquired the property and now, in turn, they have parted with it.

Pease & Elliman, the brokers in the recent sale, state that the new owners are preparing plans for altering the long unoccupied home into small apartments of two to four rooms. The property is assessed for $200,000, of which $150,000 is land value.

$10,000 GIFT TO RED CROSS.

Miss Jones's Will Carries Other Public Bequests Also.

Carrying bequests to several public institutions and charities, here and in Massachusetts, the will of Emma Chambers Jones was filed in the Surrogate's office yesterday for probate. Miss Jones lived at 261 Central Park West, but died at Grafton, Mass., on Sept. 18 last. A daughter of Edward Coffin Jones, of New Bedford, Mass., her old family homestead is located there.

Among the legacies to institutions here are one of $10,000 each to the Charity Organization Society, and the American Red Cross, and others of $1,000 each to the American Museum of Natural History, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Zoological Society, the Botanical Gardens and the New York Association for the Blind.

The Massachusetts bequests are to these in Bedford—Friends Academy, Society for the Relief of Aged and Indigent Women, New Bedford Children's Aid Society, First Congregational Society, and St. Luke's Hospital.

Then, there are personal bequests of $100,000 and an interest in real estate in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, to Amelia Hickling Jones, of New Bedford; real estate in Grafton, Mass., $15,000, and a life income from a trust fund of $80,000 to Mary Sherwin Ober of Nashua, N. H., and $20,000 each to Gerrit Forbes, Henry Stone Forbes and Sarah M. Klebs, of Boston, and to Amelia Forbes Emerson, of Concord, Mass., and Ellen Forbes, of Milton, Mass.

TO HELP CUT COAL PRICES.

Anthracite Operators Pledge Aid to the Department of Justice.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Anthracite coal operators at a meeting here today pledged themselves to co-operate with the Department of Justice in attempting to reduce "excessive" prices of coal to the consumer. The operators, most of whom represented independent interests, were in conference here today with E. Lowry Humes, special assistant to Attorney General Palmer, and after the meeting the operators gave out a statement which said:

"It was resolved that we pledge to the Department of Justice the co-operation and aid of the anthracite operators in attempting to reduce excessive prices of coal to the consumer by stabilizing the anthracite coal market and eliminating such bad practices as may have grown up in the industry through improper and unsatisfactory methods of distribution."

The meeting was held in the office of S. D. Warriner, President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, and others present, included P. C. Madeira, Philadelphia, President of the Anthracite Coal Operators' Association; W. J. Thompson, Secretary of that organization; H. W. Perrin, Philadelphia; Thomas W. Dickson, New York; George Robertson, Shamokin, Pa.; James G. Neale, Minersville, Pa.; C. W. Jacobs, Philadelphia; Gardiner Pattison, New York, and John Markle, Jeddo, Pa.

RUBBER TIRES DOWN 12½%.

United States Company Reduces Prices, Goodyear to Follow.

The United States Rubber Company announced yesterday that automobile and truck tires would be reduced 10 to 12½ per cent., with the exception of cord tires, on Nov. 1. The reduction amounts to 12½ per cent. on the smallest automobile fabric tires to 10 per cent. on the larger sizes and on truck equipment made of solid rubber. The prices of cord tires are to be reduced moderately. The cost of inner tubes will be lowered 15 per cent.

"While the average prices of tires today," said a statement by the company, "are no greater than the pre-war prices, the United States Rubber Company's position as to crude rubber and other materials is such that they feel warranted at this time in making the reductions named."

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company has revised its schedule of tire prices to dealers. It is expected that the alteration, effective Nov. 1, will make possible a decline of selling prices to the public. The wholesale prices of tubes have not been changed.

Woolen Company Exonerated.

Judge Mulqueen of General Sessions dismissed yesterday an indictment against Henry Brinn and Abraham Scheinberg of the Magnet Woolen Company, 172 Greene Street, charging receiving stolen property. Assistant District Attorney Sheridan, who recommended the action, said his investigation had satisfied him that the defendants did not know the goods had been stolen, and receipted bills in their possession showed they had obtained the alleged stolen merchandise from a dealer.

$200,000 WEST HARLEM DEAL

Pinkney Estate Sells Seventeen Lots to Builders.

One of the largest and most important recent sales of vacant property in the West Harlem section was closed yesterday when a client of Stoddard & Mark, attorneys, purchased a plot of seventeen lots.

This property, which was sold by Clarence H. Kelsey as administrator of the estate of Mary G. Pinkney through Charles Griffith and Eugene Moses & Company, as brokers, is on the north side of 123d Street, opposite the northerly end of Morningside Park.

It contains seventeen lots, fronting 425 feet on the street, and it is the intention of the purchasers to improve part of the plot at once and dispose of the remainder to builders who are negotiating for it. The selling estate had owned the property for many years and held it at more than $200,000.

Commercial Leases.

Henry Shapiro & Co., in conjunction with Pocher & Co., leased to Rullas & Ladas for the Par-Amount Shirt Shops the store at 1,628 Broadway, near Fiftieth Street. It will be occupied as a confectionery store. The lease is for a term of years, involving an aggregate rental of $100,000.

Henry Brady leased for John J. Cavanagh the four-story building, 20 by 75, at 345 Seventh Avenue, at an aggregate rental of $90,000, to Morris Pomerantz and Max Lubiner, who will alter the property into stores and lofts.

Pease & Elliman and Felix Isman, Inc., leased for a term of years to John G. Dale, distributer of the Cunningham Motor Car, the ground floor of 144 and 146 West Seventy-second Street, near Broadway, having a frontage on the street of about 40 feet. It will be used as an automobile salesroom.

The Lewis L. Rosenthal Company leased for ten years, for the Krim Realty Holding Corporation, the store and basement at the northeast corner of Seventy-first Street and Broadway to the Gordon Drug Company.

Ames & Co. rented the store at 455 and 457 Seventh Avenue to Kirshbaum & Son; also the store at 166 West Thirty-fifth Street to Crossman & O'Brien, and the store at 52 West Twenty-seventh Street to the Mohawk Woolen Company.

Spotts & Starr leased the store at the southwest corner of Forty-third Street and Sixth Avenue to the Export American Products Company.

Long Island Sales.

L'Ecluse, Washburn & Company have sold at Plandome Heights for E. Tillman a plot of six lots to Mrs. E. A. Allen; for the Plandome Heights Company a plot of fifteen lots to Mrs. I. Adams, also a plot of ten lots to Joseph F. Mock, and ten lots to Joseph Thalman.

Dwellings at Woodmere have been sold by the Country Home Construction Company to Joseph Marcus, Edgar Lehman, H. Bresler, J. Sloat Fassett, Jr., and H. A. Hyman.

Edgeworth Smith, Inc., sold the dwelling at 157 Roxbury Road, in the Boulevard section of Garden City, to Warren Gordon.

Suburban Buyers.

J. Clarence Davies resold for E. Wilson to Denton Oliver the vacant plot, 50 by 100, on Van Cortlandt Park North, 86 feet west of Aqueduct Avenue, Yonkers. The seller acquired the plot at the King estate auction sale.

Three houses at Bogota have been sold by George B. Hitchcock to Robert F. Albin, Harry L. Perry and George H. Metzer. The houses are part of the group upon which the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company recently authorized loans of $250,000.

Moffatt & Schwab have sold for Eleanor Bailey the property at 396 St. Mark's Place, Tompkinsville, S. I., to Mrs. Moretti.

Two New Buildings Planned.

Plans for a nine-story apartment house, excavations for which have been made at 246 to 250 West Seventy-fifth Street, have been filed for the Lucania Realty Corporation by George Fred Pelham, who estimates the cost at $300,000.

The Sidem Building Company will erect a six-story office structure at 123 and 125 West Thirty-third Street from plans by Gronenberg & Leuchtag, who figure the cost at $200,000.

Deals in Greenwich Village.

The three-story dwelling at 241 West Fourth Street has been sold by Pepe & Brother for A. Bianculli, to Dr. Peter Lavalle.

Robert M. Bush & Co have leased for the estate of Henry M. Hoyt the two dwellings at 16 and 18 Bank Street. The lessees are planning to remodel them into apartments.

BUYS WHEATLEY ESTATE.

Rushmore-Davis Farm Purchased by H. A. Murray of This City.

One of the largest deals in Nassau County this season has just been closed in the sale of the 190-acre estate known as the Rushmore-Davis farm at Wheatley. It was sold by S. A. Warner Baltazzi for the estate of John Davis and Mrs. Henrietta Rushmore. The property is in the choice country home section of Long Island, in the hunting district of Westbury, and close by are the fine estates of Harry Payne Whitney, William A. Prime, James N. Hill and E. D. Morgan.

Hugh A. Murray of New York City was the purchaser. He rented the Julian Peabody house at Westbury during the Summer. The holding price of the Rushmore-Davis farm was about $200,000.

SHOWS TRAVIS HID BOND DEAL LETTERS

PINCHED BY BOTH SIDES

Broker Testifies to Attempted Repudiation of "Blot on Office" Transactions.

William S. Fanshawe, a broker who figured in the deals as a result of which Albert L. Judson made more than $800,000 profits on bond sales to State Controller Eugene M. Travis's office for the State Sinking Fund, disclosed yesterday at a supplemental hearing of the John Doe inquiry before Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan of Special Sessions that five letters relating to the so-called "moral obligation sale" to the State in November, 1917, were not among the records produced at the hearing by Controller Travis and Deputy Controller James A. Wendell.

The letters related to a bond sale which Controller Travis, as a witness, described as "a blot upon my administration." The sale was made on a falling market, after a year's negotiations, with the result that Mr. Fanshawe lost $88,000 on the transaction, and Mr. Travis, as State Controller, paid about $120,000 more than the quoted market price.

Mr. Fanshawe testified that one of the considerations in the settlement resulting in the sale of the bonds to the State was his surrender of all correspondence relating to the deal to the Controller's office. Assistant District Attorney Pecora introduced stenographic evidence to show that in August Deputy Controller Wendell, in a statement to the District Attorney, had said that the entire correspondence had consisted of three letters which had been placed in the prosecutor's hands.

Letter Placed in Evidence.

One letter, which Mr. Fanshawe retained, was placed in evidence. According to the testimony, it was a reply, strongly phrased, to a letter from the State Controller's office in which an attempt was made to repudiate the negotiations with Fanshawe. The letter in full, as produced by Mr. Fanshawe, follows:

October 27, 1917.

Dear Sir—We acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 19th inst.

We deny the veracity of the statement attributed by you, in paragraph 2 of said letter, to Controller Travis, and are prepared to substantiate this assertion by oral and written proof at the proper time and place.

Regarding paragraph 3 of your letter, we submit that if what you claim be true, and we assert that it is untrue, then your letter of Sept. 13 should not have been written "at our request by telephone" or at any one's request, however and whenever made.

If you now state that you officially wrote and signed a letter containing a statement which you now assert to be untrue and incorrect, and which said letter you well knew was meant to be shown to a financial institution as a basis for continuing financial credit or accommodation to the addressee, it is needless for us to comment on such a situation or act on your part.

The last four sentences of your fourth paragraph are incorrect and constitute a tissue of misstatements. Our proof in this regard will be forthcoming at the proper time and place.

Our commentary on the fourth paragraph of your letter coincides with the next preceding paragraph of this letter.

We acknowledge receipt of statement of bonds referred to in the concluding paragraph of your letter, and state that this is only a duplication of statements you had handed to you many months ago, including one special statement made up and sent to you at your suggestion, with interest computed on these bonds to June 12, 1917.

We again refer you to our last letter, saying that these bonds must be paid for on or before Oct. 22, 1917.

Very truly yours,

Suggests Action by Prosecutor.

Albert L. Judson, who obtained bonds for sale to the State through Fanshawe, did not bear any part of the loss on the November, 1917, transaction, according to previous testimony. When the first negotiations for the purchase of the bonds were started the market was around 94. The bonds were finally taken by the State at a compromise price of 89, which was several points higher than the market quotation. Mr. Travis testified that he had "squeezed" Fanshawe. Mr. Fanshawe testified that Mr. Travis had denied his obligation to accept the bonds at any time.

Justice Kernochan hesitated before permitting Fanshawe to testify concerning the letter. When Mr. Pecora explained that the five letters referred to were not among those turned over by the State Controller's office, Justice Kernochan said that the District Attorney was in a position to demand that the Controller produce them or explain their disappearance.

Mr. Fanshawe testified that after Judson had failed to take up the bonds and the market began to fall he telephoned to Mr. Wendell and asked him to write a letter to the Empire Trust Company committing the State to the purchase of the bonds, which the trust company was carrying for Fanshawe. On the strength of the letter, written on Sept. 13, 1919, the trust company agreed, Fanshawe testified, to continue carrying the bonds until the State was ready to make payment.

When Justice Kernochan pointed out that Judson, in his testimony, asserted that Fanshawe alone was responsible for any losses on bond deals with the State, Fanshawe said:

"I don't know anything about what Judson said, but he is responsible for the loss, as he will soon learn."

"It seems to me a very peculiar way of doing business," Justice Kernochan said.

Fanshawe will take the stand again this morning with as much additional data as he can obtain. A representative of George Z. Medalie, counsel for Controller Travis, announced that Mr. Medalie would appear today. "Tell him not to waste his time unless he brings Mr. Travis with him," said the Justice. "Any legal arguments may be submitted in written form. This is only a courtesy extended to the Controller."

FINED $1,000 FOR TAX FRAUD

Cotton Goods Dealer Also Sentenced to One Day's Detention.

Morris Schwartz, of the cotton goods firm of Berse & Schwartz, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Mayer to having made a fradulent income tax return. He was fined $1,000 and sentenced to one day's detention by the United States Marshal. Berse, the other member of the firm is in Europe. It was said that he would enter a similar plea when he returned.

Morris Hathmil and Abraham Lincoln Samuelson, public accountants, who made out the alleged false return, pleaded not guilty and were held in $500 each for trial. Rathmill and Samuelson are also held in bail for trial on an indictment charging them with participation in several other tax frauds.
